SCORE DEAD, STORM LOSS IS MILLIONS

Utilities Demoralized; Traffic Crippled; No Loss of Life.

Cars Are Menaced By Water Traps

A spectacular storm of unprecedented magnitude struck the National Capital yesterday, drenching it with nearly 7 inches of rainfall, flooding the Potomac River, demoralizing public utilities and doing great property damage, but sparing human life.

While the wind spent itself wrecking trees and lifting roofs, an almost record rainfall worked slowly through the day toward the paralysis of the District's electric light and power systems and great estimated property damage.

By nightfall lights had failed in many sections of the city, making it necessary to bring power from Baltimore. Street car service was suspended, and inundated highways leading into the city halted hundreds of motorists.

Distress Great Nearby.

Emergency and Casualty hospitals were forced to work by candlelight. Six police stations were dark and linotype machines and presses of newspapers were forced to suspend work for a time.

The distress in suburban towns and adjoining districts was even greater than in the Capital. Many of them were in darkness with streets and basements of houses flooded.

At Highway Bridge the waters rose to within 10 feet of the bridge flooring, an all-time record level for the river at this point.

Airport Inundated.

The Washington-Hoover Airport and the Military road were under 3 feet of water at sundown.

Mount Vernon Boulevard was flooded at Four Mile Run, and the Benning Bridge was under 2½ feet of water.

While few tourists had braved the storm to leave the city during the day, many from outside made an effort to enter, and throughout the evening police stations were besieged with appeals for aid from those who had run their cars into deep water.

During the day no fatalities were reported from the storm proper, but police were apprehensive during the evening that deaths might result from the innumerable water traps which had formed in the highways and were menacing motorists hourly.

Government employes dismissed included those of the Federal Trade Commission, the War Department and the Navy Department. The Navy employes were sent home by Admiral Standley, acting on information from his experts.

More than 2,000 governmental employes were dismissed early in the afternoon and warned to return to their homes before the storm reached its maximum.

False Report Broadcast.

This was a direct result of the hurricane report broadcast by Station WJSV at the request of Capt. John S. Arnold of the Alexandria police. Instantly, the Weather Bureau, newspapers and police stations were so deluged with calls the telephone company was obliged to put 250 additional operators to work.

So great was the telephone traffic that even the White House was unable to communicate with the Weather Bureau, and Col. Louis Howe, worried about his father in their shore cottage, was obliged to telegraph to Forecaster C. L. Mitchell.

Reports of heavy damage at Norfolk had prepared the people to expect similar violence and damage here. Consequently the crashing of trees seemed to fulfill their fears.

While the wind velocity did not exceed 51 miles an hour, it was termed by the Weather Bureau the worst combination storm in 37 years. The barometer dropped to 28.94, one of the lowest readings ever recorded in the Capital. The center of the storm, which struck the city in the early hours of the morning, did not arrive until 6 p. m.

The storm also was unusual in that it was of tropical origin, having started last week in the Carribbean and worked northward by a sinuous route.

Many Roofs Damaged.

Although the worst effects here were the paralysis of public utilities and the damaging of property, and endangering of life by flood waters, roofs of many small houses were damaged, some of them being lifted off, and an estimated thou-

Milk Probers Recess to Get Further Data

"Looks Like a Conspiracy" With Health Group, Declares King.

The investigation into District milk prices recessed last night while the Senate Investigating committee obtains additional information regarding the National Dairies Corporation and the profits of independent dairies.

No recommendations will be made by the committee until the inquiry is completed. The task of gathering the information will take several weeks, according to Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee.

The recess came after testimony showed that the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association apparently had forced producers to join their organization. This practice was exposed by The Post in articles which precipitated the Senate inquiry.

When J. J. Ramey, of Vienna, Va., and Joseph F. Fleischman, of Washington, who operates a dairy in Silver Hill, Md., refused to affiliate with the association coercion was used, they testified.

President Tells Boy Scouts All Will Join Drive Before End.

Ten Mile River Camp, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP).—In his first expression since the start of the National Recovery Administration, President Roosevelt hailed it today as a success and asserted the 130,000,000 people of the United States will be behind the new deal for industry.

Mr. Roosevelt declared his firm confidence in a talk out in the woods before the Boy Scouts of New York assembled in this camp he himself helped establish.

"I am glad to see that you have adopted the NRA insignia," he said. "We are all going to belong before we get through, numbering about 130,000,000 people.

"And when you come right down to it, the NRA is based on the same fundamentals that scouting is based on. In other words, trying to do something for the other fellow and not trying to do somebody. It is based on cooperation—you know what that means. It is based on the spirit of service, and it is going to work just like scouting is working."

President Visits Aid.

Roscoe, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt motored here today in a surprise call on Miss Grace Tully, one of his secretaries, who is recovering from a recent illness.

Miss Paula Tully, another of the White House staff, and Miss Marguerite Le Hand, his personal secretary, were here with Grace Tully, who smiled happily at her distinguished caller and reported herself well on the way to recovery.

Annapolis Marooned; Some Take to Boats

Baltimore, Aug. 23 (AP).—Annapolis, on the western shore of Chesapeake Bay, was isolated by the wind and rain storm raging over Maryland. All efforts to communicate with the Maryland capital were unsuccessful.

Reports reached here saying the city was marooned and residents were being taken from their homes near the waterfront in boats.

Papal Nuncio Hurt In Spain Car Crash

Burgos, Spain, Aug. 23 (AP).—Mgr. Federico Tedeschini, papal nuncio, was seriously injured today as his automobile struck a telephone post at Miranda de Ebro, 40 miles northeast of Burgos.

It was believed he had suffered broken ribs and possibly other internal injuries. The prelate was taken to the home of the parish priest.

The nuncio's secretary and three other passengers in the car also were injured.

Dollfuss Leads Fight on Nazis

(Copyright, 1933, by United Press.)

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 23.—Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, embattled leader of the administration's struggle against the Nazis, hurried back from his summer residence near Gmundin tonight to take charge of the renewed fight against the menaces to his control of Austria.

One of his first moves was to banish the German news agency, Telegrafen Union. This move to muzzle the German press in Austria followed similar action against individual German correspondents recently, on charges they were pro-Nazi and writing propaganda against the Dollfuss government.

He was irate at the renewed propaganda attacks by radio over the German border, continued last night in a bitter denunciation of his regime by Austrian Nazi speakers, now in exile in Bavaria.

Decree Branded as Illegal.

Ernst Habicht, leader of the outlawed Nazi party in Austria, the speaker, branded as "absolutely illegal" the recent Dollfuss decree depriving Nazis who fled abroad of their citizenship and confiscating the property of those who aided Nazis outside Austria.

Shrewd playing of his international political cards, a loyal army and police force and what appears to be an improving economic situation are all contributing to consolidating Dollfuss' power in Austria, despite the persistent Nazi fight.

NRA Bans Open and Closed Shop Clauses in All Codes

The National Industrial Recovery Administration last night wiped the terms 'open shop" and "closed shop" from its dictionary and ruled that all industrial codes must conform to the provisions of the recovery act guaranteeing employes the right of "collective bargaining."

This was set forth in a statement signed by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator, and Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of the recovery administration.

Leaders of antiunion industries, such as steel, parts of the coal and the automobile industries, have sought to have written into codes provisions guaranteeing their right to continue so-called "open shop" employment policies, despite the law's guarantee of the right of collective bargaining. Such provisions may not be written into any code, Gen. Johnson and Mr. Richberg said.

No Union Pact Required.

Neither does the law require any employer to agree to any particular contract with any particular organization, the statement said.

"If there is any dispute in a particular case over who are the representatives of the employes of their own choosing, the NRA will offer its services to conduct an impartial investigation and, if necessary, a secret ballot to settle the question," the Johnson-Richberg pronouncement said.

The statement follows:

"The plain meaning of section 7 (a) can not be changed by any interpretation by any one. It is the function of the administrator and the courts to apply and to interpret the law in its administration, and no one else can assume this function and no official interpretation can be circumscribed, affected or foreclosed by any one writing his own interpretation into any code or agreement. Such an interpretation has no place there and can not be permitted.

"Open, Closed Shop" Banned.

"The words 'open shop' and 'closed shop' are not used in the law and can not be written into the law.

"These words have no agreed meaning and will be erased from the dictionary of the NRA.

"The law requires in codes and agreements that 'employes shall have the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing.'

"This can mean only one thing, which is that employes can choose any one they desire to represent them, or they can choose to represent themselves. Employers likewise can make collective bargains with organized employes or individual agreements with those who choose to act individually, provided, of course, that no such collective or individual agreement is in violation of any State or Federal law. But neither employers or employes are

Queen Mary's Eye Injury Mars Visit

Suffers for Hour Before Particle Is Removed by Surgeon.

Leeds, England, Aug. 23 (AP).—A slight but painful mishap to Queen Mary today marred a visit of their majesties to Leeds for the opening of the new Civic Hall here.

A piece of grit lodged in the queen's eye and caused her considerable pain until it was removed by Lord Moynihan of Leeds, president of the Royal College of Surgeons, an hour later.

2 Reported Killed At Kenwood Beach

Fishermen Believed to Have Perished When Boat Was Swept Ashore.

With every system of communication completely wiped out, Maryland State police last night were attempting to trace a report that two fishermen had been killed when their small craft was swept ashore at Kenwood Beach, Md. The report first came to Prince Georges County police at Marlboro.

State police at Waldorf, Md., declared roads to the beach were impassable. Several bridges were washed out and those remaining were unsafe for travel. With more than 4 feet of water covering the highway in some places, police reported automobiles washed from the road and their occupants marooned.

Arkansas May Get Legal Beer Today

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 23 (AP).—Final action was completed this afternoon in the Arkansas Legislature with Senate concurrence in all House amendments on the beer legislation with only the formality of a roll call tomorrow morning before the bill goes to the governor.

Following the final roll call in the Senate tomorrow morning the bill will be enrolled and rushed to Gov. Futrell for signature, making beer legal in Arkansas probably tomorrow night.

Radio Priest Assails Hoover, Says His Ideas Wrong Masses

Declares at Bank Quiz Gold Was Poured in as Poor Starved.

Detroit, Aug. 23 (AP).—His voice ringing through a jammed courtroom, the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin today denounced the "philosophy" of Herbert Hoover during his administration; condemned Detroit banking methods, and charged two closed national banks here were "wrecked by the philosophy that money in the hands of the masses was a menace."

His dramatic testimony was given before the one-man jury investigating the closing of the First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

Father Coughlin spared no words in his charges. Hoover, he declared, was "a concrete example of the exploitation of the few by the 'insiders.'" He submitted an article

White House Asks Storm News; Friday Fish Supply Is Cut Off.

False forecast that Washington was to be struck by a hurricane spread over the city yesterday and caused much uneasiness. Newspaper offices and the Weather Bureau were besieged by telephone calls for confirmation or denial.

Many Government employes were dismissed early from some of the temporary buildings that developed leaks and other were released about 3:30 p. m. with a warning to be off the streets by 5 p. m., when, it was reported, the "hurricane" was to strike.

With the intention of protecting small craft in the Potomac from high winds, Capt. John S. Arnold, of the Alexandria police, phoned Ted Church, acting manager of Station WJSV, that a hurricane was "coming up the river" and asked him to warn owners of boats moored in the river. He said the hurricane would strike Washington about 2 o'clock, according to the Coast Guard.

Church announced that a "gale which might reach hurricane proportions" was approaching the city.

Then the phone calls began. It was impossible to reach forecasters at the Weather Bureau. Stations WRC and WMAL were swamped with calls. K. H. Berkeley, manager of WRC, learned from the Weather Bureau that the storm would not amount even to gale proportions. This information he broadcast at intervals, and phone calls at the Weather Bureau began to decrease. The Weather Bureau phoned WJSV and the station also corrected the report.

Some of the calls to the Weather Bureau and newspapers revealed

Havana Armed For Red Riots

Streets and Parks Under Guard as Outbreaks Are Threatened.

Havana, Aug. 23 (AP).—Soldiers and police were ordered to go on guard in the streets and parks of the capital tonight, after authorities received a report demonstrations were planned by Communists, the newest trouble of the new Cuban government.

The organization had been denied a permit to parade in observance of the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti in the United States six years ago.

A mob at Santiago, capital of Oriente, took two men from soldiers, who were guarding them, shot them to death and dragged their bodies through the streets. The victims were Victor Vizcay, former mayor of San Luis, who was arrested in Santiago yesterday, and Joaquin Ramos, former army sergeant and Vizcay's bodyguard.

Referring to the overthrow 10 days ago of the Gerardo Machado government, radical speakers said: "The victory is not the A B C's. The victory is labor's and the Communist party's."

Dickey Fox, Baby Actor, Is Awarded to Mother

Pier Wrecked, Ferry Is Swept Down Potomac

Fear Felt for Bus Load, Last Seen on Boat Floundering.

Fear was expressed early today for a bus load of passengers aboard the Morgantown, (Md.), ferry, out of Colonial Beach, Va., and floundering helplessly in the raging Potomac.

The boat, preparing to land when its pier was swept away, disappeared down the river. It had not been sighted for hours. The number of passengers aboard was undetermined.

The general store and dance pavilion at Morgantown also was swept into the river.

Ships Aid the Madison.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Battered badly by the terrific Atlantic gale, the Old Dominion liner Madison—in distress most of the day off the Virginia coast—was apparently plowing toward Norfolk late tonight under her own power, with two Coast Guard ships alongside.

The Eastern Steamship Co., in Boston, said the Madison was proceeding to Norfolk with the cutter Carrabassett and the destroyer Upshur close by. None of the 37 passengers and the crew of between 50 and 60 was injured.

Those on Yacht Rescued.

Lewes, Del., Aug. 23 (AP).—With the waves breaking over her deck, the yacht Dolphin, owned by Stanley H. Johnson, juvenile court judge of Denver, today was washed ashore along with the fishing boat Felice.

As the craft was being pounded by the wind and surf, Coast Guardsmen launched a small boat and took off Judge Johnson, his wife, daughter Phyllis and two seamen.

Coast Guardsmen later also rescued A. J. Prussian, captain of the Felice, and two men.

10 Taken From Schooner.

Wilmington, N. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—A radio message to the Coast Guard cutter Modoc from the Navy station at Cape Hatteras at 3 p. m., said the schooner G. A. Kohler had beached 2 miles south of Gull Shore Coast Guard station and nine men and a woman were taken off by Coast Guardsmen.

Lightship Swept Six Miles.

Wilmington, N. C., Aug. 23 (AP).—The Coast Guard cutter Modoc intercepted a wireless message today saying the Diamond Shoals lightship was swept 6 miles off its position by an 80-mile gale this morning.

The message was intercepted at 2 p. m. The signals faded near the end of the message and the Modoc was unable to ascertain the ship or point from which it was sent.

Lindberghs Land In Faroe Islands

They took off from Eski Fjord, on the east coast of Iceland, where they flew this week from Reykjavik. They did not reveal their destination.

Virginia Toll Placed at 10; Loot Norfolk Flood Ruins

Towns in Wide Area Inundated

BULLETIN

Two unidentified soldiers were drowned early today and three others were saved when their car was swept off a highway bridge 4 miles northeast of Laurel, Md., into the Patapsco river.

The raging hurricane which has partially paralyzed the Atlantic seaboard for 72 hours, taking more than 20 lives and doing millions of dollars damage, was sweeping northward early today with increased intensity.

Thousands were made homeless by the most severe gale the coast has had in years.

Ten were reported dead in Virginia. Norfolk and vicinity bore the brunt of the storm with more than six million dollars in property loss in the State. Norfolk is practically helpless and isolated—a third of the city already inundated.

Police Fight Looters.

Norfolk police were called to combat looting in the crippled areas.

Damage of more than a million dollars to fruit and other crops was reported from Winchester. Apple orchards and corn fields were leveled in several sections.

The storm ripped through cities of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey and continued inland through Pennsylvania, where three were killed.

As the storm abated in Pennsylvania, the Weather Bureau issued new warnings that the gale was shifting with marked intensity and was headed north toward Boston and Portland, Me.

Eastern shore resorts were dealt a terrific blow by the storm.

Estimates that damage in Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore would run into the millions were made. In Sussex, Del., the storm reached its height, cutting off all communication. Railroad tracks were covered; dams were blown out and crops leveled.

Ocean and Bay Meet.

State police received reports that Rehoboth was being evacuated. At some points the ocean and bay were reported to have met. Another report, unverified, was that Cape Henlopen, between Rehoboth and Lewes, Del., had been washed into the sea.

Giant seas continued to pound the New Jersey shore, where the four-day storm caused at least eight deaths and thousands of dollars' damage.

Meanwhile, the New Jersey resort region, taking stock of its losses, found numerous small craft had been washed ashore, beaches scoured and shore structures battered.

A wreck of a two-car Erie train, with 32 passengers aboard, was pos-

Board Terms Canal Troops Drug Addicts

Military Report Reveals Use Is Widespread Among Soldiers.

Recommendations Not Made, However, for Checking Evil.

Narcotics addiction is widespread among United States troops stationed in the Panama Canal Zone.

This situation is disclosed in a report made by a military investigating board.

The board was appointed by the Canal Zone governor after complaints by company commanders that marijuana smoking was impairing efficiency of the personnel.

Marijuana—also known as hashish, loco weed, kanjac and Indian hemp—is a drug recognized throughout the world as detrimental to health.

No New Regulations.

The board concurred in this conclusion, but recommended that no new regulations be issued to remedy the evil. It declared existing military regulations against marijuana were sufficient. These have been branded as ineffective by other officers.

Sixty-two per cent of the marijuana smokers studied by the board were found to be constitutional psychopaths and 23 per cent morons—a total of 85 per cent abnormal.

Thus, the board members asserted, impaired efficiency and discipline complained of by company commanders is not due to marijuana, but to low mentality, marijuana addiction being confined mostly to the subnormal soldiers.

With the marijuana addicts studied by the board stating that 10 per cent of their fellow troopers are addicts, this would indicate that 1 out of every 10 soldiers of the more than 10,000 in the Zone is subnormal in intelligence.

Not Under U. S. Bureau.

Commissioner of Narcotics H. J. Anslinger was not surprised when informed evidence had been obtained concerning marijuana addiction.

A surprising number of persons whom we have taken into custody in the States say they contracted the marijuana habit either while serving in the Army in the Canal Zone, or residing in the zone or in the Republic of Panama," he said.

The Federal Bureau of Narcotics, he said, has no jurisdiction over the Canal Zone and, therefore, can do nothing about the problem. He is fighting against marijuana in the continental United States.

Attempts to obtain access to the military report at the War Department were unavailing. Although the Secretary of War, in June, removed it from the confidential status to permit publication in a technical magazine circulated only in the medical profession, Maj. Franklin C. Sibert, of the War Department Press Relations Office, said it would not be given to the press.

Try to Escape Boredom.

Marijuana addiction, the board found, has a 20 per cent spread among enlisted personnel at Fort Clayton, 0.6 per cent at Fort Amador, 5.4 at Fort Davis, 3.1 at the Post of Corozal, 2 at France Field, 3 at Fort Randolph, 2.6 at Fort Sherman and 3 per cent at Quarry Heights.

Desiring to study its effect, the investigators selected from various zone stations 34 young troopers known to be marajuana addicts, placed them in a hospital and allowed them to smoke specimens of the drug grown at the Canal Zone experiment station.

These soldiers, some as young as 19 but averaging 23 years old, said nearly every recruit "tried" marijuana as soon as he landed in the zone. Those who "liked it" continued smoking from 2 to 20 marijuana cigarettes daily in an effort to find a cheap method of escaping the boredom of the tropics.

As a result the habit is said to be especially prevalent among youths serving their first enlistments. The men said it made them "high, happy, peppy, rosy, dopy, satisfied," or gave them a "brushed up" feeling.

Said to Be Easily Obtained.

Psychiatrists who studied the men while under influence of the drug said they lost their reserve, became animated, laughed without cause and talked foolishly. After a cigarette the patient would fall asleep and awaken an hour or two later, ravenously hungry.

Addiction, the board found, was "quite common" because the drug is easily obtained. It is grown without restriction by farmers in the zone. It is especially common along the Chiva-Chiva trail on the Pacific slope.

The board included Col. J. F. Siler, chief health officer of the Zone; Lieut. Col. W. L. Sheep, assistant to the superintendent of Gorgas Hospital; L. B. Bates, chief of the Zone board of health laboratories; Commander G. F. Clark, medical officer of the Fifteenth Naval District; Lieut. Col. G. W. Cook, assistant to the canal department surgeon, and Maj. W. A. Smith, attending surgeon at Quarry Heights.

Drug Blamed in Crimes.

The board's conclusion that the drug does not cause a mental reaction derogatory to efficiency and discipline is challenged by others besides the company commanders.

For instance, marijuana was blamed by police when two men entered a married woman's house in Colon, forced her to take a narcotic, then violated her. When police called by an 8-year-old daughter arrived, they found one of the men with the unconscious woman, a bottle of marijuana derivative in his pocket.

Sixteen States consider the drug so harmful they include it in their antinarcotics laws. The Federal Government restricts importation. British authorities have banned it in India. The Republic of Panama, where a large portion of the poorer population resorts to its stupifying influence, had laws against it until 1928. Mexico, where it is reported to have been given to revolutionary troops to instill artificial bravery, now prohibits it.

At the first opium conference of the League of Nations, Dr. Mohammed Abdul Salem El Guindy, first delegate of Egypt, asserted that from 30 to 60 per cent of the insanity cases found in his country resulted from marijuana.

Some marijuana is harvested in the Illinois and Kentucky River valleys and made into fiber or supplied to drug houses to become an ingredient of sedatives and corn salves, but it is not popular with the medical profession.

It is more popular as an intoxicant and stimulant. As such it has caused several scandals in the United States.

The Baltimore Sun on November 12, 1925, for instance, described a 20-acre hashish farm in the Borough of Queens, New York. 'A press dispatch from Topeka, Kans., on December 5 of the same year charged hundreds of Kansans were smoking the drug and that its use was spreading, especially among youths. The Philadelphia Record two years ago revealed tobacconists were bootlegging marijuana to high school students for "wild parties."

Trouble Began in 1916.

The American scandals have run in cycles, but ever since 1916 the drug has been a serious problem for the military authorities of the Canal Zone, records there disclose.

First intimation of widespread use of the drug among the troops came May 26 of that year, when the chief of police of the zone was informed troopers in the Puerto Rican regiment were addicted to it. On May 26, 1922, the provost marshal at Quarry Heights made inquiries of the board of health.

From that time on, the popularity of the drug increased until authorities became alarmed, attributing cases of delinquency to it and demanding suppression of the traffic. As a result headquarters of the Panama Canal Department of the Army on January 23, 1923, issued circular orders prohibiting its possession by the military.

Still, the marijuana habit spread. Hedging in by complaints of company commanders, the department chief on March 31, 1925, protested to the zone governor. The latter called a conference to deal with it.

Restrictions Proposed.

"For some time past, efforts have been made to eradicate the use of marijuana among the soldiers," he said, "owing to its deleterious effects, which appear to be quite similar to those of the narcotic drugs prohibited by the Harrison drug act."

Confessing the military regulation against its use was difficult to enforce, he suggested steps should be taken to make distribution illegal.

A board, however, which was appointed on April 1, 1925, to study the problem as the result of the governor's statements, found the drug was not especially deleterious, and suggested all bars against its use be let down.

This despite that investigators at Fort Davis and the Corozal Hospital for the Insane observed soldiers, patients and even physicians and police smoking marijuana in their presence.

Rescinding of the antimarijuana edicts on January 29, 1926, because of the board's findings, only made matters worse. Captains, it is learned, were aroused to anger as their men arrived for duty drunker than ever from the influence of the drug.

Investigation Obtained.

Incensed, they brought pressure which on June 23, 1928, resulted in the governor calling another investigation. But a subsequent report of June 17, 1929, again insisted the drug was not harmful—that there was no reason why troopers should be prohibited from smoking it.

Sentiment, though, gathered force and necessitated reissuance of the military restrictions against marijuana on December 1, 1930. But this was not enough. A flood of new complaints from the officers brought demands from the zone department commander for another investigation with the view to securing evidence which might be used as the basis for regulations forbidding cultivation, possession or sale of marijuana by anyone—civilians and troops—in the zone.

On June 30, 1931, the governor appointed the board which made the report disclosed in this article, with recommendations that such prohibitions as proposed by the department commander were unnecessary.

W. B. Wilson, Former Labor Head, Returns

Founder of Department and First Secretary, Here as NRA Observer.

William B. Wilson, First Secretary of Labor and the man who started proceedings which ousted William S. Vare from the Senate, was back in the Capital yesterday as an NRA observer for coal miners and operators.

As arbitrator for the Illinois Coal Operators Association and District No. 12 of the United Mine Workers in disputes under wage contracts, Mr. Wilson wants to see if the Recovery Administration has any rules of umpiring an argument between employer and worker that were not in effect when he organized the Labor Department 16 years ago.

The 71-year-old former mine worker plans no official calls while in Washington. "Gen. Johnson and Secretary Perkins are too busy," he said. He plans to do his observing from the sidelines.

Mr. Wilson worked in the bituminous mines near his home at Blossburg, Pa., for 27 years before coming to Congress, where, as a member of the House Labor Committee, he handled the bill which established the Labor Department, over which he presided through both terms of President Wilson.

committee, to remark: "This looks like a conspiracy between the health department and the association."

Fleischman revealed that he was making a good profit from the sale of milk at 8 cents a quart. Other distributors had testified they make little profit at 13 cents a quart.

Tells of Threat.

Ramey disclosed that he had been shipping milk to Chestnut Farms Dairy under a contract. When notified his shipments would be stopped unless he poined the producers organization, he diverted his supply to the independent Wakefield Dairy.

A representative of Chestnut Farms Dairy called upon him, accused him of diverting his supply and then offered to bet him that he would be forced to join the association, he said.

"I didn't take his bet," he said. I haven't joined the association. I have warned their representatives to keep off my farm." Then, he said, someone tried to cut down his basic shipment, but this difficulty was adjusted with the dairy.

Squabble Over Prices.

In 1931, Fleischman testified, he bought the Providence Hospital Farm. He started retailing milk at 8 cents a quart. Then two representatives of the association urged him to join, he said, offering him 28 cents a gallon for bulk milk. They pointed out, he added, that this would be profitable to him, since he was only getting 32 cents a gallon for milk in quart bottles.

When he received the checks for his milk, he said, only 14 cents a gallon was paid, and he left the association.

Health Department inspectors called on him in June, he said, after he resumed distribution of his own milk, telling him he could make no more deliveries in the District until he made improvements on his barn.

Then he rejoined the producers association, he said, and his health department rating was restored, although "he hadn't moved a broom in the barn," he said.

Pennsylvania Reports Wash-Out at Grantley

Philadelphia, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad reported that its Baltimore division, operating between Baltimore and Harrisburg, Pa., was washed out tonight at Grantley, near York, Pa.

Traffic officials of the railroad expressed the hope that the storm's damage would be repaired in time to permit the Chicago-bound Liberty Limited, from Washington, first to be blocked, to arrive in Harrisburg not more than five hours late.

Ireland's Ban On Blue Shirts Defied by Chief

O'Duffy Adresses Rally of Followers Despite DeValera's Decree.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Aug. 23 (AP).—Gen. Eoin O'Duffy tonight defied the government's ban on his Blue Shirt national guard by addressing a rally of the organization at Cootehill Town Hall. Eighty of the guardsmen were in uniform.

The government yesterday banned the Blue Shirts, at the same time setting up a military tribunal to try political defenders. Despite the order, headquarters of the guard were open all day as usual.

President Eamon de Valera has said he considered the national guard a menace.

The tribunal already has been set up ready to try cases, only awaiting for some one to try. It can assess any penalty, including death.

The ban of the Blue Shirts created little more than passing interest among the public. O'Duffy declared yesterday that his group would await the will of the people. Previously he had declared that his followers neither would dissolve nor "be driven underground."

The situation was described as tense in political circles, however.

Photographers Adopt Code and Send It Here

Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 23 (AP). The National Photographers Association, holding its annual convention here, today adopted a code of fair competition and forwarded it to the NRA in Washington for approval.

The charter, accepted after nearly a week's consideration, provides a 40-hour week for all studio employes except cameramen and studio owners. It also bans all speculative methods of obtaining business and abolishes free "sittings" and offering any premiums of special inducements, such as free enlargements or frames.

Hunter of Lost Mine Vanishes

Globe, Ariz., Aug. 23 (AP).—J. A. Bradford may be victim No. 10 in the vain search of the wealth hungry for the Lost Dutchman Mine, from which Jacob Walsz used to tote gold into Phoenix.

Bradford, former copper mine electrician, went into the desert months ago to search for the mine. He wrote his daughter, Merrill Bradford, of Del Rio, Tex., of his plans. It was the last word received from him. Lee Gilgore, Globe police chief, has searched in vain for Bradford.

The Indians avoid the superstitious mining area as though it were a pestilence. Two years ago Adolph Ruth, ninth lsted victim of attempts to loot the Lost Dutchman of its treasure, was found dead of a bullet wound. He was a pensioned Government employe from Washington.

Gandhi, Freed, Ends His Fast

Unconditional Release Is Given Him After Week of Starving.

Poona, India, Aug. 23 (AP).—The Mahatma Mohandas K. Gandhi was unconditionally released from custody today by the British authorities and shortly afterward he broke a week's fast with a cup of orange juice.

The Nationalist leader had served only a little more than three weeks of a one-year prison sentence for initiating a new civil disobedience campaign against the government. He began the fast in protest against the government's refusal to grant him privileges to carry on his campaign in behalf of the untouchables, India's lowest class.

Gandhi was very weak and it was believed there were minor complications, but two Poona doctors who examined him said there was no cause for alarm.

The mahatma was resting tonight at the home of Lady Vitall Das Thackersey, widow of a Bombay merchant, at Parnakuti. He was moved there from the hospital in an ambulance.

Gandhi's lifelong friend, the Rev. Charles Freer Andrews, was at the mahatma's bedside in the hospital when news of the release was brought. Gandhi betrayed no emotion, merely asking the minister to say prayers in which he joined in a low voice. Then he was given his orange juice. He weighs 90 pounds.

U. S. Jury Indicts 13 In Urschel Case

Oklahoma City, Aug. 23 (AP)—As a Federal grand jury swiftly indicted 13 persons in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case today, the Government issued a dramatic challenge to underworld confederates of the persons charged to "meet us with your own weapons."

Rushing through a secret hearing to the indictments in only five hours, Federal prosecutors turned immediately to plans for a speedy trial of those held, including Harvey Bailey, in jail at Dallas, and Albert Bates, held at Denver. These two and George ("Machine Gun") Kelley, still at large, were named as the kidnaping principals in the blanket indictment.

Names of six of the 13 indicted were withheld.

Hitler to Free Goods of Jews Going to Zion

Emigrants to Palestine May Take a Part of Wealth.

Praha, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 23 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Dr. Arthur Ruppin, agricultural and colonization expert for the Jewish Agency for Palestine, will present to the Eighteenth World Zionist Congress, it was leraned today, an agreement approved by Germany providing that German Jews going to Palestine may take goods valued at 3,000,000 marks (approximately $977,000).

It was learned that the agreement further provides for the establishment of a trustee corporation for the liquidation of Jewish holdings in Germany. All transactions will be through the Anglo-Palestine Bank until a special mixed commission can be set up.

An unlimited period will be allowed to consummate the transactions and the German government will renew the agreement when the three million mark sum is exhausted. The agreement provides that goods must be shipped only to Palestine and not to other countries.

The government will decide in each case how much each person will be allowed to export.

Congress officials again postponed for a day discussion of the German-Jewish situation which had been scheduled for tonight.

NRA Bans 'Open' And 'Closed' Shops required by law to agree to any particular contract, whether proposed as an individual or collective agreement.

"The law provides that employes shall be free from the interference, restraint or coercion of employers in the exercise of their rights established by the law. The conduct of employers, which is here prohibited, has been defined by the Supreme Court in the case entitled T. & N. O. R. R. v. Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, 281 U. S. 548. The rulings of the Supreme Court lay down the law which governs the NRA.

"Under Section 7 (a), employers are forbidden to require 'as a condition of employment' that an employe shall either 'join a company union' or 'refrain from joining, organizing or assisting a labor organization of his own choosing.' The law does not prohibit the existence of a local labor organization, which may be called a company union and is composed only of the employes of one company. But it does prohibit an employer from requiring, as a condition of employment, that any employe join a company union and it prohibits the maintenance of a company union, or any other labor organization, by the interference, restraint or coercion of an employer.

Will Act in Dispute.

"If there is any dispute in a particular case over who are the representatives of the employes of their own choosing, the NRA will offer its services to conduct an impartial investigation and, if necessary, a secret ballot to settle the question.

"The NRA will not undertake in any instance to decide that a particular contract should be made, or should not be made between lawful representatives of employes and employers; or to decide that a contract which has been lawfully made should not be enforced.

"Cooperation in all industrial relations depends largely on the making and maintenance of agreements. The NRA will promote and aid such cooperation.

"HUGH S. JOHNSON.
"DONALD R. RICHBERG."

Work on the automobile and coal codes was practically suspended while the fight went on about the collective bargaining statement. Word had gone forth that the collective bargaining guarantee would be softened by Johnson, and the automobile industry made public another modification of its labor code provisions to provide that employers might "operate under an open-shop policy."

Work on the automobile and coal codes will be resumed today.

Roosevelt Asks Rails to Defer Wage Changes

Letter to Road Executive Urges Scales Be Kept Up for Period.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt, in a letter made public here today, asked the railroads of the Nation to maintain the status quo in their relations with employes. The President said he "deemed it desirable that in this critical period no active warfare between industry and labor should arise."

After the country has fought its way out of depression, the letter implied, there will be plenty of time to adjust wage agreements.

He fixed that time as "well into the coming year."

The letter was addressed to Charles E. Johnston, president of the Kansas City Southern Railway. It follows:

"Postpone the consideration of this matter for a definite period of time, continuing in the meantime under the existing rates of pay, rules and working conditions, with the understanding that this postponement shall be without prejudice to the rights of either side and that the matter will come up for further consideration at the end of the stipulated period."

As alternative suggestions, the President proposed (1) that the railway place in effect without reservation the rates and working conditions proposed before the emergency board, and (2) place those rates in effect for "an experimental period in order that there may be an actual test of the plan in practice."

Three Atop Sedan Battle for Lives

Caught in Flooded Creek; Another Escapes, Calls Rescue Workers.

Towanda, Pa., Aug. 23 (AP).—Three persons tonight clung for their lives to the top of a marooned sedan caught in the flood waters of Towanda Creek, which suddenly swept over the State highway near New Albany.

A fourth occupant of the car, stripped of his clothing, struggled to higher ground and was found exhausted. His cries in the darkness attracted rescue workers. Efforts to reach the car with heavy trucks failed and the water was moving too swiftly for the use of boats.

The exhausted man said another man and two girls were on the car top. The men are reported to be from the Hills Grove C. C. C. Camp.

Sugar Market Hearing Will Be Held Tuesday

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Wallace yesterday set the date for the formal hearing on the proposed sugar marketing agreement for Tuesday instead of Monday.

It will be the second hearing on the proposed sugar agreement. The Farm Administration postponed further parleys at one time after beet sugar interests refused to accept a specified quota.

However, the beet interests recently agreed to participate in a quota plan if they were allowed to market 1,750,000 tons annually in the United States. This resulted in the new hearing.

Europe Watches NRA, Willys Says

Automobile Magnate Has Word of Praise for Hitler.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Everybody in Europe is "listening and watching" for the results of the NRA program, said John N. Willys, chairman of the Willys-Overland Co. and former Ambassador to Poland, upon his arrival today on the Europa after a three weeks' visit to Germany.

Discussing the situation in Germany he said: "Hitler has done a lot of good and the people believe in him."

Shipping Head Sees Success For Blue Eagle

Good Times Within Year, Says Homer Ferguson, Newport News.

Optimism over the progress and ultimate success of the NRA was sounded yesterday by Homer Ferguson, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co. of Newport News, who predicted that while real good times were not exactly around the "corner" they were not more than a year away.

"Under the terms of the public works construction program our yards were allotted $38,000,000 for the construction of two airplane carriers," Mr. Ferguson said. "This means work for 4,000 men for three years and additional work for 4,000 more workers for a period of from two to two and one-half years in industries supplying us with materials.

Running at Top Speed.

"While we were busy before the passage of the public works bill, we are now running full blast and the whole territory adjacent to our plants is beginning to feel the effect of our capacity employment and the greater local spending power that has been made possible."

Commenting on the necessity for coding all American business as quickly as possible, Ferguson expressed hope that this part of the NRA program would be unimpeded by drawn-out disputes over trade unions.

"Trade unionism is undoubtedly an important problem," he said, "but I think the first thing to do is to get all industries coded as quickly as possible with respect to shortening hours, raising wages and respecting fair competition practices. If it is important that there be no competition within an industry between those who have subscribed to Blue Eagle standards and those who have not, it is equally important that competition between coded industries and noncoded industries be ended as promptly as possible. Every industry not coded is an unfair competitor with every industry coded.

Time Element Is Vital.

"In this vast venture time is all important. The first goal of the NRA should be the coding of all industries so that the Blue Eagle will reign both within and between industries. At this pont it seems to me that time should not be lost in long disputes over the issue of unionism. Let us take up that important issue at a later date when the movement to buy and to employ has been put over.

"It sickens me to think of a strike at this time over the long-standing principle of unionism when the whole recovery machinery is working at desperate speed to expand employment."

Union Gets Start In One Ford Plant

Newark, N. J., Aug. 23 (AP).—An attempt to unionize the Ford Motor Co. plant at Edgewater was launched today with at least partial success indicated.

After some 300 of the 2,000 employes at the plant had listened to three American Federation of Labor organizers here last night, it was announced that about 75 per cent had signed union pledges.

Tribute was paid to the organizing genius in industry of Henry Ford, who is an open-shop advocate. The workers were reminded that under Section 7 of the NRA blanket code the right of employes to organize without fear of losing their jobs is recognized.

Eastern Shore Towns Battle Flood Waters

Salisbury, Ocean City and Other Places Inundated; Communication Cut.

Baltimore, Aug. 23 (AP).—Extensive property damage but no loss of life was found by H. Skipworth Gordon, jr., of Easton, Md., in a tour today of the lower Eastern Shore of Maryland, which had been isolated since early today by floods and rain accompanying a gale off the Atlantic.

Gordon was more than nine hours in driving some 200 miles in making the survey for the Associated Press. His report here tonight was the first information of the extent of the damage to the section since other means of communication were broken.

Crops were leveled, all rivers and creeks were overflowing, forcing hundreds of people to the second floors of their homes or to seek refuge on higher ground, and most highways were covered with water, some places to the depth of four feet.

Salisbury Fights River.

Every able bodied man in Salisbury, he said, was called to dig a large ditch to divert the Wicomico River into the main highway between Salisbury and Ocean City, relieving the pressure against the Isabella street dam. The dam, weakened by the flood, threatened to go out, flooding most of the business section.

High waves were breaking through the streets of Ocean City, Md., on the coast and rolling over the narrow strip of land to Sinepuxent Bay.

A gale of between 40 and 60 miles an hour struck Tred Avon Airport near Easton, demolishing three hangars, destroying one airplane and damaging two other planes.

Hundreds of small craft were reported washed away at Potomac Island, Oxford, St. Michaels and Claibourne while several large boats were sunk.

Many Towns Inundated.

Most of Cardova, Greenburg, Goldsboro and Dover Bridge were under water and other towns of the section were reported flooded.

At Salisbury the city's utility commission had met in an emergency session at noon and decided to send the river's overflow around the city. The dam broke a few years ago, causing extensive damage.

The river had backed up behind the dam into the cottages along the banks, submerging the first floors. Many people fled.

All telephone and telegraph communications to the section were broken, Gordon found. Bus traffic was stopped entirely and trains were running far behind schedules.

Tree Injures Man Aiding Wife, Ill

Former Army Sergeant's Skull Is Fractured in Summoning Nurse.

Tossed across his car by the storm, a giant oak tree yesterday stopped the drive of C. K. Chapman, 55, of Forestville, Va., to Leesburg to get a nurse for his wife, who is ill.

Chapman, a former Army sergeant, was knocked unconscious, by the tree, which was more than 4 feet in diameter. Motorists took him to Georgetown Hospital.

He was treated for a fractured skull, concussion and severe head lacerations. The tree blocked traffic on the Leesburg-Alexandria highway near Herndon for three hours.

Virginia Storm Dead Put at 10

sibly averted by two Belleville boys, who waved lanterns and halted the train as it was approaching that town.

Train Stopped in Time.

Engineer Wilkins, of Jersey City, stopped the train 25 feet from the debris of a lumber shanty and a telegraph pole blown down by the gale.

Wide Area Devastated.

The hurricane flooded towns and cities, scattered debris over the countryside, wrecked houses and business buildings and paralyzed shipping.

Reports of electric power line failure were widespread, numerous towns being affected. Four of the fatalities in Virginia were from electrocution.

The strength of the gale was illustrated in New York when a tropical bird, described as a baby Louisiana heron, was blown ashore in Brooklyn.

Streets Deserted.

The streets were virtually deserted, people keeping to their homes. The rain was whipped into huge whorls, swooping and circling about the skyscrapers of the financial district and midtown Manhattan.

Along the Hudson River the ferryboats, still carrying commuters from Manhattan to the Jersey suburbs, hooted and wheezed as they crept through the blinding rain.

Girl Escapes Shark.

The storm beat across the 115-mile stretch of Lond Island with a fury, hurling immense waves into the numerous pleasure resorts from Coney Island eastward to Montauk Point.

Miss Nancy Thompson, of Detroit, fell off Horrock's dock into the river at Island Heights. She was pulled ashore and soon afterward a large shark was seen swimming in the vicinity.

A number of sharks were sighted. Shore residents said the creatures, buffeted by the waves, were seeking quieter water.

Mrs. Myrtle Fowler and her son, Albert, pictured above with firemen, were among 30 persons rescued in the flood-swept section of Hyattsville last night. Mother and son were carried to safety by Chief Noble F. Rushe and J. Wells Fainter, of the Hyattsville Fire Department, also shown.

Power Cut Off, City Borrows Of Baltimore

Swiftly rising waters of the Potomac last night flooded the Benning road power plant of the Potomac Electric Power Co., main source of Washington electric power, precipitating one of the worst power tie-ups ever experienced by the city.

Lights went off for hours, street cars were tied up and lines down. Flooding of the plant cut off all power, and electricity was shunted into the city from Baltimore.

At the peak of the tie-up:

At 8:10 p. m., every volt of electric power in Washington was cut off while a switch-over was made to the lines of the Penn State Power Co., entering the city from Baltimore.

Baltimore power plants, then in use, failed and current was sent through the Consolidated Gaslight and Power Company of Baltimore from Safe Harbor and Hopewood, Pa.

Current Partly Restored.

Current was restored by midnight only to two-thirds of the city.

Northeast, Southeast and Southwest Washington were without power for hours.

Hospitals were functioning by candle light.

Lines of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. were disabled. Street cars were stalled four hours with two-thirds still out at 11 p. m.

Lines of the Capital Traction Co. were out in Northeast and Southeast Washington, power short-circuited by flooded cables at Water and M streets southwest, the cutout section extending from Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest to extreme eastern sections.

Phone Lines Crippled.

More than 6,000 telephone calls poured into the Potomac Electric Power Co. reporting service "out."

An emergency trouble station at Florida avenue and Tenth street northwest supplied small amounts of power during the worst trouble to downtown buildings, where machinery was stalled, elevators paralyzed and service interrupted. Most Government buildings were without power.

Telephone service was hampered with wire trouble and deluges of calls. More than 250 extra operators were summoned to duty, and all emergency crews put to work.

At the power company every extra man available was sent on emergency duty. Until flood waters could be pumped out of the Benning Station and the river dammed out, the city will continue on emergency power.

Officials Fight Flood.

At the Benning road plant, water rose so swiftly pumps were flooded out before they could be started. Four feet of water swirled through engine rooms.

Crews fought to get a 200-foot dam 12 feet high built across the engine rooms. Fire Department pumpers waited to pump water from behind the dam so the engines could be dried and started.

Generators were dry, but equipment to run them was flooded. Highest company officials were directing the fight.

Officials said the waters rose so swiftly the rooms were 3 feet under before aid could be summoned. Crews from power houses in the Washington vicinity reported at the plant to aid in restoring service.

U. S. Coast Guard Officer Is Married

Hazardville, Conn., Aug. 23 (AP).—Miss Lois Covil Gordon, of the staff of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and Lieut. Comdr. William John Kossler, of Pittsburgh, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Gordon, by the Rev. Marian J. Creeger, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Middletown.

Deluge Sinks 'Ark,' Halts Raid on It

Two Swim for Lives as Police Find "Oasis" Is Inaccessible.

The deluge yesterday brought both good luck and bad to the operator of the Ark, anchored in the Potomac near Alexandria, which was to have been raided last night by park police.

The Ark, alleged to be a liquor boat, sank at its moorings and its owners and another man had to swim for their lives. A short time before, Capt. P. J. Carroll, of park police, had been forced by the storm to cancel plans to arrest the operator. High waters made the boat inaccessible from land.

Eleven persons, including women, have been arrested when entering or leaving the boat. Five of them forfeited $5 collateral in Alexandria court yesterday. They were charged with disobeying the "no trespassing" sign placed near the Ark by park police.

Capital Girl, 14, Flees as House Goes Into Sea

Escapes With Hosts When Storm Engulfs Cottage at Virginia Beach.

Visiting at the summer home of friends near Virginia Beach, Va., Jean Riggles, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Riggles, of North Cathedral Mansions, narrowly escaped when yesterday's high winds swept the small cottage into the ocean.

The girl was a guest at the home of Francis Buchanan, former owner of the Buchanan racing stables. Included in the party were Mr. and Mrs. James Menamin, Hampton, Va. Mr. Menamin is golf professional at the Norfolk Country Club.

Warned of the approaching storm, the group prepared to weather it through. Lashing winds, however, soon forced them to abandon the cottage and seek refuge at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach.

The party succeeded in reaching the hotel with their personal belongings as the storm struck full force. The frame cottage they left a few moments before was swept into the ocean. All suffered a severe drenching, but escaped injury.

Flood and Gale Wreck Yorktown

Beach, Docks and Business Section Wiped Out by Hurricane.

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.). Historic Yorktown, 15 miles from this city on the York River, is now a desolate waste as the result of the hurricane that struck the town last night.

Despite a recent tide, the water in the river rose to an abnormal height of over 10 feet and lashed by a 60-mile-gale of wind destroyed what is known as the lower town.

The beach and concession buildings met the full force of the waves and nothing is left intact except the brick bathhouse. In the shopping and shipping section all buildings except brick structures were either wrecked or washed away.

The Baltimore Steamship docks were wrecked and both the Yorktown and the Gloucester ferry slips were washed away.

The long dock of the hotel company and the fishery docks are almost a total loss. The large ice plant and the shipping depot of the fish company are under water. All small craft anchored in the stream were carried away. At historic Jamestown Island, where the first English settlers landed, the bridge connecting with the mainland was submerged, making it necessary to rescue 30 people marooned on the island.

Hostler Killed in Fall From Polo Pony Car

Plymouth, Ind., Aug. 23 (AP).—Harold Quinn, 33 of Westbury, Long Island, N. Y., caretaker of polo ponies used in Chicago Sunday, was killed when he fell from a Pennsylvania horse car attached to a fast passenger train as it passed through here.

The body was found beside the track.

Firemen Save 30 Trapped in Flooded Homes

Wade Through Inundated Settlement; Use Boats, Near Hyattsville.

Thirty persons, nine of them white, were removed from their flooded homes near the Baltimore Highway between Hyattsville and Bladensburg last night as water from the overflowing Eastern Branch threatened to submerge a whole settlement in this district.

Volunteer firemen from the Hyattsville and Bladensburg companies were the rescuers. In some cases a boat was used and in others the firemen waded through water almost to their necks.

The white persons were Mrs. Bubb Fowler, Mrs. Myrtle Fowler and Albert Ernest Fowler, a child; George Wiseman, Stella Wiseman, Dan Wiseman and Bill Wiseman, Carl Blanchard and a clerk in his store at Peace Cross.

Shortly after the families were taken to safety, the water swept through the houses in which they had been trapped. Chief Noble Rushe, and Assistant Chief J. Wells Fainter, of Hyattsville, directed the work.

Fifteen persons were rescued by volunteer firemen on the highway from Beltsville to North Brentwood. Many were in cars. Others were taken from their homes in canoes.

Searchers found four empty automobiles which had been swept from University road leading from Maryland University. None of the occupants had been located early today. It was feared that perhaps some had been drowned. Lights were burning on two of the machines.

Police Rescue Invalid Here

Two Children Also Taken to Safety From Home in Southeast.

Trapped in their home on Yuma avenue southeast by flood waters from swollen Oxon Run, Enoch Thorne, 42, an invalid, and his two small children were rescued by policemen late yesterday afternoon.

Thorne, who has been confined to a bed for six years was at home with his small daughter, Mildred, 10, and his son, George, 5, when the Oxon Run began to overflow. His wife was at work at a local laundry.

As the waters rose, the two children began to cry. Neighbors notified Eleventh Precinct policemen.

The officers not knowing Thorne's condition, called to him several times. When he failed to respond they waded out into the water, which was more than waist deep.

Under the direction of Capt. Sidney J. Marks, and Lieut. Lloyd Kelly, Thorne was placed on a door and taken from the home.

Pvt. George E. Woods brought the small boy out alone, and the other policemen took care of Mildred.

Four Balloonists Arrive for Races

French and Belgian Pilots to Compete in Bennett Event at Chicago.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Two French and two Belgian balloonists arrived today on the liner Champlain to compete in the Gordon Bennett Balloon Race in Chicago.

The Belgians were Philippe Quersin, an airplane pilot during the war who took up ballooning in 1920, and Martial Van Schelle, who was educated at Princeton and has two American uncles, E. P. Russell, New York and Chicago broker, and Gen. I. A. Haines, who is now living in retirement in San Francisco.

The French fliers were George Ravaine, who is about 70 years old, and Georges D. Blanchet.

Limbs were twisted from the great trees in the White House grounds.

Every block of Sixteenth street was encumbered with fallen trunks or heavy masses of broken foliage. Other streets fared scarcely better.

Emergency work crews were put to work clearing the streets of wreckage, and were quickly joined by police and fire squads, called to extricate automobiles or pull trees off roofs and porches.

Police and firemen due for service at 4 p. m. were called early and the day squads were kept late.

Many windows were broken, and lives were endangered by the falling of several walls.

More than 500 subscribers' telephone lines were reported in trouble and many trunk lines going out of the city were broken. Emergency crews of the phone company were forced to work at high speed throughout the day.

Small Boats Damaged.

On the Potomac considerable damage was done to small boats. These were torn from their mooring and many of them later were cast by the rising waters onto the wharves. The Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. annoupced in the afternoon that it would not send its regular boat to Norfolk last night, the one arriving yesterday morning experiencing rough weather.

Cellars near the river were flooded. Some families had to evacuate their homes.

Starting at 4 o'clock yesterday morning traffic at the flying fields was at a standstill, no planes arriving or leaving.

There was no breakdown in the sewage system, but all the emergency pumps were put to work early in the day.

The Speedway and East Potomac Park were closed early in the morning when water rose over the road at Hains Point. The park systems were so littered with trees and broken branches that 200 extra workers were called out to help the 400 on regular duty. Squads were kept for emergency night work.

The American Automobile Association headquarters was swamped throughout the day with calls for information regarding roads, and most tourists delayed their departure from the Capital until today.

Officials refused to make any estimate of damage in the District. The trees wrecked will have to be replaced at an average cost of $20 each. No regret for their loss was expressed as they were principally maples and not considered good shade trees.

The damage in surrounding sections was much heavier than in the District itself.

Power Lines Torn Down.

Telephone and electric light and power wires were torn down by falling trees. Basements were inundated. Streets were flooded. Brooks were turned into rushing torrents that flooded roads in many places to depths of 3 feet or more, stranding many cars and stopping all traffic.

Twenty-one persons, seven of them white, had to be evacuated from their flooded homes between Hyattsville and Bladensburg. Further rescues were made by boats from the Navy Yard.

Parts of Alexandria and Arlington County were submerged and isolated. Trunk lines in the direction of Leesburg, Middleburg and Winchester were broken. Twenty poles of the Virginia Public Service Co. went down, interrupting the lighting system for a number of hours. Emergency crews were called in from adjacent counties to repair both telephone and electric lines.

Washouts on the Pennsylvania tracks between the Capital and Baltimore forced the routing of trains over other lines for several hours till repairs were completed.

While at Norfolk the storm reached a wind velocity of 80 miles an hour, the peak in Washington came in 51-mile gusts shortly before 11 o'clock in the morning.

The highest steady velocity was 34 miles an hour, registered between 9 and 10 o'clock, and the highest average over any hour was 31 miles between noon and 1 o'clock.

The wind rose steadily from 13 miles an hour at midnight till noon. During the afternoon the hourly average fluctuated between 24 miles and 30 miles an hour.

All aviation activities at Quantico, Va., were suspended by the storm. Docks were flooded. Bridges over the Quantico Creek were washed out. Falling trees broke light and telephone lines, interrupting services on both till emergency repairs were made.

It was after sundown, when the force of the storm had spent itself and fears had been allayed, that the serious damaging effects made themselves felt. The Potomac and tributaries commenced to creep toward new high levels. Water commenced to flood streets and highways. Rising above basements of river-front buildings, it invaded the first stories, in many cases rising to a height of 3 feet.

Buses Pressed Into Service.

Water seeping into conduits tied up street cars and electric light and power systems. Emergency bus service had to be installed to replace the suspended street cars in all sections of the District.

At 10 p. m. street lights had to be cut off, and in many residential districts lighting service failed, while in the business section lights were not disturbed, but power was substantially weakened.

Throughout the evening reports were received that Washington was in the center of the storm area, and that another brief blow would follow.

Before midnight the wind had almost died out and the rainfall had almost ceased.

Closed Roads

Much of Rock Creek Park Barred to Traffic by Violent Storm.

Roads temporarily closed, due to the storm yesterday, include:

Sherrill drive closed, as well as most of the north end of the Rock Creek Park.

South end of park open, but motorists were warned against attempting them, as there was great danger of high water and falling trees.

Roads Become Lakes, Waters Sweep Homes

Hundreds of Cars Stalled in Maryland; Police Employ Candles.

Traffic was stalled, electric lights and telephone service nearly eliminated, trees blown down and many homes flooded by the heavy wind and rainstorm that swept through Maryland yesterday.

The Baltimore pike at Beltsville, Marlboro pike below Upper Marlboro and River road at Seven Locks and the Colesville pike at Burnt Mills, became lakes 4 and 5 feet deep and hundreds of feet wide. Traffic was hampered on most major roads and could not pass over many of the lesser highways.

Hundreds of automobiles were stalled with wet ignition and because of the impassable condition of the roads. Seneca Lake overflowed its banks near Dawsonville, causing a halt in Traffic to Poolesville and other northern towns of Montgomery County.

Corn, tobacco and other crops were beaten to the ground by the storm and the loss to farmers is expected to total thousands of dollars in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties.

Many Fields Flooded.

In southern Maryland water several feet deep was standing in many fields and along roads. Maryland State police at Brandywine were almost isolated for awhile by the waters rising around their substation. Failure of the power lines added lack of light and drinking water to many, including the police at Brandywine and Laurel, who depend on electrically driven pumps.

Preparation of meals became a problem for many housewives in rural sections where electricity is used for cooking. Many farms are provided with electric pumps for water, and this also created a dilemma.

The street car line to Rockville was halted about noon. Busses were put into service.

The reservoir at Burnt Mills last night overflowed and flooded the Colesville Pike. Hundreds of trees and electric and telephone lines were blown down.

Nearly 500 cars were halted near Brandywine by 4 feet of water on the highway.

Crain Highway Flooded.

The Crain Highway at Hill's Bridge was flooded to a depth of 4 and 5 feet and traffic to Annapolis halted. The road also was flooded just below Upper Marlboro, where the current was so swift a State Roads Commission truck was washed back into a telephone pole when it attempted to cross the bridge over the Collington and Western branches.

The Marlboro race track was inundated. Four feet of water swept over River road near Seven Locks road and halted traffic. Nearly 20 stalled automobiles were pulled out by firemen and State roads commission men.

Connecticut avenue north of Jones Bridge road in North Chevy Chase was covered with 4 feet of water when Rock Creek overflowed. Traffic to Kensington was halted. Kensington Volunteer Fire Department members pulled six cars out, one of them the car of Clark Riggs, of Garfinckel's in Washington, who was riding with his wife and two children. The water covered the floor of the car, and the two children had to climb up on the back seat.

100 Autos Halted.

College road at Paint Branch was flooded for three-quarters of a mile. More than 100 automobiles were halted. One car overturned in the mud, but it is not believed the occupants were injured.

Police stations were functioning at top speed as were volunteer firemen. Most of them were operating by candle and kerosene lamp. Maryland State Policemen at Brandywine had to wade through 2 feet of water for half a mile to get drinking water. Laurel substation police were in a similar predicament.

In rural sections the gale caused as much damage to crops as the downpour.

The storm caused postponement of the firemen's parade and steeplechase at Sandy Spring until Saturday. A meeting of the Rockville Chamber of Commerce and the President's Emergency Reemployment Committee of Montgomery County at Bethesda, scheduled for last night, were postponed. The carnival of the Rockville firemen at Rockville Fair Grounds, was Peach Shipments Heavy.

Strasburg, Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—More than 200 carloads of peaches have been shipped from this section of the Shenandoah Valley to points north and east since the season opened ten days ago, Southern Railway officials disclosed here.

Salisbury, Md., Safe, Radio Reports Indicate

Communication with Salisbury, Md., at first reported "wiped out," was established last night by Ray Corderman, amateur radio operator of Station W3ZD, with indications that Salisbury was safe.

Mr. Corderman, of 4401 Leland street northwest, was not able to work unhampered communication, but partial reports given him indicated the town was not damaged as extensively as at first reported.

He transmitted 53 messages for a local telegraph company to Norfolk from anxious relatives.

Jail Prisoners Forced to Bail Water in Cells

32 in Fairfax Lockup Take Turns With Buckets During Storm.

Prisoners in the Fairfax County Jail were forced to bail out yesterday. The "bailing out" was neither in the legal or aeronautical sense.

During the storm, water poured through the old roof and the prisoners were forced to resort to buckets and tubs with about 2 inches of water covering the floor.

Several citizens remarked "Most farmers' hogs, at least have a dry place to go when it rains."

There are 32 prisoners in the jail with cell space for 16. Half were sleeping on cots in the corridors. They took turns during the day in bailing water from the floor into tubs which were emptied outside.

The County Board of Supervisors went to Richmond Tuesday in an effort to obtain a Federal Recovery Loan of $50,000 for a new jail. An election on the proposed project is necessary under State law.

Former Game Warden Dies.

Charlestown, W. Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—William W. Burch, 53, a farmer residing near Summit Point, died late yesterday. He was a native of Clarke County, Va., and until a year ago was game warden for Jefferson County.

Arlington Area Roads Flooded And Lines Out

Wind and flood took its toll of roads and communication lines in Arlington County yesterday.

Military road, which runs southwest from the Highway bridge, was under water for more than a mile, blocking traffic.

Near Three Mile Run the Washington-Richmond highway was under two feet of water.

Many streets in Alexandria also were under water and lights were out. Employes at the Ford Motor, Co. plant worked to remove cars from the building when it was threatened by flood.

At Falls Church, the Lee Highway was floaded and closed to traffic, and lights were out in many sections.

More than 200 trees were blown down in the county. Telephone service was disrupted from fallen poles and wires.

Third of Norfolk Under Water; Six Known Dead in Storm; Resorts Destroyed

Loss Estimated At $2,000,000; Ruins Looted

Famous Cavalier Beach, Ocean View Resorts Are Wrecked.

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 23 (via Radio to United Press).—Swept by wind and rain of unprecedented violence, Norfolk tonight was virtually isolated from the outside world, except for radio.

Almost a third of the city is under water. The downtown business district presents a desolate aspect of desolation, with buildings damaged and the streets strewn with debris.

At the time this message was dispatched, six persons were known to have perished in the storm. Two were drowned at Willoughby, hardest hit of all the surrounding communities. Four were electrocuted at Portsmouth. Four others were reported dead.

Looting broke out tonight in the desolated Willoughby and Ocean View areas. Marines aided police in an effort to prevent thievery.

Prepare for Second Gale.

Norfolk officials and citizens had little time to think of organizing for relief of the homeless since weather officials said another gale was on the way.

Property damage has been estimated at $2,000,000 in Norfolk, $1,000,000 at Virginia Beach and $1,500,000 at Ocean View and Willoughby.

The boardwalk and bukhead at Ocean View were destroyed.

As a safety measure all current was ordered shut off because of the number of high voltage lines blown out.

The ground floor of the Ledger-Dispatch office was covered by 14 inches of water and members of the staff did their work in bare feet or boots.

Many on Housetops.

Portsmouth ferries were unable to operate for the first time in 50 years.

Marines and local police were endeavoring to succor more than 100 families, reported marooned at Willoughby. Many of these were on housetops.

The city fire department was making an effort to save the principal power plant of the State, the Electric & Power Co. here.

This plant supplies all electric power for Norfolk and the two largest turbines were under water after the storm. Pumps were being used in an effort to remedy the situation.

10 Square Miles Inundated.

Out of the 36 square miles in the Norfolk area, 10 square miles are covered by water, and this fact contributed to the almost complete intercity disruption of communications between Norfolk, Portsmouth, Newport News, Hampton, Phoebus, Virginia Beach, Ocean View and Willoughby.

Out of 27,000 telephones in the city, 25,000 were out of order tonight. Thousands of trees were blown down along Norfolk streets.

Plate-glass windows by the hundreds were smashed. Thousands of boats were seen on the streets of the city as that mode of transportation became the only one available.

Coast Guard boats were taking people out of second-story windows of houses at Ocean View and Willoughby. Furniture at these places was washed away by the tides.

(Associated Press.)

The northeaster and tropical hurricane which struck the Virginia Coast with millions of dollars damage to the Hampton Roads and Chesapeake Bay areas was felt in almost every section of the State, where trees were uprooted, buildings damaged and crops injured.

Damage undetermined, but admittedly great, was done to the tobacco, corn, apple and peach crops.

Petersburg Dark For Hours.

Fredericksburg reported high winds and rain, which unroofed barns and uprooted trees. A large tree blew down across the grave of Mary Washington, mother of the first President.

Winchester reported heavy damage to apple trees. Peaches, ripe and ready for shipping, suffered still greater damage.

The Ford Motor Co. distributing plant at Alexandria, Va., was flooded as the river flowed over the pier to a depth of two feet. Fifty-three machines were moved to higher ground under their own power. Left to right—Frankie Litz and Vernon Burst, of Washington, and T. T. Henry and William Petty, of Alexandria, employes, who drove the cars to safety.

Roads Blocked To Alexandria As River Rises

Boat Club Under Water; Streets Are Inundated; Stores Flooded.

The Old Dominion Boat Club in Alexandria was five feet under water last night, with the water still rising. The flood reached lower King street and many stores were three feet under water.

All roads leading South out of Alexandria are closed to traffic. At many points along the Washington-Richmond Highway water eight and ten feet deep covered the highway. The Mount Vernon Boulevard, about a half mile north of the city, was under five feet of water.

At King street and Duke street extended, Hooff's Run was 12 feet above normal and still rising. The run at Spring street and Glendale avenue, normally 6 to 18 inches, reached a depth of 10 feet.

Many homes in the lower part of the city have inundated cellars, the water in some cases reaching the first floor.

Damage Heavy At North Beach

Chesapeake Waters Back Four City Blocks Into Summer Colony.

Reports of storm havoc from North Beach, Md., late last night brought word of heavy property damage as the waters of Chesapeake Bay backed more than four city blocks into streets of the summer colony.

No casualties were listed. Five feet of water stretched nearly a mile from West Beach to North Beach. Frame cottages were washed from their foundations and swept into the streets. Thousands of dollars of damage was estimated to summer homes crushed by falling trees.

The dance hall on lower North Beach was reported wrecked by wind and rain. Vacationing families fled to shelter back from shore.

Roads to the beach were reported impassable. Western Branch covered Marlboro streets with nearly 5 feet of water.

Virginia Police Rushed To Storm-Torn Centers

Richmond, Va., Aug. 23 (AP).—T. McCall Frazier, director of the division of motor vehicles, announced this afternoon that he was leaving immediately with 15 motor vehicle policemen for Newport News and Phoebus, which were struck today by the storm.

Frazier said reports received at his headquarters were that property damage was large throughout the Hampton Roads section and that every low area was covered early today by the high tides piled up by the storm.

Washingtonians in Yawl Fight Storm Two Days

A safe anchorage in West River was made yesterday by three Washingtonians who outrode the storm in Chesapeake Bay in a 28-foot yawl.

The trio, Frederick Pilp, Edwin Braumbaugh and William Preston, fought the storm for two days. They were cruising on the boat of James W. Tull, of 1740 Euclid street northwest.

Two Cars Leave Road In Heavy Downpour

Waynesboro, Pa., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—Miss Marion Childs, Deerfield, Mass., received a fractured pelvis and head injuries when a car driven by Miss Clara Bristol, Danbury, Conn., in which she was riding, crashed into a fence and telegraph pole near St. Thomas.

Another crash near St. Thomas occurred when George Bentz, of Pittsburgh, skidded into a pole. Two occupants, Ferdinand and Bertha Springer, of Wilmerding, Pa., were injured. The rain was blamed in both cases.

Storm Hinders Trains Bound For Baltimore

Traffic Goes Through on Delayed Schedule Despite Track Washouts.

Battling floods and washouts last night, railways kept traffic moving between the Capital and Baltimore with difficulty.

The Pennsylvania tracks did double duty after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when they took over the trains of the Baltimore & Ohio.

Traffic was suspended on the B. & O. after a washout between Laurel and Jessups. Work crews expect to have the damage repaired by today.

Delays in arrivals at Union Station varied from an hour and a half to three hours, but the trains came through despite the storm.

The Pennsylvania reported flooded tracks and a slight washout near Tuxedo, Md., but trains were able to pass.

Trains to and from the South were on schedule, except for southbound trains, which were forced to wait for late connections from the north.

Tubercular Camp Closed by Storm

Falling Trees and Floods Drive Children From Outdoor Retreat.

Falling trees and flooded tents yesterday forced closing of the children's health camp of the Tuberculosis Association, at Fourteenth and Upshur streets northwest.

Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody, medical director of the camp, ordered the temporary halting of activities. Several tents were blown down and falling trees on the grounds created a hazard.

An emergency call brought the Rotary Club bus and more than 50 youngsters were safely transported to their homes. The camp will reopen when conditions permit, it was announced.

Storm Damages Farms in Fairfax

Fields Flooded, Corn Down and Trees Uprooted in Many Sections.

The storm that swept Fairfax County yesterday did thousands of dollars damage to farms. Fields were flooded, trees uprooted and growing corn blown down.

Highway department employes were busy all day removing trees from the roads and highways. Many sections of road were covered with water and badly washed out.

Electric current was interrupted throughout the day. Telephone and electric poles were broken off. The damage was being repaired late last night by emergency and regular crews of the two companies.

High Water Threatened In Eastern Panhandle

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—The Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia tonight watched with concern property damage already done by winds and the threat of high waters. More than two inches of rain had fallen by early evening and mountain streams were swelling. Power officials reported damage to poles and wires. Telephone lines also were affected.

1 Dead, Million Loss Gale's Toll In Winchester

Falling Tree Kills Man in Car; Corn Crop Destroyed.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—One man dead, electric and telephone lines down and property damage estimated at $500,000 to $1,000,000 in this section was the toll of a 40-mile gale accompanied by heavy rain which hit Winchester and vicinity today.

In Clarke County, the Shenandoah River was reported rising at the rate of a foot an hour, and scores of summer campers were fleeing.

The greatest crop damage was estimated to be that to corn. Practically every field was leveled.

Frederick County apple orchards were hard hit.

400 Trees Fall In Washington During Storm

Many More Broken May Eventually Die; Debris Cleared by Tonight.

Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parking of the District, estimated last night that 400 trees were blown down in the storm. A much larger number, he said, were damaged, losing limbs which eventually may kill them.

District officials hope to have the broken trees cleared from the streets by tonight. The regular force of about 100 men has been put to work clearing up the debris. The street cleaning department is helping. About 50 unemployed men will be put to work today. Fifteen or 20 trucks will be used tomorrow to carry the wood to the Municipal Wood Yard, where it will be distributed to the poor.

Most of the tree damage was in the northeast and southeast sections. The toll was highest among silver maples. Hardwod trees, such as the American elm, the Oriental sycamore and the red oak, fared better.

Fort Monroe Hit By Ocean Gale

Langley Field Also Suffers; Buildings and Piers Are Damaged.

Baltimore, Aug. 23 (AP). — Fort Monroe and Langley Fields today suffered heavy damage from the waves and wind, according to a wireless report from Col. Tracy, in charge at the fort, to the Third Corps Area Headquarters here tonight.

Col. Tracy reported the hospital was full of refugees, "but no casualties reported so far."

All temporary buildings housing tractors, trucks and modern searchlights were wrecked, magazines flooded, waterfront piers and the railroad trossels demolished and the bridge connecting the fort to the mainland damaged.

Woman Imperiled By Falling Wall

Mrs. H. F. Coakley, of 934 G street southwest, just missed being crushed by a falling brick wall that demolished the back porch and dining room of her home yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Coakley was in the living room at the time. She had started toward the dining room, when the huge wall came crashing through the side of the house, smashing to bits pieces of furniture in its way.

The cave-in was caused by the drenching rain that softened clay and dirt about the wall's foundation.

Middletown Storm Loss Estimated at $50,000

Middletown and other communities were in darkness, with electric lines down. Telegraph service also was crippled. Hundreds of trees have been blown down; while overflowing streams have inundated highways and fields, damaging roads. Corn crops on many farms were total losses.

Bay State Preacher Officer During Week

Framingham, Mass., Aug. 23 (AP).—The Rev. Ernest A. Thorsell will soon do his preaching in the horizon-blue uniform of a State trooper.

He is at the State Police Training School, studying jiu jitsu, pistol markmanship and criminal law, preparatory to becoming a trooper. On Sundays, however, he will park his motorcycle outside the South Foxboro Church and continue his preaching.

Ready results await the offers in Post Classified Ads, the first thing in the morning.

Monument Springs a Leak!

That Is, Rain Pours in on 9, But Old Shaft Sways Nary a Bit in Gale; What a Pageant Viewed From Atop It!

The Washington Monument, resplendent in the driving gale of yesterday, didn't sway a speck, according to the few who watched the magic of the storm from its lofty top—but the roof leaked.

Year in and year out there have been all sorts of stories about how it rocked in the wind. Tales have been told of the Monument moving, from inches to a matter of a foot, when a real storm burst.

Just Like Gibraltar.

Well, one came yesterday, and it brought more wind with it than in any year the oldest guard there remembers. It whooped and howled, and at 50 miles an hour, or more, drove a stinging spray of rain against its stony heights. Nine persons who stayed up through the worst of the gale agreed it remained as stationary as the Sphinx on a hot summer day.

A guard, two newspapermen, a photographer and five tourists from Iowa and Indiana—will swear, with scientists who have conducted tests that very little happens to America's greatest monument when the wind blows. Little except that its roof leaks like a shanty in Old Shantytown, or wherever shanties are.

Few persons braved the Monument yesterday, despite the fact the elevators were running full force. Guards don't remember a da, when business was so dull. But those who went up in the afternoon saw an unforgettable sight.

The rain, in great blankets, swept the city. Wind moved its trees like a bandmaster his baton. Large and small boats bobbed and tossed in surrounding waters. Wet streets gleamed in bright high lights. Lights twinkled in far-away office buildings and houses.

A pageant in water and wind, seen as you can see it nowhere else in the world!

Storm Hits Loudoun County; Damage High

Leesburg, Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—Until a late hour tonight, telegraphic communication in Loudoun County, disrupted by the worst storm this section has had in many years, was still out. Heavy damage was done to corn crops. Unharvested peaches can not be saved, while most apple trees were stripped bare. Railroad travel was stopped all day. Streams have flooded highways and fields.

City Fishless After Storm; Freak Incidents Mark Day

the alarm of residents. One woman wanted the advice of weather experts on whether she should take her family into her basement and stay there till the "hurricane" passed.

The White House, unable to phone the Weather Bureau, sent two wires asking that information be phoned to Col. Louis Howe. When finally C. L. Mitchell, forecaster, was able to get out between calls on his phone, Howe wanted to know whether he should have his father brought away from a shore cottage, which he feared was in the path of the storm.

Many limbs of the trees on the White House grounds went down for the full count before the wind, but the fountain directly in front of the portico of the Executive Mansion remained unconquered.

When the torrential downpour was at is peak, the fountain played on with superb disdain.

With his tent collapsed and demolished by the wind, the Rev Clark Forcey was unable to hold his radio revival meetings at Piney Branch road and Georgia avenue last night. Until the tent is reconstructed, the services will be at the Vermont Avenue Christian Church.

Guards at the Highway Bridge late last night reported waters of the Potomac River to be within 10 feet of the bridge surface and steadily rising.

A short circuit in the power system plunged the bridge in darkness. All lights, including traffic signals, went out shortly after 8 o'clock. Veteran bridge attendants said the water was the highest in history. Special details were safeguarding motorists and pedestrians.

Four passengers and two drivers were rescued by boat from two buses caught by the Potomac flood on Military road at Hoover Airport. The vehicles were caught by the mounting waters and stalled. An owner of a motorboat saw their plight and, cutting across the flooded airports, drove his boat alongside the buses.

The airports were under several feet of water. The flood rose so rapidly that scores of boats, moored to docks, were sunk when their ropes pulled them under.

The American Automobile Association placed all of its trunk phone wires at the service of members to disseminate storm weather information. The Department of Commerce attendant at the airport station, with no airplanes flying in or out, was far busier than normal, answering calls from citizens. Planes on schedule west of Pittsburgh were enjoying good weather, but not those on the Eastern seacoast.

The highest wind velocity in Washington was reached when a single gust attained 51 miles an hour. It lasted but a few seconds, however. The highest sustained velocity was 42 miles an hour. Average velocity in Washington was 25 to 30 miles an hour.

If a hurricane had struck Washington the story would have been vastly different, because hurricane winds range betwen 70 and 75 miles an hour. "Gale" "fresh gale" and "whole gale" winds range between 40 and 70 miles. The highest wind recorded at the Weather Bureau was at Atlantic City, where 64 miles an hour was registered. The highest velocity ever recorded in Washington was 66 miles an hour, in 1896.

The window stuck. He reached on the outside to strike it with his fist. He is in Emergency Hospital suffering from a fractured skull, suffered when he plunged to the ground.

Friday non-meat-eaters will have to rely on canned fish or turn vegetarian, according to local wholesale fish dealers, who report yesterday's storm cramped fishing and crabbing operations all along the Atlantic Coast. Baltimore anticipates the same shortage.

A normal importation of fresh fish is expected early next week. The heavy northeast gale has kept fishing boats close to shore and nets all along the coast have been torn up. A whole wharf was washed away at Yorktown, Va. Communication with fishermen on the Maryland and Virginia coasts was cut off yesterday. All nets were reported down at Point Lookout and high water at Rocky Point made fishing there impossible.

The barometer at the Harbor Police Station yesterday, from 11 a. m. to 4 p. m., registered minus 29. This is the lowest sustained reading here for more than 30 years. It often has gone down that low, but has never held it for more than 15 minutes.

City's Reserves Battle Storm

Firemen Pump in Flooded Cellars; Sewage Plant Sets Record.

All resources of the District government yesterday were enlisted to protect life and property and keep traffic moving during the storm.

Fire Chief George S. Watson called out 60 reserve firemen and two pumping engines to pump water out of flooded cellars and assist in removing debris following cave-ins. The Fire Department switchboard was swamped with calls for aid.

For the first time since its construction in 1908, the District's sewage pumping station at the foot of New Jersey avenue southeast had five storm-water and two sewage pumps working simultaneously, Sanitary Engineer J. B. Gordon reported.

One Usually Adequate.

These pumps have a capacity of 65,000,000 gallons per day, and one storm-water pump usually is adequate even after a cloudburst.

Both the Sewer and the Water Departments furnished men and equipment to aid the Fire Department in pumping the water out of hundreds of cellars. Day-to-day employes who had not been engaged during the day were on duty all night, while foremen remained on the job almost continuously.

The storm sewer at Fifth and Ingraham streets had not overflown at nightfall despite the inability of this system to carry away the water following a cloudburst. Gordon explained that the sewer was able to take yesterday's downpour because it was continuous and at no time reached the cloudburst stage.

Red Lanterns Scarce.

The Sewer Department also provided several hundred red lanterns to the Police Department when the latter reported its supply exhausted.

The Engineer Department, the Fire Department and the Office of Trees and Parkings expect to have extra employes on duty today repairing damage and clearing streets.

Laggard States.

The readiness of many States to make heavy drafts upon public works funds is in sharp contrast with their reluctance to do their share in raising relief funds. These States must provide the larger part of public works funds in order to obtain an allotment from the Public Works Administration. If they are able to do this they are able to contribute to the relief of their own people.

> Federal money paid 91.15 per cent of the June cost of feeding hungry Kentuckians, the local subdivisions 8.5 per cent, and the State paid nothing at all.

Mr. Hopkins warned the assembly that "thousands of Kentucky families" would need relief next winter, and urged it to make some provision for them. He announced that a number of States had acted to make their share of co-operation real. "One thing this proves," he concluded, "is that when a State makes up its mind to provide some of its own dollars to feed its hungry people, it can."

In June there were 3,745,367 families receiving aid from the Relief Administration. The July and August figures are expected to show a slight decrease; but Mr. Hopkins estimates that as many as 3,000,000 families will be on the public relief rolls at the beginning of winter. If another heavy draft upon Federal funds is to be avoided it will be necessary for each State to exercise some self-reliance and public spirit in caring for its own destitute families.

Federal aid is to be extended to unpaid school teachers in rural districts for the purpose of enabling them to keep on the job. By this means thousands of country schools can be kept open to pupils who otherwise would lose a year's schooling. The teachers in question are stranded and would be eligible to public relief in any event. The relief extended to them will be small in individual cases, but it is expected that in the aggregate it will contribute notably to rural education and maintenance of morale. No allowance will be granted for textbooks or other expenses beyond teachers' pay.

In view of the generous policy of the United States in relieving destitution the States can not properly refuse to co-operate. A vigorous expression of public sentiment in each State might do much to arouse executives and legislators to a sense of duty in this emergency.

Eastern Economic War.

The industrial nations of the west have always relied upon their superior efficiency to combat the production of the Orient, where labor costs are decidedly lower. But the competition of cheap labor assumes formidable proportions when coupled with the organizing capacity of the Japanese. British manufacturers have been increasingly aware of this fact, and with the depreciation of the yen it became quickly and painfully apparent to English spinners that India was about to be lost to them as a market. A prohibitive tariff was, therefore, imposed on Japanese textiles by the Indian government.

This step led the Japanese to adopt a boycott of India raw cotton. The move proves to be rather an empty gesture for the present since by the middle of June Japan's spinners had already completed their purchases of cotton for the current year, and they bought more from India than for any year since 1929. The effect of the boycott, therefore, will not be known for many months, and before that time it is anticipated that measures can be taken to solve present difficulties in a more reasonable manner than through economic war.

The case is not one-sided, by any means, and it offers an interesting experiment in solving a serious problem in international competition. Japan is a good customer of the British Empire, as a rule buying more than she sells to it. In the case of India the trade balance has been against Japan every year except in 1923. The British Empire takes 29 per cent of Japan's entire exports and 53 per cent of her textiles. So, while the British producer of raw materials is benefited by the Japanese trade, the British manufacturer bears the brunt of it.

American cotton is also paying its part in the situation. It is better than India cotton, and the low prices of the last two years have resulted in its use by Japanese spinners when possible. Another factor which has caused strain between Japan and Great Britain is the duty of 400 per cent which Japan placed on India pig iron. This closing of the Japanese market resulted in the shutting down of the important Tata works in Bombay. The extreme nationalism displayed on both sides has apparently not produced favorable results, and both governments are endeavoring to solve some of the difficulties at the Simla conference.

The Japanese government has suggested controlling exports and prices, in return for which it will expect admission of certain goods on competitive terms. The Indian government has to consider the low purchasing power of the Indian consumer so that he shall not be deprived of the possibility of buying cheap goods, and it must also protect the market for his cotton crop. It will be interesting, therefore, to see to what extent a satisfactory adjustment can be effected. That Japan is also planning to extend her competition in many lines of manufactured goods to all markets of the world is indicated by the appointment of a commission to visit all Latin-American countries in the interest of trade development. It is evident that the United States and European nations which are turning to South America with renewed interest in these markets for exports will meet with keen rivalry from Japan.

State Liquor Control.

With the possibility that ratification of the twenty-first constitutional amendment may be consummated within two and one-half months, thereby throwing responsibility for regulation of liquor upon the States, many of them are considering new laws for this purpose. Repeal of prohibition would simultaneously obligate the Federal Government to prevent the invasion of dry States by liquor from wet States, but each State must determine its own liquor control policy.

Before the adoption of Federal prohibition thirty-two States had prohibitory laws, some of which have been repealed or modified, and the question as to how hard liquor shall be dispensed is pressing for an answer. Many wets who have labored earnestly for the abolition of national prohibition are as intent upon securing proper State regulation as the most ardent drys, and are equally determined that the abuses of the old days must not be permitted to return. But no State seems as yet to have hit upon an ideal plan of regulation.

The sentiment so far expressed against the eighteenth amendment indicates that very few States will return to absolute prohibition. There is a general demand for sensible State laws, under which regulations will not be too severe, and taxation not excessive. The moderate elements among both wets and drys appear to agree that a sane middle course will be best.

Two Storms Clash.

The tail end of the Bermuda hurricane coming upon the retreating northern storm which originated last week north of the Great Lakes resulted in the freakish and violent weather which has prevailed this week. The wind's velocity was enough to uproot trees and cause minor damage in Washington, but along the coast heavy and erratic gales played havoc. The center of the tropical storm passed westward into southern North Carolina yesterday afternoon. Its fringes extended as far north as Eastport, Me., and as far south as Jacksonville. Torrential rains fell in most of the area covered by the storm. Flooded highways, marooned automobiles, drenched and flattened fields, damage to orchards, and miscellaneous wreckage marked the passage of the storm.

It is rare, indeed, that two "cyclones" of such enormous extent combine to lash the Atlantic coast. The northern cyclone moved northeastward into the Atlantic last Monday. Its effects were noted in lowered temperature, rain, and moderate winds. The cyclone or hurricane which developed off Bermuda last week became manifest in this region on the heels of the northern disturbance. As usual, the wind was westward on the northern edge of this storm, and as it struck the coast its course was deflected to the southwest. The furious gales off Hatteras and Norfolk dwindled to brisk winds over this stretch of coast, but Chesapeake Bay was visited by winds of such violence that the waters resembled those of the ocean in a gale.

Although the confused winds and persistently heavy rainfall aroused apprehension that the storm might reach hurricane proportions, the sum total of damage in this region was comparatively small.

Brain Structure and Crime.

The faculty which permits man to associate symbols, such as the combination between written characters and ideas, is the phenomenon which sets man apart from animals. This higher faculty is made possible by the presence in the human brain of a thin external layer, known as the cortex, which developed only recently as compared with the great passing of time, during which brains of a similar structure functioned without it. Yet this thin tissue holds the entire fabric of civilization, since medical science finds that when it is impaired the individual is reduced to relying on instinct and unconscious habits.

In his valuable studies at the Neurological Institute of New York, Dr. Frederick Tilney has found that a distinct relation exists between an impaired cortex, with consequent malfunction of the brain, and criminal youths. Mild attacks of inflammation of the brain resulting from various diseases frequently leave the cortex definitely shrunken, if not completely atrophied. When this occurs in adults their behavior patterns are already so well formed, as a rule, that their conduct is not seriously altered, but when the cortex in children has been damaged they lack the ability to follow reasoning and make deductions which result in intelligent action, and, therefore, their behavior is different from that of the normal child.

Any impairment of the mental faculties must inevitably result in social mal-adjustment. It does not necessarily mean that a youth commits a crime purely because his brain does not function perfectly, but rather that his handicap substantially subtracts from his ability to carry his burden of life. Physical and mental deficiencies will reduce his feeling of equality and he will not be deterred from evil acts by considerations which would restrain one with normal mental faculties.

Much has been contributed to knowledge of the brain structure and functioning, but Dr. Tilney intimates that greater research will be necessary before generalizations can be demonstrated as facts.

Recovery Curves.

There is an old saying that the fate of the world might have been changed if Cleopatra's nose had been an inch shorter. At this crisis it is suggested that a mighty change might be wrought in the economic destiny of America if the waist lines of the ladies should fill out by a mere inch. A shorter nose on an Egyptian queen may have saved her crown, but if a slight expansion in the feminine waist line can rout a great depression the phenomenon will be even more striking.

Rumor has it that the feminine form is to be rounder. The style trek back to curves appears to be already under way. And it might not be a bad suggestion for General Johnson and Secretary Wallace to look this proposition over at once.

Perhaps the real fillip the recovery program needs is a little patriotic acquisition of weight by fashionable females. Blue Eagles might be awarded to those coded for increased poundage. A little plumping of the ladies at this time might rescue the farmer. A new deal in contour might whirl the wheels of the great textile industry. While many are inclined to commend the return of the undulating figure on aesthetic grounds, others are not unimpressed with the argument that the plight of the farmer is not to be dissociated from the caprices of womankind. As the boyish figure triumphed over symmetry and amplitude the denizens of the furrow lost their profits. And that is the nub of it all.

It is worth while to do a little figuring over the possibilities of a rounder figure. With sixty million women, a five-pound increase in the weight of each means 300,000,000 pounds. All this, translated into terms of extra butter, meat, cream, and bread necessary to achieve this national weight goal, demonstrates what might be accomplished in aid of the farm belt.

The return of the long skirt is announced. Here is the prospect of further help from the ladies. If modern woman deserted the farmer, she no less neglected the cloth maker. While she is recouping the symmetry that was her heritage, she is said to be renewing her alliance with the textile industry. Who can say what wonders a few extra inches of cloth would work for national recovery?

As a potential, vital cog in the recovery machinery it is impossible that General Johnson and Secretary Wallace will fail to give consideration of the cause of the curveful figure and the mission of the longer skirt.

A popular car is advertised as strong enough to carry an elephant on its top, and many cars in Washington yesterday undertook to carry uprooted trees.

Somebody has suggested that the little brown hen should be substituted for the Blue Eagle, but maybe there is enough cackling already.

The average man is trying to recoup his fortune, so that he can have as much fun as he had when he was broke.

From the London Times.

We publish the fullest and most considered pronouncement on left-handed writing which has reached us in the course of a lively correspondence. The topic was raised by a request for advice whether it was or was not well to insist at school upon the use of the right hand for writing. The inquirer's experience was that boys who wrote with their left hands were apt to be slovenly not only in their writing but also in their thinking. That slovenliness others have stoutly denied; but one suggestion is that the appearance of it may be caused by a tendency in left-handed people to read from right to left, which would make written and printed matter, and especially figures, much more difficult to take in.

Then came the question whether or not compulsory use of the right hand for writing by left-handed children was likely to induce stammering. Our correspondent, "Medicus," does not deny this; but he says that it is difficult to discover what, if any, connection exists between stammering and left-handedness, because stammering occurs in right-handed people.

A surgeon thinks that compulsory right-hand writing is likely "to encourage an inferiority complex;" and it is not unreasonable to suppose that a sense of guilt (or, at least, of being "different") and the enforced struggle to do as others do might easily result in some disability or trouble of which stammering might be only one, and not an invariable, sign. The parent of left-handed children may have to choose between allowing them (or seeing that others allow them) to write as comes natural to them and letting them run the risk of nervous or other afflictions through being forced into the usual practice. The choice would not be easy.

Probably the most sensible course would be to induce a left-handed child, as gently and as early as possible, to use his right hand, not instead of but as well as his left hand in writing, holding out the reward that, when both are reasonably efficient, he shall take his choice and be allowed to maintain it at school. On all but very highly strung or unconquerably left-handed children this ought not to put an undue strain. And, indeed, it would be no bad thing to give right-handed children the same chance of ambidexterity.

NO STOCK ORDERS BY PHONE

("No member of the exchange or firm registered thereon or employe thereof shall solicit margin accounts or offer securities for sale by communicating with any person at his home or place of residence, unless such person shall have previously given express permission in writing."—From the New York Stock Exchange rules.)

"Hello, is this Mr. Twitchell?"

"Yes, sir."

"This is Eddie Noofle down at Miffen & Miffen's brokerage office."

"Oh, yes, Hello, Eddie. What's a good buy in this market?"

"I can't tell you without a letter from you."

"What kind of a letter?"

"A letter telling me that I can tell you."

"Stop aggravating me."

• • • •

"No fooling, Elmer. It's a new rule. We can't solicit business or offer advice over the telephone without the customer's consent."

"I give you my consent. What's doing in the market this morning?"

"Oh, come now, be sensible. What's good? How about Libby Owen?"

"Libby Owen is a very good stock, Mr. Twitchell, but I am not allowed to say so by phone."

"They tell me Woolworth is a good buy at present levels?"

"I am firmly of that opinion, but I couldn't think of saying so unless I have your written permission."

• • • •

"What would you do about International Pretzel? I have 20 points in it now."

"It is my best judgment that you should sell and take your profit, and if it were not for the rigid exchange rule which forbids me from giving an opinion to any client who has not written me a formal letter I would tell you so."

"Do you consider the alcohol stocks worth a play now?"

"By all means, and I can't tell you how it pains me to be barred from so stating."

"I understand. Your conscience would trouble you if you gave me the slightest information without having a letter from me authorizing you to do so?"

"That's it exactly. For me to tell you to buy Central now, which I think is good for 20 points, or to pick up some oils for a big rise which nothing can stop, as I see it, would be against the ethics of the Stock Exchange."

"You can't tell me a thing, then?"

"Not a thing."

FLAW.

Your voice no echo sound can re-create,
Your hands are smoother textured than the skies.
Your eyes no pure blue star can emulate,
No music peer the glory of your sighs.
The darkest night but glorifies your hair.
No bud's as dainty as your finger tips;
No honey bees may hope or ever dare
To brew the honey sweetness of your lips.
No paler lilies ever graced a field
No garden yet has borne a rose to yield
A rarer essence than your own perfume.
But something makes me keenly conscious that
I'll never breed a liking for that hat.

The Hungry Deserve No Less Sympathy Because They Once Fared Well

By Robert Quillen.

ROBBING Peter to pay Paul doesn't improve the general average of prosperity.

When the Government began its economy program by quitting numerous activities and discharging the help, there was a chorus of approval from weary taxpayers.

The people had been taught to regard all Government employes as "job holders." The inference was that anybody who worked for the Government did little or nothing to earn his pay. He was a burden and a leech and a grafter, and firing him out of his soft snap served him right and relieved the public of an unnecessary expense.

But that isn't the whole of the story.

The first and chief concern of the recovery plan is the creation of cash customers. It is conceded that no land can prosper unless its people are earning money and spending it.

To multiply the number of cash customers, the Government is preparing to spend several billions of public money.

Perhaps the greater part of the money will be expended wisely, for permanent improvements; but the fact remains that the primary purpose in spending it is to place money in the pockets of people who will spend it again.

And all of it is the taxpayer's money.

Now, assuming that the plan is wise and will indeed start the wheels of industry by providing numbers of people with spending money, what is gained by taking the money from one group of people and giving it to another?

Will the new job holders spend their earnings more freely than the old job holders?

Doubtless many of the Government's former activities were unnecessary. But the people employed to do the work were not to blame.

They were, for the most part, poor people who worked honestly and efficiently for small pay. Few could live a year on their savings.

It isn't fair or right to make the old job holders jobless in the name of economy when every town in the land is planning new ways to spend public money and enlist a new army of job holders.

Comment of the Press

Topeka Capital.

What is believed to be the first court decision on the NRA comes from Chicago in a strike of members of the International Ladies Garment Workers employed by the La Mode garment factory. The union declared a strike following failure to adjust differences of hours and wages and recognition of the union. The company asked an injunction against interference by the union.

Judge H. M. Fisher, of Chicago, promptly denied the injunction on the ground that the employers did not come into court with clean hands. They were operating in violation of the recovery act, which the court upheld, quoting the first section of the act declaring that a national emergency exists, and provisions under the act fixing maximum hours and minimum wages, both of which the court declared the La Mode Co. violate. Judge Fisher also ordered cessation of the strike pending acceptance by both parties of a week of 40 hours and minimum wage of $12 a week. The evidence showed and the company admitted that the company had been working its employes 52 hours at from $6 to $8.50 a week.

Fewer Families in Need.

Kansas City Star.

If the decline from April to June in the number of American families receiving public relief has been continued to date and is to continue, as expected, until November, the total reduction will be more than 35 per cent. That would be one significant phase of progress toward recovery. It is conceivable that, if the new employment of workers reaches or approaches the figures contemplated, the reduction may be nearer 50 than 35 per cent.

Such a hopeful view is suggested by the report of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, showing 3,745,367 families being aided through national, State and local agencies in June, as compared with 4,445,338 families in April. The decline for the two months was more than 15 per cent.

Long Hours on the Farm.

Springfield (Minn.) Advance-Press.

The farmer is wondering how he can be expected to work from sun to sun with chores to do on Sunday, while other workers get a 40 or 48-hour week. He couldn't make his living on a 48-hour week. The short work week is inevitable for industrial workers. The farmer doesn't deny it. But isn't he entitled to the same consideration?

ONE SOLUTION.

I haven't any knowledge of political economy;
I'm just a common pusher of a quill;
I never studied Euclid or the masters of astronomy;
All mathematics bothered me, but still

For the problems which are intricate I offer no solution.
I know that water doesn't run up hill.
For high financial matters I've no gift of elocution.
I think the man who can should pay his bill.

And how slowly cash is coming to the till.
And some of them are rich folks, for I've heard their names and know them.
They continue asking shops their wants to fill,
But appear to be insulted by a bill.

Now I haven't any knowledge of inflation or deflation
And I haven't any counsel wise to spill;
I merely think 'twould help us all throughout this troubled nation
If everyone who can would pay his bill.

Carlisle Bargeron

Bargeron.

GEN. JOHNSON'S rather heated resentment toward the editorial criticisms that he was advocating a boycott and in general stirring up dangerous forces in the country, is encouraging because it seems to betoken a revision of methods and the further pursuit of the NRA program in a more wholesome way. But the fact remains that this resentment is unjustified.

The strong-arm methods, the talk of boycott and of jamming things down people's throats were unmistakably coming from the top. The general himself specifically used the word "boycott" in his St. Louis speech. The whole administration of the NRA has so far been wrapped in the intolerant, war-like atmosphere. Why, every story about the general himself has emphasized his hard-boiledness and he has spoken of men and businesses getting "scrambled in the omelette" with a felicity that a battle commander speaks of his dead.

The truth is that the business men who have contacted the NRA have found the general the most reasonable one of the bunch. That is not the picture, though, that has gone out around the country.

IT has been reported that the general himself was utterly disgusted over the brainstorm of one of his sudordinates that conveived the Army system of generals and lieutenant generals and colonels and lieutenant colonels. This pitched the plane of the campaign as much as any other one thing. And it is well that it disgusted the general. Because anyone who knows anything about human nature at all, knows that there is nothing so likely to make the average citizen completely lose his sense of proportion as to tell him he is a general or a colonel when he isn't.

We had an example of the consequences of this military endowment right here at home. One good woman, so endowed, and with undoubtedly the best of intentions in the world, gave an interview to the press in which she told of the campaign to be conducted among the housewives to get them to sign a pledge not to trade with anyone who did not display the NRA insignia. In the first place, I should like to know just where else an obdurate housewife would trade, because every business by hook or crook is getting one of those NRA things.

This good woman anticipated, though, that some housewives might not want to sign up.

"Of course," she said, "we will have to punish them."

• • • •

NOW just what had she in mind? Does she mean that she would burn the housewife's house down, or visit her in the stealth of the night? She has no more right to punish anyone than I have and if she should attempt it she would most certainly land in police court or get hurt in the immediate punishing process.

Indeed, an enthusiast did throw a lead pipe through the plate glass window of a store in Baltimore because he couldn't see the Blue Eagle and he was most severly dealt with by a police magistrate. And one of the things that caused the NRA to warn local boards on Tuesday that they had no authority to take away anybody's blue hawk regardless of the circumstances was a report from a Southern city that an expansive local board of generals and colonels had done this to a merchant who insisted upon keeping his store open late of nights. Incidentally, this merchant had done exactly what the NRA wanted. He had employed additional men instead of reducing his hours of operation as his self-appointed judges had done.

IT is hoped that the reported change of heart on the part of the NRA is complete. It seems to get off to a new start. The terms "revolution" and "victory of the proletariat" should be planted by a vocabulary devotee that it is a movement to restore both industry and labor, not to destroy one of them.

And, perhaps, one of the things the general should do is to have some new sketches of himself sent out. At his next press conference, for example, he could appear in a new role, not the role of the juggernaut crashing everything in his path, but as the quiet, calm, determined administrator.

I am not a costumer, so to speak, and do not know exactly how he can effect this change. But as a suggestion he might, instead of sweeping into the press assemblage as he does, walk in slowly with his right forefinger pressed against his temple. And leave Miss Roginson, his much publicized stenographer, at least 50 feet behind.

I may be prejudiced, but I hate to think that any part of my destiny is resting on her shoulders as has, heretofore, seemed the case.

The meeting of the club will be in charge of Capt. of Police John S. Arnold. Irving Diener, president, will present the medal.

2 More Trophies Given.

Trophies and cups are being added daily to the collection District firemen are securing for the winners of events in the National Firemen's Labor Day Parade.

The two latest ones are the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the Georgetown Progressive Merchants Association. Both are handsome trophies and will be used as first prizes.

Several cups have yet to be secured and the trophy committee will appreciate any concern's donation of them.

Culbertson's Bridge

Doubling a Slam Contract.

When two good teams meet at the bridge table they naturally have a great deal of respect for each other's game. Thus, when one good team reaches a slam contract their opponents will not arbitrarily double this contract merely because they have some vague hope of setting it. After all, why double for 50 or 100 points when the contract may be redoubled and you may lose 400 or 500 for your trouble? No good pair is going to reach a slam and go down more than one, or possibly two tricks at the outside, and so the percentages are definitely against the double.

Therefore, when a good player does double a slam contract that the opponents reach without being pushed to it defensively, he must have some reason for so doing. I have discussed at other times Mr. Theodore Lightner's convention that when the defending side, at some time or other, bids a suit and the opponents reach a small slam in another suit, a double of this slam by the player who has over-called means that he does not want his suit opened. Most good players should be able to figure out the meaning of this double just from the logic of the situation. Without a double, the natural impulse is to lead your partner's suit; therefore, a double by the player who has previously bid the suit must be a desperate effort to try to convey to partner that something out of the ordinary is desired. Of course, it is now the duty of the opening leader to try to figure out from his own hand and from the bidding what lead is desired. Very o[f]ten the occasion is that partner has a void of some unmentioned suit and wants that suit led, and the opening leader can tell that is the case by his own distribution.

The hand below shows an instance of a double or a slam contract, which, even though the defending side had not entered the bidding at all, conveyed a very clear message to the opening leader that a certain lead was desired.

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

East	South	West	North
1♡	Pass	6♠(1)	Pass
Pass	Dbl.(2)	Redbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—This bid, of course, is not to be recommended. West's proper bid is two spades, which will enable him to get more information before bidding a slam. This particular West player was the gambling type and he did not have too much confidence in his partner. Due to the fact that he had both side suits controlled and had two cards of the suit his partner had bid originally, he decided to immediately contract for the small slam and hope for a favorable opening.

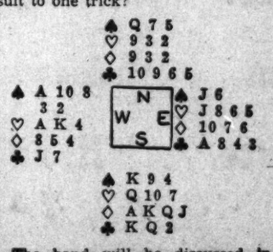
2—This was the brilliant bid which saved the day for North and South. From the bidding, unusual as it was, South felt fairly certain that the West player had control of the diamond and club suits, or, at the worst, had a singleton in one of them. He felt certain that Declarer had a minimum of two hearts in his hand, as with a singleton or void in partner's suit it is highly improbable that he would immediately jump to six spades over the Opening bid, as this Opening bid must have encouraged him to some extent.

Furthermore, South greatly feared that Dummy might have some side suit which would give Declarer discards. Due to all these facts it seemed imperative to him that his partner should open hearts through the probable King of hearts in Dummy in the hope that 2 heart tricks might be taken immediately. Finally, South quite correctly reasoned that the one way to convey the message about the Opening lead to his partner was by doubling this contract. He knew that North would know that he was not doubling merely with the hope of picking up 50 or 100 points just because he had some outside hope of setting the contract—the Double must call for one specific lead and on the bidding there can be only one lead which is desired. The bidding was short and sweet and neither clubs nor diamonds were mentioned. However, the Opening bid was one heart by the hand which was now the Dummy. South, therefore, to have any excuse at all for doubling, must have some heart holding over Dummy and thus must want hearts led.

South's message was almost instantaneously codified by North, and although he had a very natural and logical club lead, with no logical heart combination to lead from, he immediately opened the Ten of hearts. Of course, South took two heart tricks immediately and set the contract, whereas with any other Opening seven would have been a laydown.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If West had overcalled South's bid of one diamond with one spade and if North, after South had bid one notrump on the second round, had given a belated raise to two diamonds, which East had overcalled with two hearts, when both sides had a score of 60 on the rubber game and East and West were vulnerable, how should South, after becoming Declarer at a contract of three diamonds, play the club suit in order to limit the losses in the suit to one trick?



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

"I think that the girl just off to college would be wise to plan her wardrobe carefully so that it will contain only essentials. To keep it from being bulky, she should have one or two sets of accessories—say black or brown—that will go with most of her clothes. It is sure to be smarter this way and it will work in with a budget. Quality can not be stressed too highly—especially in campus things—because they are often worn all four years. Of course, some novelties will tone up one's collection, but let them be less expensive because they are used less." We think this excellent advice—we have taken it—and prepared for it—we know what is right—what not to take—wherever you are going. So check over the list (to the left)—and let us help you get ready.

Flashes From the Radio Dial

FOOTBALL makes its bow in the 1933 season considerably ahead of time when the closing periods of the East-West All-Star Grid Classic are broadcast from Soldiers Field tonight. It will be another of the Century of Progress superattractions.

The team representing the East has been coached by Dick Hanley, of Northwestern University. Howard Jones, coach of the Southern California Trojans, handled the Western eleven. WRC will go on the air with its portion of the game at 10:15 p. m.

Another broadcast of sporting interest tonight will be the reenactment in Husing's dramatization of the 1932 World Series of how Babe Ruth, heckled by players in the opponents' dugout, stepped up to the plate, pointed to a section of the bleachers, and then proceeded to hit a home run exactly where he had indicated.

WJSV will carry the baseball episode at 9:30 p. m.

Because of Rudy Vallee's auto crash Monday night there came near being a Connecticut Yankee broadcast tonight without Rudy. Alice Faye, a dancer, who was riding with him, required hospital attention, the car was damaged to the extent "of about $2,000" (which shows he doesn't travel in one of popular make). Apparently Vallee was luckier than either the lady or the car.

With Rudy tonight will be Helen Hayes, of the screen play, "Another Language," and Harold Van Duzee, tenor, who will sing a number which popularized him throughout the country, "Laugh, Clown, Laugh." Joe Penner, comedian, "the Man with the Duck," and "Pops and Louie," 12-year-old colored entertainers, "miniature Mills Brothers," will furnish the comedy. (WRC, 7 p. m.)

WHEN Abner Peabody, of Lum and Abner, who will greet you as usual this evening, made a deal with a circus which had been stranded in their mythical rural community and thus brought an elephant into the script, neither he nor Lum had any idea that about 15,000 listeners would try their hand at naming the animal.

When the pair announced they were in the market for a name for the animal there was such a response that it became necessary to employ ten girls to sort the mail before the name of "Buttercup" was finally selected.

In keeping with the times more than 300 persons suggested "NRA" and there were also several hundred combinations of the names of Lum and Abner, such as "Ablum," "Lumab" and "Absolum." Many listeners proposed the names of elephants in their local zoo, such as "Tandra," "Pee We," "Satchel" and "Schnozzle."

Abner also acquired an old toothless lion in his deal with the circus people. The beast, however, escaped from the basement of the Jot 'Em Down Store, and ever since nightly lion hunts have been a feature of the community life in Pine Ridge. Upon one occasion the animal was recovered by a little girl who captured him with a saucer of milk.

Practically the entire staff of local N. B. C. announcers are talented. Out of the eight heard regularly on the air six are singers: Fred Shawn, bass; Aruthur Godfrey, bass barytone; Edwin Rogers, barytone; Bob Youse, tenor; Bill Abernathy, bass; Stanley Bell, barytone.

Within the next few weeks an all-announcers' program, featuring solos by each announcer, will be broadcast.

EVERYBODY in Washington probably knows all about Al Jolson because he was born here (Asa Yoelson is his real name). He lived on Four-and-One-Half street and I heard him say one night that he used to sell newspapers outside the Willard Hotel. However, how many know that his equally famous teammate on tonight's broadcast formerly drove a taxicab in Denver?

Taxicabs must have had wider seats in those days than now because Paul Whiteman weighed 250 pounds even then; he went up to 303, and recently performed the miracle of cutting his weight down to 150. Although Paul has made his name in the jazz field, Capt. Taylor Branson, leader of the United States Marine Band, tells me that he was a first-rate viola player. This must have been true because Whiteman later played in the Denver Symphony. Orchestra and at the San Francisco Fair was featured in a 112-piece orchestra. I think Capt. Branson said that Paul once played under Victor Herbert.

During the war Whiteman conducted a 40-piece Navy orchestra and almost drove Secretary Daniels to distraction supplying uniforms big enough for Paul to keep him properly clothed. It was said then that he could "bust" out of anything. At any rate with the war at an end he lost no time busting out of the Navy. His jazz experience began in a hotel orchestra at Santa Barbara in California, but he made his first real hit at Atlantic City.

"Only four couples came to our opening," Whiteman said telling about it, "but we were encouraged because they danced and danced and did not stop. We kept it up for them two hours after our closing hour.

"The second night the same four couples came and brought 20 of their friends. After a week every table was taken every night."

The band's first vaudeville week brought $900, the night he played for the Prince of Wales at Clarence Mackay's he received $6,000 and his portion of each of the weekly broadcasts with Jolson is supposed to bring him $5,000. Paul is now 42 years old and Al Jolson 47.

"THREE MAIDS AND A FIREMAN" will be an up-to-the minute version of "Three Maids and a Mike" over WJSV tomorrow night. You guessed it! It will be a ballyhoo for the National Firemen's Labor Day Parade.

Private Harry Bell, of the Washington Fire Department, will be the fireman. The three maids, dressed in firefighters' uniform will make up the rest of the program.

Which gets us to "What should we tune in on today?" "Food Fallacies," by Dr. Arthur P. Kraetzer, of Lenox Hill Hospital, New York, may reassure us that it is all right to keep on our present unbalanced diet (WJSV, 10:45 a. m.). . . . Mme. Winifred Christie, English pianist, will give a recital on a two-keyboard piano (WMAL, 3 p. m.). . . . "Lilie Lala," de Maupassant's play, is the Dramatic Guild offering (WJSV, 7:30 p. m.). . . . Countess Albani in songs and B. A. Rolfe with his bass drum will be New York's contribution in "Hands Across the Border" (WMAL, 9 p. m.). . . . Young Senator Bob La Follette will be the NRA speaker (WJSV, 10:30 p. m.). To be sure that he will get over all right a special broadcasting crew is flying to the home of John D. Rockefeller, jr., in Maine with a field amplifying unit for his NRA radio debut Sunday night.

Arthur Godfrey, N. B. C. local announcer, who composed "Pale Potomac Moonlight," which has been played frequently over the radio, is whistling and humming a new number around the studios. Godfrey's latest creation is "Lovely Melody" and he plans to publish it next month.

Who is the most hissed villain on the air?

Uriah Cadwalder, the hated Nemesis of Capt. Henry of "Show Boat" (WRC, 8 p. m.), probably is the most thoroughly despised character of radio. He is a villain of the old school with the snarling sneer which should come from a mouth cloaked in flowing black mustaches. Every Thursday night he makes the fists of millions clench.

A certain amount of admiration is due Cadwalder. He may not have a heart of gold, but he has a thick skin. Despite all the victories over him by the forces of sweetness and light, the fellow always comes back for more. As one admiring fan wrote him, "Boy, I'll have to hand it to you; you certainly can take it."

IF Ted Church at Columbia didn't know what a "hurricane" was he found out yesterday, when with the best intention of helping the police at Alexandria, he broadcast over WJSV what was construed as a "hurricane" warning. A hurricane hitting Florida or the Bahamas, is not, the source of much concern here, but when the natives of the Capital heard that they might be in the midst of one at 2 p. m. that was different. They are still cooling off the telephone trunk lines into the broadcasting staations and newspaper offices.

Hereafter when anybody gives Ted a weather tip of an alarming nature no doubt he'll do as the newspapers have learned to do long ago—call up the Wether Bureau and verify.

La Plata Plans Firemen's Day

Half Holiday Is Declared for Chapel Point Picnic Aug. 30.

La Plata, Md., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—An afternoon picnic at Chapel Point August 30, sponsored by the La Plata Volunteer Fire Department, is arousing much interest in Charles County. Most business houses have agreed to declare a half-day holiday.

The fire department has held an annual carnival in July, but because of business conditions it decided to dispense with the carnival this year. However, to meet current expenses this picnic is planned.

Many events are scheduled. Perhaps the most interesting will be the "Old Men's Baseball Game" between La Plata and Bryantown. Other events are trap shoot, parachute jump from airplane, swimming races, boat races, beauty contest and fire engine demonstration.

An old-fashioned Southern Maryland dinner on the shore will be served from 1 o'clock to 8 o'clock. Dancing will begin at 8:30.

1,000 Strike Because Mine Discharged 2

"Sympathy" Vote to Be Taken Elsewhere in Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 22 (AP).—More than 1,000 men at the Pittsburgh Coal Co.'s Montour, No. 10, mine struck today, the fourth time in a month. The men quit because the company discharged two men.

"Indignation meetings" are planned at a score of other Pittsburgh coal operations in the district and sympathy strike votes will be taken.

Complaints have been filed with the NRA Coal Mediation Board. The miners say the company is discriminating against men who have been active in unionization work.

John F. Dewey, Federal labor conciliator, was ordered from Washington to seek to have the men go back to work until the NRA board has had time to act.

The recurring trouble at Montour No. 10 has been caused by disagreements between the men and the company over dismissals of miners.

Coshocton, Ohio, Aug. 23 (AP).—Investigators leaned to a theory of suicide today in the death of Fred S. Wallace, 61, militant newspaper editor, publisher, whose weighted body was found in the Muskingum River last night.

Coroner F. W. Craig, who with Proscutor R. E. Lyons, began a study of circumstances surrounding the publisher's disappearance three days ago, said self-destruction was indicated.

They pointed to the fact that at the Coshocton Tribune office, employes reported finding the publisher's billfold and other valuables after he disappeared.

Baton Rouge, La., Aug. 23 (AP).—A conference of Southern senators and commissioners of agriculture and any one else interested, August 28, in Birmingham, Ala., to draft a 1934 cotton production control program, was called late today by Commissioner of Agriculture Harry D. Wilson.

Virginia Votes On Prohibition Repeal Oct. 3

Liquor Control Measure Ready; Beer Bill Up Today.

Richmond, Va., Aug. 23 (AP).—Virginia's referendum on the eighteenth amendment October 3 became a certainty with action of the General Assembly in special session today.

Both houses passed the Holt bill with identical provisions save that for the pay for election officials, and leaders said an early agreement on this was sure. The bills passed without a dissenting vote.

Meanwhile there was a possibility that a bill calling for a referendum on State prohibition would come on the floor tomorrow, sponsored by Senators Staples and Eggleston.

Repealer Voted Out.

The House moral and social welfare committee late today reported out the Page companion bills repealing the Layman act—the State prohibition law—and setting up a temporary liquor control plan for the interim between the repeal of national prohibition and the effectiveness of the permanent Virginia control law to be enacted in the regular session of the Assembly in January.

These bills, along with the Hall bill legalizing 3.2 beer in the State, will be on the House calendar tomorrow. The beer bill was reported by the joint finance committee—with the much-discussed high excise tax features standing at $3.10 per barrel and 1 cent a bottle as provided in the original administration bill.

Report Fee Bill.

The moral and social welfare committee also reported out the Page bill eliminating special fees in prohibition cases and practically made up its mind as to what it is going to do about the Page bill amending the Layman act provision that enforcement fees shall first be paid out of prohibition fines. The latter bill is to be introduced by the Norfolk delegate tomorrow. The provision already has been declared unconstitutional.

The Page liquor-control bill would provide licensed package liquor stores and prohibit the open saloon. Licenses would be issued only to persons never convicted of a felony. The liquor could not be drunk on the premises. Hotels, restaurants, &c., would be excluded from sale privileges.

The license schedule of the plan follows: Manufacturers, $500; bottlers, $200; wholesalers, $200; retailers, $100 in years after 1933. For the remainder of this year the schedule would be: Manufacturers, $200; bottlers and wholesalers, $100, and retailers, $50.

Tax Penalty Plan Up.

Both houses received a communication from the governor opening the question of whether the Legislature desired to empower cities and counties to release the liability for interest, penalties and accrued costs on delinquent local taxes, provided they are promptly paid within a specified period.

Tomorrow the Assembly will begin the second week of its special convention with stormy sessions on three controversial matters before it.

2,000 Fight Fire Threatening Town

50 Square Miles of Timber Burned; Ashes Fall on Streets.

Portland, Oreg., Aug. 23 (AP).—Nearly 2,000 men continued today their fight against a forest fire that had destroyed thousands of acres of timber and approached dangerously close to the town of Tillamock. The sky over the city was heavy with smoke and ashes covering the streets.

All available men went to the fireline to join the hundreds of C. C. C. camp recruits and volunteers from Forest Grove.

At least 50 square miles of green timber have been destroyed.

Eloping Couple Held In Oklahoma Robbery

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Police were asked today to hold a young man and woman arrested here yesterday as vagrants, who Oklahoma City authorities said were wanted there for a robbery.

The two were found sleeping in an automobile which had run out of fuel in Times Square. They gave their names as Jane Hopkins and Lyman Mason. They said they ran away from their homes in Oklahoma City because their parents forbade their marriage.

HURRICANE drills are strangers to Washington, but one occurred yesterday at 2 p. m. Sidney Sherwood, regional manager of 450 employes in the Crop Production Loan Office, dismissed his force when he received word a twister was heading toward the city. The old Temporary C Building (thrown together during the war) at Sixth and B streets southwest, was vacated in short order by workers who scurried home.

Sherwood is one executive intent on giving the Government worker a new deal, several in his department attest. He is well liked for thoughtfulness for the welfare of those under his jurisdiction.

SCENES around the Department of Justice during this big push against gangdom make a June day beehive look like Griffith Stadium when the Nats are on a Western tour. Overtime work is the rule in every unit at headquarters of the Nation's greatest drive on crime.

We cornered W. H. Drane Lester, Investigation, at lunch for a minute and heard some "Strange As It Seems" things about Scotland Yard.

"Contrary to popular belief, Scotland Yard is not a detective force and does not have jurisdiction throughout England," Mr. Lester related between sips and bites. "It is the Metropolitan Police Department of Greater London and has no jurisdiction outside the city except upon rare occasion when it is invited to aid in the solution of a particular crime.

"Although commonly used as signifying the detective police, it is the name of the headquarters office of the Metropolitan Police of London, of which the Criminal Investigation Division (C. I. D.) is one unit. The original office had a police station at back entered from Scotland Yard, so-called because it was once the site of a palace for the reception of Kings and Queens of Scotland when they visited the English court.

"The metropolitan unit is under direct control of the home secretary and its expense is shared equally by the government and London taxpayers. Its force consists of about 20,000 officers and men, including 1,000 who make up its C. I. D. This department was organized in 1878 after the Scotland Yard scandal of 1877, when five officers were tried for assisting a gang of swindlers.

Three Per Cent Foreign.

"Fiction writers give the impression that the 'Yard' spends most of its time solving murders. Nothing is more remote from the truth. In 1931 Greater London, with an area of 700 square miles and a population of more than 8,000,000, had only 28 murders.

"The Yard through its C. I. D. serves the rest of the British Isles in much the same way as the Identification Division of the U. S. Department of Justice. The Yard has 500,000 fingerprint records, whereas our unit has more than 3,800,000.

New York City Granted Power To Levy Taxes

Legislature Passes Bill Providing $41,000,000 for Relief Fund.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—After wrangling for nearly four weeks the extraordinary Legislature late today empowered New York City to impose local taxes to raise $41,000,000 to care for its 250,000 destitute families.

The city will have virtually the same power to levy local taxes—which do not affect nonresidents—as the State. The authority is limited to February 28, 1934, however.

The empowering measure was passed in amended form after being agreed upon by Republican and Democratic leaders, who had been at odds over whether nonresidents would be subjected to the taxes.

The Republican-controlled Assembly was first to act, passing the measure 85 to 58. The Senate voted favorably, 38 to 6.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman called the Legislature into extraordinary session July 27, after officials of the world's richest city pleaded that unless additional funds were provided they would be unable to assist needy families.

"I'll give you a hand, too," the premier said. He tugged sturdily while a sergeant shouted, "Heave!" and the gun sped up the hill. Thereupon the artillerymen cheered him. The premier also led the Sixty-seventh Infantry on a march of some distance, making them speed up to his rapid pace.

Feminine Curves, Decreed for Fashions This Fall, Help Doctors in T. B. Fight

DR. WILLIAM D. TEWKSBURY, Washington's foremost specialist in the treatment of tuberculosis, counsels women on the dangers to health inherent in stringent diets. He declares the well-developed body carries a greater resistance to disease, and finds that the slender figure, while the ideal for feminine beauty, is a natural attribute of the very young. Dr. Tewksbury concedes that he has made a point of insisting upon a rational diet for his debutante daughters, Helen, left, and Jane.

Dr. Tewksbury, Washington Specialist, Pleased With New Mode.

Mae West's curves gain a further following.

Now it's the doctors.

But it's distinctly not a case of "Why don't you come up and see me some time?" Not the new-kind-of-siren thing.

Doctors see in the generous curves of the movie queen with the tremendous following a hope for leadership among women which will take them away from harmful dieting. Harmful dieting—which lowers resistance to all disease and particularly invites tuberculosis.

"When a woman's weight for no apparent reason begins to tend toward the heavy side, generally the wisest thing she can do is to accept it," smiled gray-haired, pleasant-faced Dr. William D. Tewksbury, Washington's foremost tuberculosis specialist, yesterday.

Daughters Don't Diet.

"I don't have a great deal of trouble with them," he nodded toward the picture. "Their appetites take care of their weight. Of course, like all girls, they occasionally announce that they're not eating a bite of dinner, because they gained a pound last week. But I usually see that they do.

"That's the way with youth," he said. "Or with women. When they find themselves gaining, they think the only remedy is to stop eating.

"The sensible remedies are two. You can watch your starches. You can dispense with bread and potatoes and butter for a while, and cream and milk, and then resume them in extreme moderation. You can live mostly on meats and fresh fruits and green vegetables, which give nearly all the starches needed.

"And you can see a doctor about the functioning of your ductless glands. Sometimes they may be the cause of overweight, and a minor sort of treatment can readily overcome the trouble.

"But don't stop eating. And don't go on a stringent diet."

Dieting Is Dangerous.

Dr. Tewksbury, who has devoted the past 25 years to a study of the cause and cure of tuberculosis, declares he has observed a significant parallel trend, the past four years, between the sharp increase in deaths from tuberculosis and the popularity, over the same period, of the stringent diet fad among young women.

He stressed the grave danger of undernourishment, in lowering resistance to disease, among young people from 17 to 25 years of age.

"A well-rounded figure of the slender type is naturally the ideal figure, feminine figure, from beauty lover's point of view, either man's or woman's, and from the physician's," he continued. "But that slenderness which women try to achieve by diet belongs by nature to the girl of 17 or thereabouts, and it is really dangerous to health to try to gain it through dieting," he warned.

"As a woman gets older her figure thickens. So does a man's. And the man is usually content to accept it. Women would be wiser if they did likewise.

"We physicians believe that people should attempt to come within, or stay within, 10 per cent of their normal weight, either over or under."

The best way of gauging normal weight, the doctor said, is to consult the weight charts computed on height and age statistics, issued by the old line insurance companies, recognized by doctors as being fairly authoritative.

Keep Weight Steady.

"If a woman is 10 per cent overweight, she is wise to consult her physician. And if she loses weight at the rate of 5 per cent in a two months' period, she should attend to that. It may not be anything to be proud of, from the physician's point of view. There is likely to be some organic ailment.

"Or, in view of the depression, it may be only worry and over exertion, which, at that, is not so grave a cause for concern as loss of weight from dieting," he laughed.

If women will diet, he said in final warning, they should stop short when they find it is giving them "a constant tired feeling."

"That means their resistance to disease is being dangerously impaired," said Dr. Tewksbury, as his eyes rested once again on the fresh young faces of his pictured daughters.

Typhoid Imperils Notre Dame Nuns

Four New Cases Isolated at Montreal; 23 Now Being Treated.

Montreal, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Fears for the nuns in the mother house of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame increased today as four new suspected cases of typhoid were placed in isolation.

In recent weeks the disease has caused the death of four. The total now under treatment or observation is 23.

While the 400 cloistered nuns were believed to have escaped the disease, there were fears that many of the 200 novices might have been exposed. How the disease got inside the walls of the institution has not been explained.

Marie Cahill Dies Wealthy

New York, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Another of the great props was knocked out from under the spirit of the Old Theater today when Marie Cahill, comedienne starred and beloved a generation ago on Broadway, died at her home here. Funeral services will be held Friday.

With her death passes also the memory of a girl named "Nancy Brown," whose love for a young farmer boy Miss Cahill made almost as famous as De Wolf Hopper's "Casey at the Bat." Thirty years ago "Nancy Brown," a song interpolated by Miss Cahill in a show of that name, took Broadway by storm.

Although Miss Cahill never revealed her exact age, she is believed to have been nearly 70. She made her last stage appearance in "The New Yorkers" in 1931. After innumerable successes, Miss Cahill retired with a fortune in 1909 to pass a quiet life with her husband.

Jewelry Taste Adds to Charm Of Fair Ladies

Bargains in Typewriters Prepared for Early Christmas Shopper.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A great many men admired her. She was beautiful, well dressed and versed in the art of conversation. She danced as though the rhythm of the music carried her on its waves.

People often spoke of her, complimented her appearance, her versatility, but one man remarked, "Many women are beautiful, and some women are intelligent, many women choose their clothes as they should be chosen, but I have never seen any woman have such a thorough understanding of what jewelry became her best."

As he spoke she entered the drawing room wearing a long purple dinner frock. Around her neck hung a pendant of Florentine design, antique gold filigreed, and set with amethysts. Her matching bracelet and earrings were the perfect finishing touches.

Florentine jewelry on sale for $2 in a Fourteenth street gift shop.

Opportunity Knocking.

For students and writers, and those others of you who have typing inclinations, there is one of the best bargains in portable typewriters that has come our way in the course of years. A Seventeenth street store is offering portable Remingtons, Royals, Coronas, and Underwoods at little over half their usual price. Ordinarily $60, they are now $42.50, but don't be too jubilant, this offer is for a limited time only. If you're a wise shopper, and want to play Santa in a delightful fashion, don't fail to take advantage of this opportunity. Any of the machines may be purchased on the budget plan, with payments as low as $5 monthly.

She had just survived the ordeal of permanent waving only to become the possessor of unruly curls that would not settle down in lady-like fashion. Dad said she looked like the wild woman of Borneo, and dear brother said she reminded him of Bosco, the snake eater. She surveyed herself in the mirror and was forced to admit that the refractory locks were outdoing themselves in standing straight out from her head in wild fashion.

She telephoned a downtown store and they gave her an excellent suggestion. They told her a certain well-known beauty specialist had recently put out a new waving fluid which tames the wildest array of curls, and settles them down in gently rolling waves. They advised her not to be afraid to try it for either finger waving or mere settings. Price, 55 cents.

Good Buys.

It's positively amazing, the bargains that lie within arm's reach, and it is equally amazing that we so often pass them by. For instance, these electric irons. If you bought a new one last week you'll be chagrined when you hear this.

It so happened that the shoppers found some extraordinarily good buys along this line. Some heavy, some light, some pointed, and some slightly rounded, and they're guaranteed for a year. Guess the price? No, siree! They're only 98 cents.

See all those magazines piled up there on the bookcase. Pardon us for making your business ours, but why don't you do something about them? They ruin the appearance of the room. You're saving them for future reference, you say? Well in that case, why don't you have them bound and fill up some of those empty shelves with them? Too expensive? Not at all! You probably haven't heard about this downtown bookbinder who does such reasonable work. He puts six magazines in a volume made of hand stamped leather, and charges $2.25 per volume.

Call Ruth Anne Davis of the Woman's Department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 66, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

What's in Fashion?

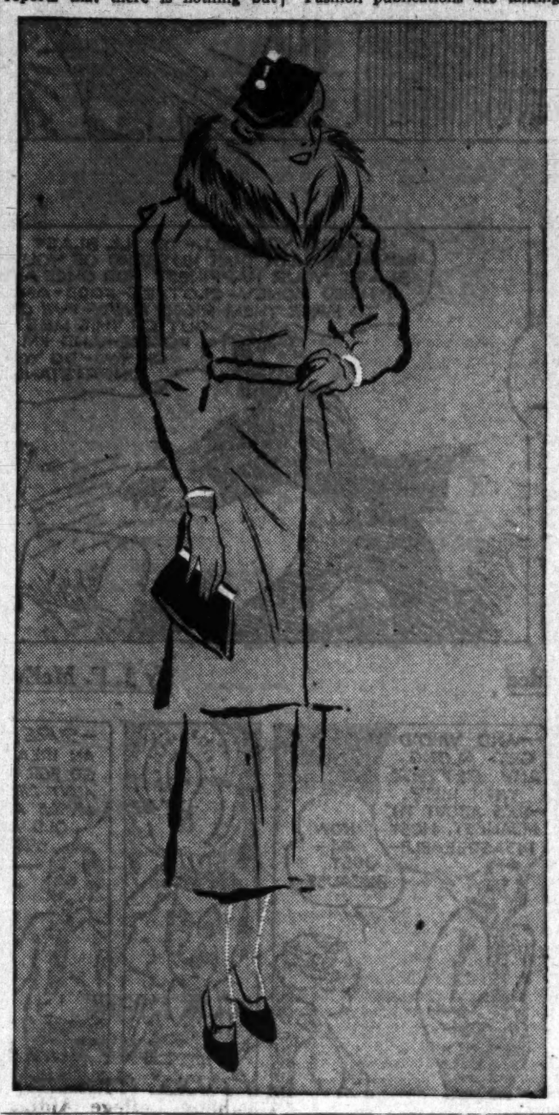
Belted "Tunic" Silhouette Gives Fall Suits New Look

Directed by Amos Parrish.

No one can ever accuse Fashion of having a single track mind. No matter how enthusiastic she may be over one thing, if your interests lie in another direction she can still talk your language.

Take fall suits as an example of this. You might think from early reports that there is nothing but the swagger to be had (or boxline suit, to use its newer name).

Fashion publications are talking about them; stores are featuring them; women are wearing them. There's no doubt they are a big fall fashion.



Short Jacket Suits.

But there are other kinds of suits, if you prefer them. As many women do.

Some are the conservative, hip-length jacket suits with shawl collars of fur, looking new with their sleeves full at the top and snug at the wrists.

And there are some which look even newer—and are newer—because of their silhouette . . . the tunic silhouette.

Tunic Silhouette.

That's the silhouette shown in our sketch . . . so called because of the length of the jacket, which gives the effect of a tunic.

These tunic effect jackets are either fingertip or knee length. Much shorter, you see, than the seven-eighths length of the swagger suit coat, but much longer, too, than the hip-length.

The jacket can be worn without its belt, too, and then it hangs in a less-fitted, straighter line.

Formal or Informal.

A suit of this type can be informal or formal, depending on the material and the fur.

If you want a suit for business or every day general wear, those new hairy woolens are the thing for it. And the collar could be of raccoon, lynx or beaver.

And, of course, with the informal suit you'd wear informal and more tailored blouses, while with the dressier version your blouses would be dressier.

Sometimes suits of this type have a scarf collar instead of the shawl type . . . one of those that pull through two rings. Kolinsky, mink of Persian lamb are often used for this scarf collar.

And sometimes the jacket has no fur at all. In which case you can wear a separate fur scarf or a gay wool or silk scarf with it.

Oxford gray is a fashionable color for this suit, in either formal or informal, silver fox makes the perfect collar and if informal the new silvered raccoon is a fine choice.

Prompt Action By Parents Aid Table Manners

Table manners were at a low ebb in the Smith family. There was a kind of epidemic of doing forbidden things, and neither scolding, penalties nor games seemed to have any effect.

Tom insisted that Sue's elbows in his ribs interfered with his eating; Harry, who was beginning to take an interest in his personal appearance, was forever complaining that people spoiled his shoes and trousers by kicking them; the baby was corrected by all the children for chewing with her mouth open.

Complaints Are True.

The mother felt that all the accusations and many more were true, and, furthermore, that the complaints were making mealtimes unbearable for her.

Mr. Smith, of course, was present at only one meal out of the three, for generally during breakfast he was immersed in his paper, but he was increasingly silent and reserved during this one meal when he should have been enjoying the contact with his children.

Signal for Uproar.

For the most part the sitting down at table seemed to be a signal to let off all the accumulated rancors of the intervening hours until Mrs. Smith got up from the meal with her digestion impaired by the effort to control herself and four unruly cubs.

Finally one day when every one was talking at once in a heated and ill-tempered argument that had reduced one child to tears and roused the others to uncontrolled rage, Mrs. Smith quietly left the table and her husband, taking the cue from her, followed.

The hubbub stopped at once and a sheepish and crestfallen group finished the meal in silence. Thereafter a gesture of imminent departure from either father or mother was enough to quell any riot.

Longworth Victim Of Merry Prank

Future Wife Put Placard on His House That Amused Crowd.

Clara Longworth de Chambrun, the Countess de Chambrun, sister of the late Speaker Longworth, when she was in Washington a few months ago in connection with the publication of her book, "The Making of Nicholas Longworth," told this story of a joke played on the genial Longworth by Alice Roosevelt before she became his bride.

It was at the inauguration of President Theodore Roosevelt. Countess de Chambrun was in Paris at the time of the Roosevelt inauguration, but her mother wrote her the following account of an amusing incident of the day:

"Alice Roosevelt, Josephine Boardman and several others came to lunch and the two girls got up a joke on Nicky which caused great merriment. All the places of historical interest had been marked with placards surmounted by the shield of the United States and indicating what particular celebrity had lived there in past times; this for the benefit of the army of sightseers who came to Washington on the 4th of March. Alice R. got one of these large placards and hung it on the front steps, whereon the passers-by read with interest these words in large letters: 'I Live Here. Nicholas Longworth.'

"Nicky's secretary was the first of our household to see it and he came much upset and told me that there was 'something on the front steps which perhaps I should want removed?' I went out with him and saw the thing, and said, 'Yes, I should indeed like it removed, and at once!' While he was in the act of taking it down, Alice and Josephine appeared shrieking not to touch it. They begged me so hard to allow the joke to go on that I consented. Nicky's face was a study when he drove up to the house, accompanied by Col. Woodbury Kane and Dolph Agassiz and was confronted with the placard. He speedily cut it down amid peals and roars of laughter from the spectators gathered within, who crowded to the window to see what he would do. In the meantime, lots of people passing up and down the avenue had seen it, and goodness knows what they thought."

Star's New Fall Suit

Storm Damage to Make Peaches and Corn-on-the-Cob Scarce for Some Time; Fish Famine May Exist in City Throughout Rest of This Week.

The storm of the past 24 hours is going to make a difference in what you serve for dinner for some days to come. What the difference will be can not be determined until a survey of damage is made after the wind and rain stop.

Among other things, local berries probably will be a thing of the past. Cantaloupes will lose their flavor because of excessive rains, and peaches may be bruised and battered too badly for canning.

But this is supposition.

A good suggestion to follow is:

Take a look at the peaches in your nearby stores today. These peaches were picked before the storm. Unless the price has advanced from Monday's levels, it is likely that they should be purchased for canning.

If you expect to get peaches today, you should do your shopping before noon. The regular Wednesday delivery was made from warehouses to stores, but no deliveries of consequence will be made today.

Corn is Damaged.

The corn on the cob which was delivered to stores Wednesday will be the last for some time. The wind and rain beat the corn down and it appears likely that little of the present crop will be salvaged.

Tomatoes will be scarce for several days. There were none picked yesterday, and all ripe ones on the vines have been damaged by the wind and rain. Cucumbers probably will come through in fair shape and be plentiful as soon as picking is resumed.

Acording to information secured by telephone from Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania points, the nature of the weather which follows this storm will have an important bearing on food crops. A continuation of rains, even though they are not heavy, will ruin such crops as cantaloupes, tomatoes and egg plant. Such vegetables as squash and beans probably will be materially damaged.

The cool weather which is expected to follow gives housewives a good opportunity to prepare roasts and do some baking. A chuck roast of beef, in addition to being inexpensive, makes an attractive dish. It might be prepared today and served cold Friday if the weather is warm.

A real shortage of fresh fish is likely to exist Friday. The gale sweeping across the Chesapeake Bay and Potomac River Wednesday not only kept small craft in harbors, but is believed to have destroyed a considerable number of nets.

A fairly good-sized shipment of fish arrived in Washington Tuesday. Some of these fish will be available this morning and will be in good condition if properly cared for since arriving. If you want to serve fish this week, today will be the time to do it.

Accurate and prompt information on conditions in the fresh food and fruit markets of the city will be carried in this column as soon as a thorough survey can be made of the damage to growing crops.

Pedicure May Take Place in Beauty Rites

Attention to Nails Expected to Lead to Better Care Generally of Feet.

Once a fad, the pedicure now promises to take its place among the important beauty rites.

There are numerous salons that concentrate on manicure and pedicure only. Leading beauty salons everywhere are fast recognizing the demand for pedicuring and adding it to the various other beauty branches or services offered.

It won't be long now before it becomes "an old, established American custom," alongside of haircutting, dyeing, permanent waving, the facial, manicuring and so on.

And it is one fad, at least, that beauty authorities do not regret. The longer it lives, the stronger it grows, the better they will like it. For it is a forward step in the right direction.

As a result women are becoming more foot conscious. And now watch women's feet become more and more beautiful, properly cared for and catered to.

The grand army that hobbles along on high heels, short, pinching toes, and similar shoe atrocities is bound to dwindle if the pedicure keeps up.

Better Feet Forward.

When a woman visits the chiropodist she isn't embarrassed to flaunt corns, callouses, bunions, ingrown toe nails and otherwise distorted feet.

That's what the chiropodist is for—to see these signs of negligence or abuse and in some measure correct them.

But when women visit the beauty salon to have their toe nails pedicured and painted purely for beauty's sake—just as they have their nails glorified—ah, then they will realize that corns are incongruous to the beauty picture. They will soon wake up to the fact that feet are a feature in the beauty ensemble, and that without cared-for feet neither health nor beauty has a leg to stand on.

The Home Pedicure.

In giving oneself a pedicure at home, the procedure is the same as the manicure. The nails are filed and shaped, then the edges smoothed with an emery board.

Soak one foot in warm, soapy water while filing the other. Then go over each nail with orange stick tipped with cotton and dipped in cuticle remover. Push back the cuticle, work around and under each nail. Trim with scissors any loose, rough edges. Do this very gently and carefully.

After all loose cuticle is removed, scrub each toe with nail brush and bland soap and warm water, rinse and dry.

Now go over each nail with liquid polish remover to make sure it is absolutely free from any dust or previous polish. Now spread toes and tint the nails. Or, insert a bit of cotton between the toes before applying the liquid polish to protect the polish until it is thoroughly dry. Apply the polish exactly as you do in a manicure.

Last, massage a bit of oil around the cuticle bed. Then massage the entire foot with olive oil or a good cream and finish by patting with a little alcohol rub.

Wear the open beach sandals, wear sandals as house shoes—anything that will make you more foot conscious and actually proud of your feet.

"Old Ironsides" Spared by T. R.

How once, more than 25 years ago, Admiral Dewey, with President Theodore Roosevelt, saved the historic old ship, U. S. S. Constitution—"Old Ironsides"—from destruction as a target, is revealed in a little true story told by a friend in whom Dewey had confided.

The famous ship had been condemned and Representative McCall of Massachusetts arrived at the White House one day armed with a petition signed with many thousands of names, to save it from this fate.

Admiral Dewey was chatting with the President when McCall appeared to appeal to the Chief Executive.

"Mr. President, I commanded the U. S. S. Constitution for three years when in charge of the midshipmen from Annapolis and had the fourth class aboard," remarked Dewey.

President Roosevelt was immediately interested. He listened attentively as Dewey expressed the opinion that the Constitution should be kept intact, as was Nelson's Victory. That is, as she was when he fought on her. Turning suddenly, Roosevelt snapped out: "Gentlemen, the admiral is my conscience about Navy matters." And the Constitution was not used as a target.

Zippers on Cardigan Replace Seven Buttons

Cardigan sweaters, jackets, sports shirts—all those wardrobe items which open all the way down the front—may now be found with zip fastenings. For, as you know, a slide fastener has been perfected which, when opened, may be separated at the bottom. And to operate one is certainly speedier than fastening the seven buttons which are the average number on a fall cardigan.

What Today Means

"VIRGO."

If August 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 10:30 a. m., from 4:30 to 5:40 p. m. and from 8 to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 6:15 to 7:30 p. m.

Things will probably not run smoothly on this date, either at the office or in the home. There will be many interruptions and disturbances that will tend to slow up progress. Advance will be made only by those who go off by themselves and work in solitude. The presence of children will be particularly felt.

The child born on this August 24 will more than likely not be one to deceive his parents. When in trouble, he will always seek them out and give them his confidence. If you wish to keep on good terms with this little one, do not seek to rule him from afar, but treat him as an equal, as a little pal.

If August 24 is the date of your birth, you are perhaps a person who is always in a hurry and as a result are not as thorough as you might be in carrying out your duties. You have many fine qualities, good judgment, the ability to think straight and to reason well, and vision. But these qualities you do not develop to the fullest, simply because you will not take the time to do so. You do a lot of talking as you go alopg, much of it meaningless or pure nonsense, but withal, you accomplish a good deal of good. You have many friends, really fine ones, and you take great pride in them. You, however, do not enjoy them to the fullest, for in trying to keep in touch with them all you keep yourself on the go all the time. There would seem to be a good deal of nervous energy in your make-up; you must learn repose and also, you must come to appreciate the value of quiet thought and peaceful meditation.

Born on August 24, you like to play and you enjoy relaxation of all kinds. You are intense about all that you do and more than likely you go in for strenuous games and sports. Travel more than likely has a strong appeal to you and when you are on a journey you like to keep moving and fast. You do not get the benefit from travel that many do, but at that you are alert and miss little. In matters of love, you are inclined to be impetuous and too quick to declare yourself. Unless you take care, your marriage may go on the rocks.

Successful people born on August 24:

Charles H. Sabin, banker.
Max Beerbohm, actor.
John C. Watson, naval officer.
William Walter Phelps, statesman and jurist.
John Newton, soldier and civil engineer.
Henry Stevens, bibliographer.

Kindred Feeling.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Last night I heard the ceaseless chatter
Of the voice of falling rain,
Steadily the constant patter
Called me through my window pane.

So, in pity for their pleading
I flung my window open wide,
So that any rain drops needing
Sympathy might come inside.

Then I listened and consoled them
When I heard how cruelly
You had shut them out. I told them
You had closed your door on me.

Unfinished Furniture Is Sound Investment

When expense has to be carefully considered in furnishing or refurbishing a home, the so-called unfinished pieces of furniture shown by hardware and department stores will prove your best friend. Their simple beauty of line and practicability are self-evident, and the application of a paint or enamel finish give them an appearance of value more than double the original investment.

Plumed Chintz.

Prince of Wales plumes form the inspiration for a new chintz pattern which is smart with eighteenth century English or French furniture. The plumes are tied with ribbon bow knots and the pattern comes in a wide color range suitable for both living and bedrooms.

Idea for Dusting.

Try a small, handy, inexpensive dish mop for dusting. If you use it once, likely you'll never use anything else for the purpose. Especially recommended for dusting books on shelves and for reaching seemingly inaccessible corners and angles. And you can keep it clean, without putting your hands in water.

First the promenade, then the open deck for Mother. She enjoys the crisp tang of ocean breeze while warmly protected in a swagger coat of white wool. The mannish felt swagger hat proves a favorite with many a smart feminine passenger. On to Judy's cabin she goes to make sure Judy isn't seasick in these rough waters.

At the first roll of the boat that young lady is up and dressed in warm blue jersey slacks and a blue and white striped fine jersey shirt with white canvas suspenders. Dad's polo coat and slouch felt hat are both practical for the middled aged traveler who doesn't go in for sporty effects.

By Mary Brook Lucas

And speaking of practical clothes, one simply must mention navy and dark bright blue as the predominating colors for morning, noon and night, for they don't show soil or wrinkles. Canary yellow and white, Judy decides are the favorites among the pastel shades. Black accessories or touches of black are considered chic.

Bad News.

JAMES JINX is sore and blue; he takes a gloomy view; I heard him say, just yesterday, "Bad news is always true. Good news is oft a fake, an error, a mistake; it makes us smile a little while, then leaves us with an ache. We read a cheerup tale that better times prevail; and while we read the soothing screed, we're losing all our kale. Good news is false and vain, the harbinger of pain; a fairy tale that can't avail to brace the heartsick swain. We're better off to chew on facts, however blue; men sane and wise must realize bad news is always true." It is a frame of mind afflicting all mankind, since came the slump and to the dump we staggered, halt and blind. We've lost our cheerful poise, and all belief in joys; in grief we stray on darkened way, and make a mournful noise. The doleful prophet comes and whangs on muffled drums; we hear him roar, "In one year more you'll all be busted bums." Time was when we would take that prophet to the lake, and throw him in, with joyous din, a spectacle to make. But now we don't eschew the sad prophetic crew; we say, "In sooth, they speak the truth—bad news is always true."

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York—After a summer of dull, desultory, days, so torridly discouraging that one had neither the wish nor the energy to move, Manhattan is slowly coming to life to greet the brisk winds of autumn.

Even though Jimmie Walker once called New York "the greatest summer resort in the world," the fact is that the metropolis, with its heat-absorbing walls of stone and steel, is not too advantageous a haven through June, July and August. The erstwhile mayor himself, despite his municipal enthusiasm, usually managed to spend many of the sultry weeks in a cooler clime.

But, with the approach of fall, the city, with a brisk anticipation, seems to spring into new, vigorous life. Celebrities are returning from their escapes to the Riviera or the North Cape, town houses are being reopened, Broadway is placing many new shows in rehearsal and the street flower vendors are preparing to desert their gardenia corsages for hot chestnut wagons.

No Break for Cabbies.

Not that I want to enter a campaign pulpit, but it seems that the police have not been altogether sporting in this hot weather.

On the days when the thermometer steamed to high points, Commissioner Bolan gave the police permission to leave off their coats and work in their shirts. Which is a humane and wise move.

But, while the cops could work in their shirts, this comfort was refused to taxi drivers. There is a city ordinance demanding that the cabbies wear a coat at all times, otherwise they get a ticket.

The cabbies complained, but it was of no use. They still were compelled to wear coats.

Celebrity Village.

Barging into Easthampton, on the south shore of Long Island, the other night, I was excited to note the many celebrities who have homes at this seaside village.

Among those I observed were Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, Augustus Thomas, George Barton French, Irving Berlin, Jack Devereaux, Percy Hammond, Ring Lardner, Grantland Rice, Eltinge F. Warner, Dr. John Erdmann, Edward H. Jewett and Julian S. Myrick.

Although Coney Island magistrates will toss you in the calaboose if you dare appear on the beach without the top of your bathing suit, that doesn't hold true at the City Hall. Dozens of youngsters wearing only trunks go bathing there daily in the fountain beneath the statue of Civic Virtue. They take sun baths on the City Hall steps.

Every time he finishes a new book Russell Crouse takes the next boat for Sweden.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

THE type of clothing which is most comfortable in hot weather depends very much upon one's occupation. The stoker who works around open fires and away from observation knows that he should wear no clothing over his chest and abdomen. He is working in an atmosphere considerably hotter than his bodily temperature. His muscles are making much heat. Since the air around him is very dry, his method of getting rid of his surplus heat is limited to evaporation. If he wears no clothing the hot, dry air has the maximum ability to reach the sweat on his skin and, by evaporating some of it, to remove some excess heat from the body. The worker could further increase his comfort by wearing nothing save a breechclout and sandals.

Ball players almost universally wear woolen garments, and fairly heavy ones at that. Their work is done in the hot afternoon in the sunlight. The amount of exertion expected of them is very uneven. Except the pitchers and catchers, the players have periods of great activity and others of relative inactivity. All, including the pitchers and catchers, sit on the players' bench for about one-half of the time of the game.

They might be more comfortable if, while very active, they were dressed in breechclouts and sandals. But the patrons of the game might not like that, and then there are the considerable periods of inactivity that enter into the question.

People who must be in the sunlight in very hot weather should recognize the disadvantage of wearing dark garments, because they absorb heat from light. The coolest wear for those who work in the sun on hot days, other things being equal, are white garments. There being no other inequalities, a baseball team that wears white uniforms should beat one that dresses in blue.

The man who strolls down a sunny street should likewise dress in white, or as near it as dirty air will allow. For the inactive man the lighter the weight and the more open the weave, the more comfortable is his clothing. Air must be able to blow through the fabric and displace the hot air next the skin. If the day is a warm one and the temperature of the air is 95 or over, no heat can be removed except by evaporation. Light weight, open weave garments promote evaporation.

The number of garments worn is a matter of importance. Between an outer garment and the one beneath there is considerable dead air. Dead air is a good insulator. Thoroughly wet undergarments are liable to be quite hot. Water fills the meshes of the weave and prevents air from reaching the skin.

Bond Changes Are Featured By Irregularity

Early Rallying Tendencies Checked as Turnover Totals $10,380,000.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—A more active bond market exhibited early rallying tendencies today, but was unable to maintain inaugural gains, and finished with prices highly irregular.

Sales totaled $10,380,000 par value, against $8,624,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans eased one-tenth of a cent.

While there were soft spots in all categories, various utilities, rails and industrials showed resistance to late selling and managed to emerge with moderate gains.

Secondary Issues Spurt.

Some secondary issues followed stocks in a brief inflationary spurt, based, probably, on the intimation of Gen. Johnson that the administration's recovery plans were being retarded by a lack of commercial banking credit.

This was taken to mean, in some quarters, that the Federal Reserve System might soon begin its authorized heavy open market purchases of Government obligations as a means of spreading money throughout the Nation.

The response to this was short-lived, however, and early gains of 1 to 2 or more points were replaced by similar losses in many instances.

Few Advances Made.

Moderate advances were held by some loans of Chicago & Northwestern, Container Corporation, International Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Portland General Electric, St. Joseph Lead, Shell Union Oil and Utah Power.

Warren Bros. 6s, on the other hand, dropped 5⅛ points; Western Pacific 1st 5s lost 2¼, and issues of American & Foreign Power, Consolidated Gas, Chesapeake Corporation, Postal Telegraph and Nickel Plate were heavy.

United States Government securities were firm, but dull. Foreign obligations were mixed. French 7⅛s gained 3 points, British 5½s were up around a point and bonds of Dutch East Indies were firm. The Argentines and Cubans were off a point or more.

United Air Lines Fly 50,050 Miles

New York, Aug. 23 (Spl.).—With new schedules effective last week, United Air Lines reached a new international figure for daily mileage with a total of 50,050 miles every 24 hours, or the equivalent of 18,432,500 miles a year, company officials stated. Its planes serve forty-five cities in twenty States, including coast-to-coast schedules.

This rapid increase in mileage is due primarily to extension of passenger-carrying activities, as 31 per cent of the total mileage is being flown without mail revenue, in contrast to a few years ago, when all schedules were flown with mail. The total mileage scheduled daily is divided as follows: Passenger and mail schedules, 34,300; passenger schedules only, 15,750.

This increase in flying has been simultaneous with the placing in service by United of the large fleet of high-speed multimotored planes, manufactured for it by the Boeing Airplane Co. Their Wasp engines are manufactured by the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co. Fifty-five of these planes are now in service, with the balance of the original order of sixty to be on the routes before September 1. On August 15 all through schedules on various routes were being flown with the faster equipment. The Boeing Airplane Co. is building a total of seventy-five of these planes, and the last fifteen will be sold to United and other transport lines.

Martinsville Silk Mill To Hire 200 Workers

Martinsville, Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.). The Atlas Silk Mills, Inc., of New York, will start operations in their new local plant about September 5, it was announced by officials of the concern here today.

New Hagerstown Plant To Give Work to 75 Men

Stocks opened with narrow changes today. Gains ranging up to half a point were made by Goodyear, Westinghouse, Bethlehem Steel, Cerro de Pasco and Case. American Telephone, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and Corn Products were unchanged.

American Water Works & Electric Co. had net income of $3,296,201 for the twelve months ended July 31, equal to $1.20 a common share, compared with $5,152,064 or $2.26 a share in the year ended July 31, 1932.

Curb Market Drifts Lower In Active Day

Losses in Power List Range From 1 Up to 2 Points; 328,000 Shares Sold.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—The curb market drifted lower in the last hour today after having maintained a steady tone in the earlier dealings.

Trading was fairly active in the first hour and it looked as though the recent creeping advance might broaden but late selling, particularly in utilities, dispelled the possibility.

Losses in the power group ranged from 1 to 2 points. Interest dwindled in alcohols and small early advances were converted into fractional recessions at the close.

Oils were fairly steady excepting Standard Oil of Ohio, which dropped 2¾ points in nominal dealings. Mining shares were fairly firm, Newmont and Lake Shore mines each finishing with moderate gains. Other scattered firm spots included General Tire & Rubber and Belanca Aircraft. Transfers approximated 328,000 shares compared with 273,000 for yesterday.

U. S. Dollar Heavy On Foreign Marts

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—The American dollar turned heavy today in foreign exchange dealings, presumably reflecting a mild renewal of inflationary psychology. The British pound sterling gained 4½ cents at a cable rate of $4.54, French francs advanced .06 of a cent to 5.40 cents, Dutch guilders were up 6.2 of a cent at 55.67 cents, and Swiss francs, Belgian belgas, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Far Eastern exchanges were around ¼ of a cent firmer.

The dollar, in terms of the French gold franc, was valued today at approximately 72.59 cents, compared with 73.41 cents yesterday and 72.12 cents a month ago.

Stocks Drop Slightly As Sales Gain Impetus

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Stocks made hard work of an early attempt at a rally today and fell back to a lower closing. Prices churned erratically during much of the more active market, being largely lower throughout the afternoon. Final quotations, however, were somewhat above the lows. The average net change was a loss of approximately a point.

A reduction in bankers' acceptance rates and a weaker dollar, coupled with the Recovery Administration's remarks concerning bank credit, served to renew conjecture as to whether further attempts at credit expansion were contemplated. Foreign exchanges had their best rally in some time, which suggested that speculators were reviving inflation gossip.

Steel and rail shares, as well as a few motors, endeavored to carry on the rally which had run for two days. Offerings increased before the session was very old and thereafter resistance to further gains was rather pronounced. However, selling appeared to be well taken.

General Motors Loses.

Chrysler and General Motors were again active, though they failed to make notable progress and finished lower. Santa Fe, Borden, Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, Allied Chemical and Erie lost 2 points or more.

American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, North American, National Biscuit, Case, Woolworth, American Can, Du Pont and Union Pacific were down 1 to nearly 2. New York Central strengthened, helped by a favorable car loadings report. Sales totaled 2,583,380 shares.

Easiness of money was a prominent development of the financial day, and caused some to wonder whether the local rediscount rate was due for another paring. It is now 2½ per cent, or well above the open market. A downward revision, it was pointed out, might prove helpful to the Treasury, which faces an imposing volume of refinancing.

Trade Statistics Encouraging.

Midweek trade statistics were more encouraging than otherwise. Iron Age coupled with its report of a drop in steel production to 50 per cent from 53, word that retail buying of automobiles had taken an unexpected spurt and an assertion that codification of the industry had removed doubts among buyers as to the trend of prices.

Electric power output last week was larger than in the preceding week, and 15.2 per cent above a year ago, thus maintaining about the same ratio of improvement that has been apparent since mid-July. More encouraging, perhaps, were indications that freight traffic had risen over the preceding week.

America's foreign trade in July gave a favorable balance of $2,000,000, contrasting with a $3,000,000 excess of imports in June. Gains in both exports and imports last month, as compared with July, 1932, were sharp. Our sales abroad expanded about 20 per cent over June, and our purchases from foreign countries approximated 17 per cent.

C. & O. Income During July Up By $1,955,322

Net Totals $3,172,506; Figures for 7 Months Gain $3,554,072.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. showed gains for July. The net income of the company, after all charges, for July, totaled $3,172,506.68. This was a gain of $1,955,322.94 over that for July, 1932.

The company's statement of operations for last month, made public yesterday, announced that for the seven months' period, ending July 31, the company's net income amounted to $13,538,224.02, an advance of $3,554,072.69 over that for the corresponding period last year.

Railway operating revenues of the company last month aggregated $10,775,787.69, an increase of $3,555,443.75. For the first seven months of the current year, they have now risen to $58,477,406.03, which is $5,059,700.90 more than those of the similar comparative period a year ago.

Operating ratio for July was 52.3 per cent, compared with an operating ratio of 59.8 per cent in the month last year. For the seven months of 1933, operating ratio is 57.3 per cent, as contrasted with operating ratio of 60.1 per cent for the like length of time in 1932.

Net Operating Income Gains.

Net railway operating income for last month totaled $4,019,065.90. This was an improvement to the extent of $2,051,961.51 over net railway operating income of July a year ago. For the seven months ended July 31, 1933, it has grown to $18,749,947.77, or $3,480,738.72 more than that for the seven-month period closed July 31, 1932.

From headquarters of "Save the Surface Campaign," at 2201 New York avenue northwest, comes advice that painting is a safeguard against obsolescence and rentability of buildings is increasing through modernization and redecoration.

Protection against obsolescence is a comparatively new idea in building maintenance that has emerged from an era of economic stress, leaders of the American paint, varnish and lacquer products industries explain.

Attention to Lesser Items.

Attention to those lesser items of investment which deteriorate and became outmoded has become a matter of increasing importance to owners and managers who must hold their tenants and retain the earning power of their property. Outstanding among the various phases of building maintenance is that form of modernization which includes painting, redecoration and refinishing of floors and woodwork.

In any renovizing operation, it is conservatively estimated, repainting and redecorating should constitute a division equal in importance to a third of the entire modernization program.

"The owner of a store, apartment hotel, industrial building or other property," says Charles W. Eastwood, chairman of the campaign, "has much to gain or lose at this time, depending on the way in which he treats his investment. Either he can permit his property to depreciate through neglect and delay, or he can restore and increase its value by repair and modernization."

Washington Stock Exchange.

Yesterday's trading on Washington Stock Exchange was moderate. In the bond division, $500 worth of Washington Gas 5s, maturing in 1960, moved at 106, last sale figure. There was a $500 transaction in Washington Railway & Electric 4s at 89, a half-point advance.

Three shares of Capital Traction changed hands at 7, a fractional advance, and 3 of Potomac Electric Power 5½ preferred came out at 108, a three-quarter point rise. After call, six shares of Washington Railway & Electric preferred were sold at 86, a 3-point recession.

The imminence of the merger of Capital Traction Co. and Washington Railway & Electric Co. is increasing interest in their issues on the part of members of the exchange and local investors. The terms of exchange are the subject of widespread interest. Plans for the consolidation of the companies are expected to be announced soon.

Foreign Markets.

London—A generally easier tendency was displayed on the stock exchange today with profit taking again in evidence as end of the account approached. The investment group, however, continued to show firmness owing to the growing belief that the Treasury was preparing funding measures. Transatlantic issues, especially nickel, responded to the improvement in Wall street. The market closed quiet.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was so light that the small business transacted affected prices mostly downward with the exception of oil shares and a few domestic issues. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—After a firm opening had been registered, prices on the bourse sagged and closed weak. Favorable business reports and decreased unemployment failed to stimulate buying.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Stockholders of the Fox Film Corporation have elected a new board of directors in connection with the company's recent reorganization.

The new board, which includes only three members of the old directorate, is composed of Sidney R. Keith, W. C. Michel, John D. Clark, Harley L. Clark, H. Donald Campbell, Richard F. Hoyt, Daniel O. Hastings, Arthur W. Loasby, Ernest W. Niver, Herman G. Place, Seton Porter and Sidney Towell.

At the first organization meeting of directors, Mr. Kent was renamed as president, while Michel and Towell, respectively, were elected vice president and treasurer.

The income for July was $2,669,919, a gain of $1,572,685 over the corresponding month of last year and $689,549 more than in June.

For the seven months of this year the net income was $9,815,442, $3,338,160 in excess of the same period of last year.

Operating revenues for last month were $6,803,261 as compared with $4,555,231 in July, 1932. The increase was $948,023 over the June figures.

A gain of $610,610 over July of last year was shown in the operating expenses of $3,345,687. For the seven months comparison with last year, however, there was a decrease of $1,074,168.

Increases in freight, especially coal loadings, were held responsible for the increased income. Freight last month totaled $6,493,708; passenger revenue, $246,314; other transportation, $24,914, and incidental and joint facilities, $38,324.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Directors of the Crowell Publishing Co. decided today to omit the quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock.

Earnings up to July 31, said a statement by the company, were in excess of the present dividend rate for the entire year but "in order to conserve resources and to provide for increased wages, increased employment in conformance with the NRA and other business promotion requirements, the board decided not to declare the quarterly dividend on the common stock at this time."

The company publishes Collier's Weekly and other nationally known magazines.

The Union Pacific System reported an improvement in July earnings. Net operating income last month was $1,826,330, against $919,165 a year ago, while gross was $9,988,197, compared with $9,127,796 in July, 1932.

St. Albans, Vt., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—After deduction of all charges, the Central Vermont Railway earned a net profit of $2,213.98 during the month of July. This compares with a net deficit of $83,436.26 in July, 1932, and is, therefore, an improvement of $85,650.10, as well as being the first time in almost three years that the company has succeeded into black figures.

The operating revenues of the company for July amounted to $506,678, as compared with $462,816 in July, 1932, an increase of $43,862. Railway operating expenses were $370,679 in July, 1933, as compared with $416,297 during the corresponding period of 1932, a decrease of $45,618. The net operating income for July, 1933, was $102,919, as compared with $13,555 in July, 1932, an increase of $89,364. Deduction of fixed charges from the operating net leaves the net income of $2,213.

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Freight loadings of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific system last week aggregated 23,802 cars compared with 23,772 in the previous week and 21,012 a year ago. The increase over 1932 was 12.2 per cent compared with 14.7 per cent in the preceding week.

Burlington's loadings for the week totaled 20,633 cars against 20,138 in the previous week and 19,083 for the same period last year. Illinois Central loaded 25,237 cars against 24,772 in the previous week and 23,069 in the 1932 period.

Wabash reported 11,749 cars compared with 11,391 in the week of August 12 and 10,203 in the 1932 period.

Directors of the Continental Gas & Electric Corporation, a subsidiary of the United Light & Power Co., at their meeting today took no action on the common stock dividend. Three months ago the company ordered a payment of 42 cents. The company authorized the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock, payable October 1 to stock of record September 13.

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—A net income of $469,764.09 for the six months ended June 30 last was reported today by the Union Tank Car Co.

The figure was arrived at after deductions for interest on equipment trust certificates and estimated Federal income taxes, and is equal to approximately 39 cents a share on the 1,200,000 shares of capital stock outstanding.

During a corresponding period last year the company showed earnings of $524,647. Current assets this year were reported at $10,977,286.17, and current liabilities at $442,879.05, as compared to $14,344,560 and $314,632, respectively, in 1932.

The balance sheet carried total assets of June 30 at $42,826,011.32, against $45,952,597 last year.

U. S. Steel Production Drops Off During Week

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—Steel production has dropped to 50 per cent of capacity from 53 per cent a week ago, Iron Age said today.

The review reported an unexpected rebound in retail sales of automobiles, bringing steel mills fill-in orders during the past week and causing car makers to postpone change-overs to new models. On the whole, mill bookings continue to lag, "but final adoption of the steel code has cleared the atmosphere of many of the doubts and fears that had been accumulating in recent weeks."

Production of U. S. Oil Drops in Week

Texas Petroleum Output Gains as It Declines in Oklahoma.

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 23 (AP).—Reductions in oil production in Oklahoma and increases in Texas almost balanced last week, and total daily average output of the United States varied little, dropping 9,902 barrels from 2,801,629 to 2,791,727 barrels.

In Oklahoma the decrease was from 664,605 to 620,815 barrels, while in Texas the increase was from 1,201,964 to 1,235,099. East Texas output advanced from 584,660 to 629,650 barrels.

Reports from other fields:

In Eastern areas there was a 2,000-barrel decrease to 117,000 barrels; Rocky Mountain fields increased output from 75,300 to 79,980 barrels; Kansas production dropped from 130,100 to 129,110 barrels; California output fell 2,500 barrels to 505,500 barrels.

$3,750,000 Worth of Tobacco Cornered by Caldwell's Firm

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 23 (AP).—Purchase of 40,000,000 pounds of dark fired tobacco, representing the entire holdings of the Eastern and Western Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Associations of Tennessee and Kentucky, was announced here last night by Rogers Caldwell, investment banker.

The purchase was made by Rogers Caldwell & Co. through the newly-organized Dark Fired Tobacco Corporation, Inc., here last Saturday by Mr. Caldwell, E. A. Goodloe and Thomas Goodloe with a capital of $3,000,000.

The Nashville Tennesseean says the value of the tobacco was approximately $3,750,000, of which about $1,000,000 will be distributed to some 30,000 planters who are members of the two cooperative associations.

Second Largest Single Deal.

The transaction is described by the paper as the second largest single deal in tobacco history, the largest being the purchase by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. several years ago of approximately 60,000,000 pounds of burley tobacco from a burley growers association.

The Tennesseean says the purchase gave Rogers Caldwell & Co. a virtual "corner" on the dark fired tobacco market, and that the holdings of the two growers' associations represented practically all the available tobacco of the 1931 and 1932 crops except for smaller purchases made on the loose leaf floors.

The purchase also transferred to Rogers Caldwell & Co. all obligations of the growers' associations to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for loans advanced on the crop.

Association Officials' Role.

Judge John T. Cunningham, of Clarksville, president, and Thomas E. Johnson, of Springfield, general manager, of the Eastern Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Association, the Tennesseean says, played a leading part in the negotiations.

Approximately 23,500,000 pounds of the total involved came from the Eastern association, representing the Springfield and Clarksville, Tenn., and Hopkinsville, Ky., fields, and about 16,500,000 pounds represented the holdings of the Western Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Association, embracing the Paducah, Murray and Princeton, Ky., and Paris and Martin, Tenn., fields.

For a number of years Mr. Caldwell headed the large investment firm of Caldwell & Co., which collapsed in November, 1930. His present company was organized last year.

Droughts Blight Canada Harvests

Northern Area's Situation Favorable; Alberta Hit by Frosts.

New York, Aug. 23 (Spl.).—Harvesting is under way in the Canadian prairie provinces, while threshing is fairly general in Manitoba and has begun in southern Saskatchewan, say the Bank of Montreal, in its weekly crop report.

Conditions continue favorable in the northern areas of all three provinces, with the exception of northwestern Saskatchewan. The southern and central areas of the provinces are still suffering from drought and grasshoppers, while frosts have caused further damage in Alberta, and sawflies are destructive in sections of Saskatchewan. There will be a serious feed shortage over an area of 1,000 square miles or more in southwest Manitoba, where the crop is a total failure.

In Quebec, harvesting of oats and barley, begun in some of the earlier districts, indicate yields somewhat under the average. In Ontario, threshing returns confirm an average yield of fall wheat of good quality, but spring wheat, barley and oats will return light crops. In the maritime provinces all crops are badly in need of rain, lack of which has already had a detrimental effect. In British Columbia grain harvesting has begun with prospects of an average yield.

Winnipeg Sales of Furs Show Gain in Prices

Winnipeg, Aug. 23 (AP).—Otter and muskrat sold higher at the fur auctions here today. A total of 75,000 muskrats at an average of 69 cents, showed an advance of 10 per cent.

A collection of 110 otter brought an average of $15.70, 20 per cent higher. Other varieties of furs sold unchanged to slightly lower. Beaver blankets, with 4,500 sold, were quoted today at a top of $20.

U. S. Grain Exports Drop During Week

(Associated Press.)

Grain exports from the United States last week totaled 186,000 bushels, against 277,000 bushels the preceding week and 1,492,000 bushels during the corresponding week of last year.

Wheat, 8,000 bushels, against 1,000; barley, 113,000, against 137,000; corn, 25,000, against 113,000; oats, 38,000, against 26,000; rye, 2,000, against none.

Canadian grains exported last week from United States ports totaled 120,000 bushels, against 159,000 bushels the week before, while exports of North American wheat flour were 61,000 barrels, against 45,000 barrels.

Early Advance In Cotton Lost In Late Sales

4 to 7 Point Gains Changed to Declines of 11 to 17; December, 9.57.

December contracts, which had sold up to 9.87, or 16 points net higher, broke to 9.55 late in the session and closed at 9.57. The general market ended easy at net declines of 11 to 17 points.

First prices were 4 to 7 points higher. Gains were extended later on the firmness in the grain and stock markets, rather lighter ginning figures than anticipated and the apparent absence of any aggressive selling.

At the best, active months showed net advances of 15 to 20 points, but the rise of about 120 points from the low levels of a week ago evidently attracted realizing.

Decided Market Break.

This became more active later when an easier turn was reported in wheat and stocks, with the market breaking 29 to 32 points during the last hour under liquidation or reselling by early buyers and a little more selling by the South. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the lowest.

According to the Census report, ginnings reported prior to August 16 amounted to 459,911 bales, compared with 251,183 last year, and 90,608 two years ago.

Weather Generally Favorable.

While noting unfavorable features in some sections, the weekly weather report said that on the whole, the crop continues to make satisfactory progress in much the greater portion of the belt.

Liverpool cables attributed the relatively firm showing of the market there to buying on reports of weevil damage in the South and said the Manchester cloth market was quiet but steadier with an encouraging inquiry.

Exports today, 5,234, making 397,782 so far this season. Port receipts, 14,418; port stocks, 2,914,009.

Wheat Closes Steady While Corn Declines

Initial Upturn Terminated by Uneasy Selling and Late Profit Taking.

Chicago, Aug. 23 (AP).—Grains were driven to cover by late profit taking and uneasy selling today after early advances.

Wheat closed about steady and unchanged to ⅜ cent lower, corn unsettled ¼@⅝ down, oats ⅛@½ up, rye ⅞@1⅛ higher, and provisions steady to 20 cents advanced.

A sharp falling off in the movement to terminal markets imparted strength to oats and prices worked higher.

Rye and barley were strong most of the session.

World Wheat Price Treaty Forecast Today

Difference Between Bases Proposed for Slashes in Tariff "Not Great."

London, Aug. 23 (AP).—Determination of an international wheat price at which importing countries will undertake to adjust tariffs was the sole remaining obstacle before the World Wheat Conference tonight and spokesmen predicted an agreement would be reached tomorrow.

Some delegates, including those from Germany, had no definite instructions from their governments, but were trying to obtain them.

The difference between figures proposed by various groups as a basis for tariff reductions was described in conference quarters as "not so great."

Stanford Formula Adopted.

It is already agreed that this price should be understood to mean a duty-free gold price, c. i. f. on a world market. It would be calculated according to a method adopted by the Food Research Institute of Stanford University, Calif. That method is based on the average price of all imported wheat sold each week in all ports of Great Britain.

It was agreed also that the period during which the average quotations should be maintained before it is necessary for importing countries to adjust their tariffs be set at four months.

World Advisory Board.

The conference adopted a subcommittee's report recommending the establishment of an international advisory committee which will be temporary in character and devoted to the task of watching over the workings of agreements reached.

It was decided that the chief exporting countries—the United States, Argentina, Australia and Canada—and Russia should be represented separately on the international committee, and that the Danubian Basin exporting countries should have two representatives.

Wheat Program Stayed.

(Associated Press.)

Informed that international wheat negotiations at London have reached a "decisive stage," Secretary Wallace last night delayed the domestic wheat program until all possibility of agreement there has been exhausted.

He postponed until Friday or Saturday his announcement of the percentage of acreage reduction to be required of American farmers to qualify for $136,000,000 in benefit payments.

It was indicated that, if necessary, he would further delay his decision, but the Department of Agriculture was privately advised that there are strong possibilities of an agreement in the next 24 hours.

Prospects of an early agreement also was credited with postponing action by the Department on an export policy for wheat.

Wife Kills Mate, Mother and Self

Funeral Services for Three Victims Conducted in Georgia City.

Gainesville, Ga., Aug. 23 (AP).—Funeral services were held here today for Ed C. Palmour, Mrs. Fannie Wilson and Mrs. Palmour, all of whom died yesterday as the result of shots fired by the latter in what her friends believe was a fit of despondency due to ill health.

Palmour, Gainesville merchant, and Mrs. Wilson, his mother-in-law, were shot and killed by Mrs. Palmour, who then turned the pistol on herself. She died late last night.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Palmour were interred here and the body of Mrs. Wilson was sent to her former home at Georgetown, Ky., for burial.

New Jobs at Once Required by Ickes

Holds Public Works Will Be Approved Only if They Help Idle.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, urged last night that projects submitted for allotments from the $3,300,000 emergency fund carry with them the "essential" of furnishing immediate employment.

He said it was not sufficient that proposed projects have a permanent social benefit to qualify for funds.

"The possibility of furnishing immediate employment is an essential for projects submitted to us," Ickes said.

Too many are being proposed which, if approved, would result in delay rather than immediate expenditure, he added.

"We do not seek to allot a project money which will lie in a bank or treasury for months putting nobody to work," Ickes explained.

Mob Threats Man Charged in Attack

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—A man giving his name as Charles Woodicker, 45, of Reading, Pa., was in the county jail here today, after having been saved from a threatening mob at Salem.

The crowd gathered around a magistrate's office, where a warrant was being drawn charging him with trying to attack a little girl. He will be given a hearing by the county mental hygiene commission.

The warrant against him charges an attempted criminal attack upon the 2½-year-old daughter of a Salem garage proprietor.

from a London mining magazine of 1912, which he declared the former President wrote. The priest said it dealt with exploitation and high finance in mining. He asserted the philosophy expressed was characteristic of the former President's whole administration.

"Hoover tried to cure this damnable depression by pouring in gold at the top, while the people starved at the bottom," cried Father Coughlin, rising from his chair and pounding the witness table.

Inconsistent, He Says.

"He fed grain to pigs in Arkansas, but he wouldn't give a loaf of bread to the people of Michigan. I cite him as a concrete example of the philosophy that money in the hands of the masses was a menace. I'll show the Detroit bankers were brought up in the same school."

The former President, requested to come here to testify before the jury, has replied that information concerning Michigan's banking affairs in his possession are insufficient to justify a trip to Detroit.

Delving into history in his testimony, Father Coughlin traced economic events from a time preceding the World War, and declared the country had been saddled with a $235,000,000,000 debt as a result of the war. He attributed the depression in part to this debt.

Says All Are Welchers.

"All of us are welchers!" he shouted. "We are trying to find ways of escaping that debt, and pass the buck on to future generations because their fathers wore soldier suits and made the world safe, not for democracy, but for depressions and bread lines!"

Armed with what he said were "photostatic copies to back up everything I say about the Detroit banks," Father Coughlin, throughout his day of testimony, tossed sporadic charges at Detroit bankers, one of whom was Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the board of the First National Bank-Detroit, who gave false testimony before the grand jury, the priest charged, when he stated the items of cash on hand and Government securities of the bank totaled $108,585,075, and that the bank was 25 per cent liquid. He charged the bank had only $99,302,808 in cash and Government bonds, and was but 14 per cent liquid.

"Mills had the statement of the bank's true condition," said Father Coughlin, "but he kept it in his pocket. The other statement went to the State banking commissioner, and that was used by the press."

The clergyman also charged the banks were "wrecked by mismanagement."

"These banks were wrecked before President Roosevelt took office," he shouted. "These white-carnation bankers were not to blame. They had been brought up in the school of John Stuart Mills and, more latterly, Mr. Herbert Hoover."

Defends Roosevelt.

Then, he charged, the bankers who "occasioned the depression because they were devotees of the school of exploitation," turned on President Roosevelt and "in this very courtroom got away with murder by blaming Mr. Roosevelt for causing the wreck of our banks."

"I am defending a Protestant President," cried Father Coughlin, "who has more courage than 90 per cent of the Catholic priests in the country. A President who thinks right, who lives for the common man, who knows patience and suffering, who knows that men come before bonds, and that human rights are more sacred than financial rights.

"Oh, I know that millions were pooled to defeat Roosevelt! I know the Catholic Smith (Al Smith) said 'stop Roosevelt!' And I know the Protestant Hoover cried 'Radical Roosevelt!' But nevertheless he is a President who wants to give Christian doctrine a chance to make good, who is willing to make the Christian experiment!"

Recalls Incidents.

Turning to the Detroit bank situation, the priest declared that two weeks before the Michigan Banking Holiday on February 14 he had called Gov. William A. Comstock from New York and urged him to declare a bank moratorium, after he learned of the closing at that time of a group of banks in Michigan's "thumb" district.

The priest, concluding his testimony with an attack on the Detroit Bankers Co., holding company for the First National, said he would have more specific testimony to present tomorrow. Then Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R. Mich.) will testify.

Discussing events preceding the Michigan moratorium, Father Coughlin said he and then Mayor Frank Murphy, the latter now Governor General of the Philippines, were in New York when they learned of the closing of the group of "Thumb" banks. Neal McNeal, night editor of the New York Times, he said, was in a hotel room with them when the priest decided to call Gov. Comstock and urge the bank moratorium.

"Knowing what was pending, knowing the condition of the Detroit banks, I advised the moratorium lest a greater evil follow," he said.

Received Warning.

"I had information from men in Washington who were waiting for the bomb to go off," he continued, "from men who had evidently warned the directors that disaster was impending." He declined, however, to give the source of this information.

Asked if he had given any thought to the possible form of a bank reorganization, Father Coughlin, leaping to his feet, cried:

"The United States can not go down into a graveyard and raise a Lazarus! God Almighty could not raise the First National!"

"Then how will it be taken care of?" persisted Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, his questioner.

"It will be taken care of in the New Deal," said Father Coughlin, "through the revaluation of the gold ounce, which will automatically revaluate the assets."

"I take it that the purpose of a grand jury is to ferret out crime," the priest remarked. "Evidently, when this court convened, there must have been a suspicion of crime." Then he read into the records a statement in which he said he would do his best to "ferret out crime," although he indicated he was not wholly in sympathy with the plan of the grand jury of holding hearings open to the public.

"If I were endeavoring to apprehend a kidnaper," he continued, "I would hardly think it wise to inform him by telephone that the officers were on his trail."

U. S. Will Probe Two Cleveland Closed Banks

Prosecutor Is Not Certain of Action He Will Take at Akron.

Cleveland, Aug. 23 (AP).—United States Attorney Freed today announced an investigation of the closed Union Trust Co. and Guardian Trust Co. would be made soon by investigators sent here by the Department of Justice.

Freed said he had received telegraphic information from Washington officials regarding the bank situation here. The investigation will be completed in time for scrutiny by the Federal grand jury early next month.

The prosecutor has not determined what action he will take in Akron, where six former officers of the closed First-Central Trust Co. were indicted for misapplication of funds.

The Cleveland banks had deposits of about $200,000,000 when a license to reopen was denied after the March banking holiday. They have paid out $57,000,000 as a first dividend.

The First-Central of Akron had more than $35,000,000 in deposits when it closed. It has made no dividend disbursement.

Seamen Urge Soviet Accord; Propose Strike

Demands for recognition of the Soviet Republic were left at the White House yesterday by a delegation of seamen and longshoremen. Later they presented their idea of an ideal code to Industrial Administrator Johnson.

After a brief brush with Commerce Building guards and a conference with Johnson, Theodore Barron, one of the leaders, said a strike would be called to force a hearing on the ideal code. Johnson accepted the code for filing, Barron said.

Red Affiliations.

None of the delegates were Communists, although there are Communists among the members of the rank and file group of the Associated Marine Workers and the Marine Workers Industrial Union, which the delegation represented, Barron said.

They called first at the White House. Hearing that President Roosevelt was away, they left a letter calling for recognition of Russia. It had several thousand signatures.

"We demand to see Johnson," Barron shouted. Outnumbered by guards, the delegation waited in the reception room until Johnson gave an audience to four members.

Provisions of Code.

The code provided that the Government pay workers who did not have at least 40 weeks work per year, restore wages to 1930 levels, and increase workers on each ship one-third.

Hours would be not more than 8 per day or 44 per week. Extra watches would be paid for at overtime rates of 75 cents an hour for unlicensed, $1.25 for licensed workers. Wages could be demanded in gold at foreign ports, and be payable in full at any port. Linen, soap, and matches would be provided.

Cotton Forecaster Denies Bear Drive

New York, Aug. 23 (AP).—E. L. McGuigan, who owns and operates the International Market Forecast Bureau, today denied the allegations of Senator Thomas of Oklahoma, that his organization had been conducting a campaign to depress the price of cotton.

"On July 18," McGuigan's statement said, "our analysis indicated cotton prices were too high and just before the crash we telegraphed our subscribbers to sell their long cotton. Our advices are not confined to one side of the market. This is proved by the fact that on August 19 we advised our clients to take a position on the buying side of the market."

Waverly Section Has Record Melon Crop

Waverly, Va., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—The largest watermelon crop in years was harvested and shipped from this section during the past two weeks. Twenty-one carloads were sent to New York and Philadelphia. An average of 900 to a car brings the total number to 18,000.

The price was strong at the beginning of the season, but has been falling constantly due to flooded markets. Melons in excess of 32 pounds fell from 15 cents to 3 cents wholesale here. Thousands of melons were not harvested due to the slump.

The market for cantaloupes also has suffered serious decline. There have not been carload shipments from Waverly, but numbers of trucks have sold their cargoes in nearby cities.

Comics Called American Art

Commission at Fault in Its Stamp Proposal, Says Pegler.

By Westbrook Pegler.

New York, N. Y., Aug. 23 (Spl.). The National Commission to Advance American Art seems to me to have shown a lot of crust in proposing that Mr. Farley issue various series of stamps to popularize American art without, itself, recognizing some of the greatest American artists.

This commission, to snobs, would have Mr. Farley issue stamps bearing thumb-nail reproductions of the works of Whistler, Stuart, Sargent, Eaking, and others, but ignores the works of Sidney Smith, George McManus, Doc Willard, Rube Goldberg and others, and I know why.

The reason is that the art artists never have been able to ring the bell with the American public and realizing that they do not represent American art, want the Government to adopt their kind as the official kind and plug it, which would not do any good because the citizens would still prefer the comic strips.

I don't suppose the comic artists need any such promotion themselves for most of my acquaintances among them ride in chauffeur jobs as long as hook-and-ladder trucks and hire forgoes to do their inking and lettering, but the principle of the thing is important on a day as dull as this and any way these boys are all heavy taxpayers.

If anyone deserves plugging from the Government there should not be any question as between the strip-artist who lays it on the line in large, coarse sums every year to help pay off the postal deficit and the smock-and-beret types who spend most of their time in Rome and Paris and try to make a virtue of their inability to lay up anything. I have never heard of a Whistler estate but have you ever seen Sidney Smith's?

Virginians Hit High Beer Tax Plan of Rust

Residents of Nearby Counties Send Wires Opposing Stand.

Citizens of northern Virginia last night were up in arms against the stand of State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, in favor of a high excise tax on the sale of beer. The State Assembly is considering the legalization of beer in the State.

Senator Rust is quoted as saying he favored a tax of $3.10 a 31-gallon barrel or more. A report from Richmond states he is the only member of the northern Virginia delegation favoring such a high rate. He represents the counties of Arlington, Fairfax and Prince William and the City of Alexandria in the State Senate.

Charles Pickett, Fairfax attorney and county Democratic leader, sent Senator Rust a telegram saying: "In the name of the merchants of your district, a vote for a $3.10 tax rate is a vote against these people. I had expected to be inactive in the next campaign, but if you vote for such a high rate I will be compelled to actively oppose your renomination."

Merchants from the entire district, Mayor Thomas P. Chapman and members of the Fairfax town council, and the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors also sent telegrams opposing the senator's stand. The merchants said that such a tax will drive their business into Washington and Maryland. The tax in Washington is $1 a barrel on beer.

Democratic political leaders declared such action by Senator Rust will mean his political defeat if he seeks reelection in 1935. A vote on the administrations beer bill containing the high tax is expected in the House of Delegates today, it was said last night, but the northern Virginia delegation will seek to have the bill amended to decrease the excise tax. Such a decrease was lost in the joint finance committee of the House and Senate by a 1-vote margin.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 23 (AP).—The task of dividing lumber production allotments among the mills of the Southern and Appalachian sections was turned over to the Hardwood Manufacturers Institute today by the Lumber Code Authority, Inc.

In a later announcement Townshend said he had been ordered to limit hardwood production in the South to 250,000,000 feet for each of the three months with a possibility that the quotas for October and November may be raised or lowered on the basis of supply on hand at the end of September.

Townshend's territory embraces Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Carolina, West Virginia and Maryland.

Townshend said an organization to carry out the provisions will be formulated at a meeting here tomorrow of directors of the institute. C. Arthur Bruce, executive officer of the Lumber Code Authority, will arrive here from Washington late in the afternoon.

Poison Theory In Yachtman's Death Blocked

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—No trace of poison was found in the vital organs of Capt. Clarence Crosby, 38, Maine yacht skipper, whose body was exhumed last week, according to a report received tonight by County Attorney Percy T. Clarke.

Crosby died under supposedly mysterious circumstances during a terrific blizzard last January and was buried on Cranberry Island, a few miles off the Maine coast, without customary formalities, because high seas prevented a doctor from going there to ascertain the cause of death.

Mrs. Vida Crosby, 39-year-old widow of the dead captain, has been in a state of nervous collapse since the exhumation, which authorities said she opposed. Yesterday she surrendered a quantity of arsenate of lead to officials, but declared the poison had been purchased as a bug exterminator for use in their garden.

The county attorney declared that "'so far as the attorney general's and our offices are concerned, the case is closed."

Flood Keeps Steamer From Alexandria Dock

High water prevented the Norfolk and Washington steamer District of Columbia from docking at Alexandria on her scheduled run to Norfolk last night. The Potomac at this point was 3 feet above normal, reaching as high as Union street and cutting off the steamship company's offices and dock.

Officials of the company had planned to keep the District of Columbia at her dock here, but changed their minds and the steamer pulled away a half hour behind schedule.

Lawyer's Death Recalls Famous Ocean Murder

J. E. Cotter, Who Saved Capt. Bram From Hanging, Expires.

Boston, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Memories of one of the celebrated murder cases and sea mysteries of New England, the atrocious ax murders aboard the barkentine Herbert Fuller on the high seas off Halifax, N. S., on July 14, 1896, were revived here today with the death of James E. Cotter, 86, noted attorney.

It was Cotter who defended Thomas Bram, first mate of the Fuller, through two bitterly fought trials in Federal court in this city on a charge of having slain Capt. Charles Nash, the barkentine's skipper, the latter's wife and August Blamberg, second mate.

Convicted and sentenced to hang at his first trial, Bram, with Cotter's assistance, appealed to the Supreme Court, where he succeeded in obtaining a new trial. The second trial, however, resulted in a new conviction and this time Bram was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Convinced of Bram's innocence, Cotter never gave up the fight and finally obtained a pardon for the convicted sailor from President Wilson. That was nearly 20 years ago, and since then Bram has returned to the sea, where he still cruises up and down the coast trying to forget the tragedy.

The case was made the subject of a novel by Mary Roberts Rhinehardt, while the legal points involved have been brought up in a number of other important trials.

Kidnapers' Notes Threaten Infant

Indianapolis, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Three-year-old "Buddy" Copeland, son of a school teacher, was guarded today at his home in Ravenswood, river resort community north of Indianapolis, while police studied two notes threatening death to the child unless money is paid the writer.

Reference to the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby was made in the first crudely written note, marked with a red and black cross in a black circle. "Buddy" has light curly hair and in some respects resembles pictures of the Lindbergh child, kidnaped and killed in 1932.

Appeals of Flood Victims Unheeded

His wife and three children marooned in their flooded home at Edmonston, Md., Henry C. Custer last night appealed to The Post for aid after all other agencies failed to send relief.

He frantically asked The Post to seek aid from the Federal Government. A call to the Navy Yard brought only the response that they were swamped with similar calls.

Chief Noble F. Rushe, of the Hyattsville fire department, early today sounded a general alarm for aid. He said more than 300 families in the Edmonston section were panic-stricken.

A call to Coast Guard headquarters in Baltimore resulted in promised assistance. Volunteer workers succeeded in rescuing more than 25 families in the submerged area. They were taken to the firehouse at Hyattsville.

Versatility

Firemen Turn Carpenters and Tree Choppers as Storm Rages.

Chief George S. Watson was generous in praise of the members of the department for their work in connection with clearing Washington of debris and mending it together after the violence of the storm. He said it was another proof of the versatility and willingness of his "boys."

Floods Swirl Over Wharves

Washington's storm-swept waterfront waded waist deep in the Potomac River last night, as attempts were being made to regain normal routine in disrupted shipping.

Large boats and small craft alike broke their moorings and flooded helplessly in the swirling waters. A fleet of watermelon boats, lashed to the wharves at Seventh street southwest, floated above the docks and cargos were lost as many overturned.

More than three feet of water flooded floors of the District Morgue. In Potomac Park campers at the Washington Tourist Camp were forced to flee with their belongings.

130 New Yorkers Stricken by Meals

Broadway Offices Become Hospitals; Indigestion, Doctor Says.

New York, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Six rooms of a 14-story building in downtown Broadway became an emergency hospital today when 130 persons were stricken ill after eating in a cooperative lunchroom.

All except 25 were able to go home after emergency treatment. Of the 25 taken to a hospital, 11 were sent home after a short time and the 14 others remained for further treatment.

Dr. Strenger, of Beekman Hospital, in charge of the 12 physicians and 8 nurses, diagnosed the trouble as "indigestion."

Most of the sufferers, who were among the 1,000 employes of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., credit rating firm, had eaten egg salad sandwiches, cheese cake and coffee. Samples of the food were sent to the department of health for analysis.

St. Louis, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Physicians marshaled under three U. S. Health Department experts tonight sought the evasive carrier of encephalitis, a form of sleeping sickness which is sweeping this community.

Troth of Elder Hurley To Mrs. Wilson Denied

Chicago, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Any rumors that Edward N. Hurley plans to marry Mrs. Woodrow Wilson are "as ridiculous as if one were to say he is going to marry Mary Pickford," Hurley's son, Edward N., jr., declared tonight.

The elder Hurley, former chairman of the United States Shipping Board, is en route from Europe to New York. The younger Hurley said the rumor had been published in New York, but was untrue.

Flood Hits Car; 2 Climb Tree

Party of Four, Including Girl, Rescued on Chillum Road.

Forced to seek refuge in the uppermost branches of a tree, two members of a party of four were rescued last night after their automobile was completely submerged in flood waters on Chillum road, near the District line.

Cut off from communication on a lonely section of the highway, members of the party clambered to the top of the stalled car. They included Miss Ruth Rice, of 1410 Parkwood place northwest; Joseph McGarvey, of 610 Rock Creek Church road northwest, and Hugh and James Ferry, both of the Rock Creek Church road address.

A passing motorist succeeded in parking his machine and wading waist deep in the rising water to rescue Miss Rice and James Ferry. He carried them to his car.

Nurse Drops Case Against Polo Star

Planning to Marry Soon, She Wishes to Avoid Publicity.

Chicago, Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Miss Eugenia Rose, 23-year-old Evanston nurse who accused Cecil Smith, America's second ranking polo player, of a criminal assault, tonight announced she would not prosecute the case, scheduled for a hearing Friday.

Authorities, notified in a letter from her of the decision, cancelled the $5,000 bond posted by Smith and his friends. Smith left immediately for Long Island, N. Y., where he is overdue for practice for a polo tournament scheduled next month.

Miss Rose said in the letter the reason she dropped the case was that she expected to marry soon and wished to avoid publicity. Smith was accused of attacking her in a wooded area as he took her home from a hospital where she had been assigned to care for a teammate injured during the East-West polo meet here.

Juror-Picking Delay Makes Lamson Grave

San Jose, Calif., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—His face indicating weariness, David A. Lamson sat through another court session today as attorneys battled through the tedious process of selecting a jury to decide whether he bludgeoned to death his wife, Allene Thorpe Lamson, last Memorial Day.

On the third day of the trial, Lamson was grave and almost sullen. Three days of bickerings of attorneys had sapped the smile of confidence. Six men and six women were in the jury box, tentatively accepted.

It was learned a search was being conducted for another nursemaid of the Lamsons. Although District Attorney Thomas had declared the State was searching for the girl, who worked for the couple soon after their marriage, as the climax to a romance on the Stamford University campus, he later said he had not assigned a detective to the search.

Other officials who would not allow their names to be used, however, said the State was quietly trying to find the girl.

Florida Transmits Citrus Agreement

Marketing Code on Way to Capital; Meets Federal Suggestions.

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—Officially accepted by the State control committee, Florida's citrus marketing agreement under the agricultural stabilization act is on its way to Washington.

The agreement suggested by the Federal Department of Agriculture was modified slightly by the committee, which said the original document included clauses embodied in the California program that would not be applicable in Florida. The committee expected the modifications to be approved in Washington and a mass meeting called in Florida for its final adoption.

Provisions of the agreement were not made public pending its consideration in Washington.

Britisher Doubts NRA Code Value

System Eventually Is to Be Vain, Roosevelt Sincere, He Says.

Banff, Alta., Aug. 23 (A.P.).—President Roosevelt's recovery program, Prof. T. E. Gregory, of London, told the Institute of Pacific Relations here last night, will play no part in the eventual recovery of business in the United States.

"Who can doubt the sincerity of President Roosevelt?" the distinguished University of London scholar asked.

"Sincere as he is, however, the net results of the NRA program can play no part in the eventual business recovery."

Mythical Enemy Returns Gunfire

Soldiers of the Seventy-first Regiment went into action against packed sand and gravel targets at a distance of 100 feet.

"Fire," shouted the commanding officer, and the machine guns sprayed bullets. Rain had so corroded the targets the bullets threw gravel back into the gunners' faces, giving them the feeling their theoretical enemy was giving them actual battle.

Young Republican League to Convene

Maryland Session Called for Sept. 6-7 at Ocean City.

Princess Anne, Md., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—J. Harry Schad, business manager for the Young Republican League of Maryland, has issued a call for a convention at the George Washington Hotel, Ocean City, September 6 and 7.

The speakers invited are Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, former Collector Galen L. Tait and Wendell D. Allen, chairman of the Republican city committee. Mr. Allen has accepted the invitation.

Four Men, Trapped On Island, Rescued

Trapped by the rising Potomac, four men sent to a railroad pumping station on a small island in the river near Bellevue magazine, were rescued early this morning.

Superintendent G. W. Brent of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railway feared the men were drowned. They were G. Graham, W. G Mitchell, J. J. Kelly and D. W. Click, all of Alexandria.

The four went to the island to repair pumps while the river still was low. A small pontoon bridge was swept away, trapping them on the island.

Screen Champions for July—Complete Information on New Week's Theater Bills

"Gold Diggers" Leads List of Money Makers

Flooded Conditions Cause Theaters Uneasy Hour; Amusement News.

The motion picture box-office champions for the month of July have just been announced from its tabulation of bona-fide, key-city records by the Motion Picture Herald, foremost of the film industry's trade journals. The list is, perhaps, not as a majority would have guessed it.

Out of six pictures named, the first three rate themselves without conflict on a basis of box-office drawing power throughout the country; the other three fall into a deadlock for a triple-tie fourth.

The undisputed leader is the Warner Brothers' production of "Gold Diggers of 1933," which also was the unchallenged leader for the previous month of June. This was largely to have been expected, since "Gold Diggers," by every right of magnitude of production, capability of cast, gorgeousness of spectacle and tunefulness of score was the early summer's real leader in fact as well as fanciful press-agent claims.

In second place in the ratings stands Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Hold Your Man," costarring Jean Harlow and Clark Gable, supported by Stuart Erwin, Dorothy Burgess, Muriel Kirkland and numerous others, under the direction of Sam Wood. The character of the story, the drabness of the later movements of the plot, and one of two other considerations that need not be set down here, would have inclined this department to rank "Hold Your Man" a little lower than second. Figures, however, do not lie—at least, they do not lie much!

Two Doubles; Two Singles.

Third among the separately rated leaders is Warners' "The Mayor of Hell," in which Frankie Darro and Dudley Digges almost stole the show from Jimmy Cagney and Madge Evans. This film flattened out so horribly at the end that its earlier strength was almost wholly vitiated in the eyes of this column.

The three pictures tied for fourth place are M-G-M's "When Ladies Meet," which might reasonably have been expected to occupy a place up among the uncontested winners, despite its inferiority to the stage version of the Crothers comedy; Paramount's "College Humor," which some might contend does not belong on the list at all, and Universal's "Be Mine Tonight," featuring Jan Kiepura and his incomparable voice, Magda Schneider and Sonnie Hale—a picture that was presented so long ago in the Capital that many, in all probability, have forgotten how very good it was.

As the opening of the new season at the National Theater approaches—it will be inaugurated by Corinne Griffith in Noel Coward's "Design for Living" on September 11—the management wishes to urge its regular patrons holding season reservations to confirm the assignment of seats they have held in previous seasons, not later than Saturday, September 2. This season reservation, without the necessity of advance payment, is a convenience the National annually extends its patrons.

Where to Park Happily.

The postman may go on a hike for his vacation and the sailor on leave may spend all his time rowing a boat, but the employes of the Washington Railway and Electric Co., make no such mistake. They take their annual outing at Glen Echo Park and almost wear the place out in one day by the intensity of their enjoyment of its many amusement devices and picnic facilities.

Weather permitting, today will be the day for their frolic in the open. All sorts of events have been planned—fourteen in all, to be exact about it—to begin promptly at 2 p. m.

The committee in charge is as follows: George G. Jones, H. R. Farver, C. M. Sharpe, R. L. Bready, P. Nutwell, G. P. Taylor, E. P. Scholtes, L. F. Trudewind, Frank Kelly, M. Mellington, A. V. Hawkins, Miss L. F. Curtin, Dr. C. A. Weaver, R. S. Brooks and Mrs. M. B. Blakeney.

The Dove Bore No Greenery.

Flood conditions in the electric-light plants last night caused considerable inconvenience to downtown Washington, but nowhere was the emergency more acute than in some of the picture houses served current from the power stations most seriously affected.

At Loew's Fox, for example, there was not enough juice to project the picture, so Master of Ceremonies Brooke Johns mustered the personnel of his stage show and put on an ad lib performance from 8 to 9 p. m., working his principals in unrehearsed numbers in the enfeebled glare of a single spotlight, valiantly augmenting footlights that were down to half-mast!

The orchestra came up on schedule for the 9 o'clock performance of "Going Native" and from that time on the programmed stage revue was presented without a hitch.

Around the corner at the Earle, conditions were not so bad. Supplied current from another subplant, that found itself in only minor difficulties, the Earle found it possible from 8:12 p. m. on, to present both its screen and stage bills with no further drawbacks than slightly dimmer screen images than usual.

But to get to the matter of next week's bills in the motion picture houses. It is not Bill Hay speaking, but "here they are"!

Leslie Howard, Margaret Lindsay in "Captured"—Earle.

Marlene Dietrich in "Song of Songs"—Palace.

RKO-Keith's

That day will launch the RKO Greater Show Season.

Innumerable feature pictures have been previewed by the Keith management. Out of these, the new Katharine Hepburn picture, "Morning Glory," was selected as the opening attraction.

This selection was primarily made because of Miss Hepburn herself. She is, without doubt, at the moment the screen's most interesting personality. She created what could be termed a furor with her first appearance opposite John Barrymore in "A Bill of Divorcement."

The Radio Pictures executives selected "Morning Glory" as her third picture, and placed a cast around the star that is worthy of her. This cast is headed by Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Adolphe Menjou.

The theme of "Morning Glory" concerns those who can win success, but can't hold it. They can do wonderful things, but they can't keep their heads—they are the "morning glories" of Broadway and Hollywood, the actresses and actors who flash into prominence and as swiftly fade into obscurity.

Katharine Hepburn is seen as a girl who fights long and gallantly to win recognition on the Broadway stage. She meets with hearthbreaking disappointments in the Zoe Akins story, and many reverses. Then comes a sudden, dazzling triumph.

Palace.

Hailed by the press and public as Marlene Dietrich's finest screen effort, "Song of Songs," the Rouben Mamouilian picturization of Edward Sheldon's play, based on Hermann Sudermann's great literary classic, has been booked as the successor to "Tugboat Annie," when that Marie Dressler-Wallace Beery hit completes its run at Loew's Palace Theater tonight.

A new Dietrich tomorrow is promised Washington patrons who have learned to see in her a glamorous, worldly woman of consummate sophistication. In "Song of Songs" she will appear as an innocent young country girl, of rare beauty, who goes to Berlin, and, jilted by a handsome young sculptor, runs the gamut of tragic experience.

She marries a rich and elderly baron, whom she does not love, and following their separation becomes bitter and disillusioned and a notorious woman in the gay German city's night life.

Brian Aherne, described by dramatic critics as the most romantic actor on the American stage today, following his work as Katherine Cornell's leading man in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," makes his screen debut as Miss Dietrich's leading man.

Lionell Atwill, who has been a stage star for 16 years, appears as her screen husband. Alison Skipworth, Hardie Albright and Helen Freeman also have prominent roles in this Paramount picture.

The screen play was by Leo Birinski and Samuel Hoffenstein, the music by Ralph Rainger and lyrics by Leo Robin.

Earle

This is Howard's first appearance for Warner Bros. on his first long-term contract. Hal LeRoy, a Washington favorite with his own revue, heads the stage program.

"Captured" tells the story of two men, comrades in both peace and war, and their love for the same English girl, who is the wife of one though she loves the other, precipitating a crisis in the lives and fortunes of the hundreds of prisoners herded into a prison camp. This love triangle results in the most amazing, yet thoroughly credible series of events ever shown on the screen.

An exceptional cast is assembled around Leslie Howard, young Fairbanks and Paul Lukas for the interpretation of "Captured." Margaret Lindsay, as the girl; Monica and Frank Reicher, Arthur Hohl, Philip Faversham, Robert Barrat, William LeMaire and J. Carroll Naish, in equally important roles, lend brilliant support to the principals.

Other acts are Sylvia Froos, "Little Princess of Song;" Barry and Whitledge, nit-wits of fun, and Violet, Ray and Norman, novelty entertainers.

Victor McLaglen in "Laughing at Life"—Columbia.

Loew's Fox

Memories of Loew's Fox Theater patrons will be given opportunity for delightful adventure into the past with the attraction to be offered on the screen for the week beginning tomorrow.

The feature photoplay is a hilarious comedy, "Turn Back The Clock," in which Lee Tracy, in an amazing dream, lives his life over again. If you've ever pondered the query, "What would I do if I had my life to live over again?" you'll find a refreshing response in this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which presents a positively new twist in movie stories.

Other acts feature Harry Roye and Billy Maye in novel dances and songs, and Joe, May and Dotty in a humorous skit.

Supporting Lee Tracy in "Turn Back the Clock" are Mae Clark, Peggy Shannon, George Barbier and Otto Kruger. The film was directed by Edgar Selwyn, who collaborated with Ben Hecht in writing this farcical story.

Lee Tracy was pacing back and forth along the edge of a set on "Turn Back The Clock." The cameraman had just asked him to confine his gestures during a scene so the camera could take in a difficult side angle.

"I'd be glad to hold down on my gestures if I possibly could," groaned Tracy.

"Through years on the stage I have developed gestures into such a habit that I really can't talk without them. I find them to be as definite a part of acting as facial expression or voice intonation. When my arms start going I am really warmed up to a scene and when I don't realize gestures in my action it is as near reality as I can achieve."

Columbia

Foremost among these is Victor McLaglen, who assumes the star role. He is supported by Conchita Montenegro, William (Stage) Boyd, Regis Toomey, Ruth Hall, Noah Beery, Tully Marshall, J. Farrell MacDonald, Lois Wilson, Henry B. Walthall, Dewey Robinson, Guinn ("Big Boy") Williams, Ivan Lebedeff, Henry Armetta, Edmund Breese, Buster Phelps, Frankie Darro, Pat O'Malley, William Desmond and Philo McCullough.

"Laughing at Life" is the romantic story of the adventures of one Capt. Easter, played by McLaglen, who, despite the fact that he is a celebrated engineer, can not keep out of being an adventurer.

Abbreviated sound subjects and the Paramount News will complete the bill.

Metropolitan

"Double Harness," the first picture in which Ann Harding and William Powell are seen together, will be at Warner Bros. Metropolitan Theater tomorrow.

In this RKO-Radio comedy-drama of love intrigues and matrimonial complications Miss Harding is seen as a girl who intends to make marriage her career and calmly sets out to snare her prospective life partner. Powell portrays a debonair Lothario who is enthusiastic about love, but distinctly shy of marriage.

In Miss Harding and Powell's support are Henry Stephenson, Reginald Owen, George Meeker and Lillian Bond.

Special short subjects including "Twenty Thousand Cheers for the Chain Gang," and the latest issue of the Paramount Sound News complete the program.

Nats Win 2d to Divide With Tigers, 2-1, 9-5, Gain on Losing Yanks

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23.

HEINIE MANUSH'S consecutive game hitting streak survived both ends of the twin bill between the Nats and the Tigers today and the big left fielder has now hit safely in all of his last 31 games, which eclipses by 5 games the previous record of 26, which he set earlier in the season. George Sisler's 41 games constitute the all-time league record.

On each occasion today, Manush went hitless until his third appearance at the plate. But he had been robbed early in the first game when Gehringer made a spectacular leaping catch of his whistling line drive. Just to make matters more binding Heinie slammed a triple and two singles in the second game.

Griffith Vetoes Plan.

Clark Griffith, of the Griffith Stadium Griffiths, was reading of the suggestion by William Veeck, president of the Chicago Cubs, that the 1934 schedule call for games between the clubs of both major leagues in midseason, the games to go into the regular standings in what Veeck declared would stimulate interest in big league baseball.

"Interleague bosh," exploded Griffith, biting a full 2 inches off of his unlighted cheroot. "The whole idea is a joke, the American League will never consider it. Let the National run their league, we'll run ours. Humph, I have heard a lot of silly suggestions but this is the worst. I'm surprised at Veeck."

"I don't like the idea," he went on. "There's nothing the matter with baseball if they'll let it alone. It has gone through the depression better than any other industry. But that idea of Veeck's is absurd.

"It looks like the National League wants to gain some prestige at the expense of the American. And you can quote me."

Al Crowder's $25 fine by Manager Cronin yesterday was a secret to the rest of the players until today . . . It may be rescinded in view of Crowder's noble effort in the first game today . . . The House of David team, with Jackie Mitchell, the girl pitcher, saw the games from the stands . . . They are to play a collection of Harry Heilmann's Detroit sandlotters at Navin Field tonight . . . Al Crowder went down in the dirt when Bridges threw an inside pitch in the seventh inning of the first game and claimed to have been hit on the elbow . . . the pitch did not come within a foot of Crowder and the Detroit fans booed him lustily . . . Umpire Kolls, who was mysteriously missing for the first game, showed up before the second started . . . The Nats had the bases filled seven times in the second game . . . but the feature of the game was when Heinie Manush rounded first base on his triple in the fourth inning and knocked Brick Owens sprawling in the dirt . . . Crowder was looking for his twenty-first victory in that first game and got his tenth defeat instead . . . Earl Whitehill will be looking for his eighth straight win tomorrow.

Nats Get Pitcher McColl, Lookouts

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 23 (Spl.). Alex McColl, veteran right-handed pitcher of the Chattanooga Southern Association Club, will join the Washington team in Cleveland on Saturday, President Clark Griffith of the Nats, announced today.

McColl is being brought along from the Washington farm as a result of the failure of the deal for Sam Gray, of the Browns. Manager Cronin is seeking added relief pitching strength to carry the Nats through the home stretch, and McColl, by reporting on Saturday, will be eligible also for possible duty in the world series.

Berger Stars As Braves Score

Hits 2 Homers to Take League Lead as Cards Are Beaten, 4 to 3.

Victory Fifth Straight and 18 in Last 22 Games for Braves.

BOSTON, Aug. 23 (AP).—With Wally Berger's big bat blasting out the winning runs for the second successive day, the Boston Braves today strengthened their hold on second place, defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 4 to 3 in the first of a three-game series, played in mist and fog.

Berger, hitting his twenty-third and twenty-fourth home runs of the season to capture the lead in the National League from Chuck Klein, drove in all of Boston's runs. Yesterday he drove out a homer in the fourteenth inning to give the Tribe a close decision over the Pirates.

The Boston outfielder connected with his first homer of the day in the first inning with Bill Urbanski, who had doubled, and Baxter Jordin, who had walked, on the bases. Again in the sixth, as the first man up, he hoisted a still longer fourbagger into the high left center bleachers. Both circuit swats were made off Tex Carleton.

Win Fifth in Row.

The victory was the Braves' fifth straight and their eighteenth triumph in their last 22 games. It reduced the lead of the Giants, who again were rained out, to 6½ games and shoved the Cardinals into fifth place, 1 point below the Cubs and Pirates, who also were idle.

Except for the first and sixth innings, the Braves were helpless before Carleton and Sylvester Johnson, who hurled the last inning, failing to get a hit. Altogether, they collected only four safe blows, but three of them figured in the run making.

Huck Betts was touched for six hits, but was effective in the pinches. Consecutive singles by Pepper Martin and Watkins and an infield out pushed the former across the plate with the Cards' first run in the sixth. In the ninth, Watkins led off with a homer. Manager Frankie Frisch reached second on Dick Gyselman's bad throw and romped home on Jim Collins' single. That ended the rally, however, as Betts forced Orsatti to ground out and Durocher to send a fly to Hal Lee.

Net Rally Wins For Shields, Parker

Young and Freshwater Are Beaten as Five U. S. Teams Survive.

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Right at home in a London fog, drizzle and all, two little known Britishers furnished the setting for most of the thrills as five American teams and three from overseas won regulation victories in the national doubles championship today.

S. P. Young and D. S. Freshwater, Cambridge University students, lost in five sets to Frank X. Shields, of New York, and Franklin Parker, of Milwaukee, fourth-favored Americans, after tossing away three straight chances to win.

Rally and Win Match.

Leading five games to four in the deciding set, the Englishmen ran up a 40-15 lead in the tenth game as Parker, serving, double-faulted and netted twice. But the Franks, with Shields playing brilliantly, rallied to survive three match points and went on to win the match.

Australia's teams and England's best, alone were able to stroke their way into the quarter-finals without going into extra sets. Jack Crawford and Vivian McGrath put out Berkeley Bell, of New York, and Gregory Mangin, of Newark, 6—3, 6—3, 7—5. Adrian Quist and Don Turnbull eliminated Joe Coughlin and Henry Culley, of California, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4. And England's Fred Perry and F. H. D. Wilde beat Cliff Sutter, of New Orleans, and Dr. Eugene McAuliffe, of Yonkers, N. Y., 6—4, 6—3, 14—12.

Meanwhile, England's other seeded team, H. G. N. Lee and Edward Avory, fell before Jack Tidball and Gene Mako, Californians, 7—5, 5—7, 8—6, 6—1. Elsworth Vines and Keith Gledhill, of California, defending champions, defeated Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, and Karl Kamrath, of Houston, 6—2, 6—4, 5—7, 6—4. Wilmer Allison, of Texas, and John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, defeated Watson Washburn and A. McPherson, of New York, 6—2, 6—2, 1—6, 6—3. George Lott, of Chicago, and Lester Stoeffen, of Los Angeles, defeated Arnold Jones, of Providence, and L. Tiers, of Cooperstown, N. Y., 6—1, 6—3, 10—12, 6—3.

The grass courts at Longwood were so drenched and skid-marked after the day's play that quarter-final matches were put over to Friday, instead of tomorrow. The footing was so bad that several players, including Gledhill and Freshwater, played in their bare feet.

Phelps Accepts Dare Of Pearce in Boat Race

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 23 (AP) Ted Phelps, British sculler, who meets Bobby Pearce in a 3-mile professional championship race here September 1, looking beyond that tussle to a duel with Maj. Jack Goodsell, of Los Angeles.

A challenge, with the necessary £100 deposit from Goodsell, set Phelps to talking. Accompanying the challenge was a letter in which Goodsell said "Phelps only beat me half a length at Los Angeles" and again "he is afraid of me."

"The official verdict after the Los Angeles race," Phelps replied, "said I beat Goodsell not half a length, but by two and one-half lengths. I could have beaten him 22½ lengths. I'll race Goodsell morning, noon or night—and I'll beat him, too—for any amount of money he can raise or cover."

Trenton Junior Nine Advances to Finals

Springfield, Ohio., Aug. 23 (U.P.).—The Trenton, N. J., Junior Baseball Team advanced to the Eastern sectional final of the American Legion Championship today, but the other finalist will not be decided until tomorrow.

The final game of the sectional tournament was scheduled for tomorrow, but when the game between Springfield and Mobile, Ala., was called because of darkness at the end of the ninth inning with the score at nine-all, it became necessary to delay the deciding contest until Friday. Trenton earned a 4-to-3 decision over Gastonia, N. C.

Indians Down New York in Duel, 2-1

Walk Helpful to Tribe in Two-Run Rally in Fourth.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 23 (AP).—With Clint Brown scattering the Yankees' six hits over five innings to outpoint Charlie Ruffing in a pitching duel, the Cleveland Indians today defeated New York, 2 to 1, in the second game of the series.

After the second inning, when the Yanks scored their only run on a pass to Ben Chapman and singles by Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey, Brown kept the world champions away from the plate. He struck out seven while issuing three bases on balls.

Score Pair in Fourth.

The Indians got to Ruffing for nine safe blows, winning the game with a two-run attack in the fourth. With one out, Odel Hale and Bill Kamm walked. Milton Galatzer followed with a double, scoring Hale, but Kamm was out on Chapman's fine peg to Dickey. Harley Boss crashed through with a single, however, sending Galatzer across the plate with what proved to be the winning run.

Babe Ruth returned to the lists after awarding himself a brief rest, but was unable to help the Yankee attack. Ruffing, one of the best of the Yankee hitters in a pinch, had a chance to win his own game in the second with two on but fanned ingloriously for the third out. Again in the third the Yanks threatened as Dixie Walker doubled with one out, but Ruth fanned and Gehrig grounded out weakly.

Women's Net Play Again Postponed

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP). Already prolonged four days beyond the scheduled closing date and with two semifinal matches yet to be played, rain today again brought postponement of the women's national tennis championships at the Westside Club.

It was the third successive postponement and the fourth of the tournament, caused by the longest stretch of bad weather during a tournament the oldest official could remember.

The two semifinals, which would have been played Sunday except for Dorothy Round's disinclination to compete on the Sabbath, put Miss Round against Helen Jacobs and Miss Round and Mary Heeley against Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Elizabeth Ryan in doubles.

In case anyone has forgotten, Mrs. Moody and the English team of Betty Nuthall and Freda James already have won final brackets.

Johnson Under Knife.

Chicago, Aug. 23 (U.P.).—Henry Johnson, Boston Red Sox pitcher, today was operated on for an injured elbow. Johnson injured his arm in sliding into third base in a recent game at St. Louis. He will be out of action for three weeks or later, Dr. Philip Kreuscher said.

Steele Opposes Zaharias on Mat Card

PROVIDED the weather man again melts before the magic of Promoter Joe Turner, a quaint old Turnerian custom these past years, one of the liveliest rassle bouts of the summer season will eventuate tonight at Griffith Stadium.

Famed as a rain chaser and heretofore an archenemy of stormy weather, Turner tonight offers as his choice tidbit a fracas banding together George Zaharias, arrogant Greek, and Ray Steele, California's sun-kissed nomination for Jim Londos' throne.

Likely to Be at Best.

In line for a return bout with Gino Garibaldi on a card to be staged as a benefit for the firemen's parade fund Labor Day, a week hence, in the event he survives tonight's test, Zaharias probably will hit a new high in aggressiveness against Steele.

Apparently splendidly matched, Steele and Zaharias probably will intermingle straightaway wrestling with some wild and woolly rassling. Though primarily the wrestler, Steele also can rassle gloriously on occasion, being a combination herobad man of the first water.

Gained Draw With Londos.

Inasmuch as he recently worked two hours to a draw with Jimmy Londos here and is pointing eagerly for a return title crack, Steele likewise goes into battle in high gear. Visioning a big gate in the event of a Londos rematch, Ray can hardly afford to be eliminated by Zaharias at this time.

Backing up the main event will be a semifinal listing Bruno Gorasini against Abe Coleman.

Storm Postpones Bouts at Twin City

The storm yesterday caused Promoter Charley Cornell to postpone indefinitely the Patsy Lewis-Carey Wright, Charley Von Reedon-Mickey Genaro bouts scheduled for Twin City last night.

Bob Godwin and Joe Knight will battle as originally planned next week, but the date probably will be set for Monday, instead of Tuesday. The card scheduled for last night will be presented later in the season.

Royal Blunder Finds Opening Entering Stretch to Win Feature at Hawthorne

Dusky Devil Second by Length

Big Red Third; Favorite, Hope To Do, Fades, Finishes Last.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 (AP).—Royal Blunder, shut off twice during the running of the top race at Hawthorne today, managed to get through an opening at the stretch turn in the mile and a sixteenth event and won by one length.

Jockey Earl Pool rode the triumphant thoroughbred from the Audley Farm. Dusky Devil was second. Big Red finished third.

Hope To Do, Admiral Cary T. Grayson's entry and the favorite, led the pack until the stretch bend and then did a fadeout, finishing last.

Jockey L. Balaski, who rode Ondott, the winner of the fourth race, fell from his mount after the contest and was rendered unconscious. He fell on the railing. Balaski was picked up and had to be weighed out in the emergency hospital with his saddle and tack. The official board was not displayed until this was done.

Contraband Wins Again.

Coney Island, Aug. 23 (AP).—C. V. Whitney's Contraband scored his fourth successive victory and retained an unsullied record at Coney Island when he led home a small but select band of handicappers in the Wilmington, today's principal attraction.

The Chicle gelding was forced to the limit to gain the decision and at the finish of the mile and 70-yard test enjoyed but a scant nose margin over W. E. Hupp's Judge Judy. Third money went to B. O. Hickman's Agincourt.

First Minstrel Spa Victor.

Saratoga Race Track, N. Y., Aug. 23 (AP).—A new contender for the juvenile title developed here this afternoon when First Minstrel, from the powerful establishment of Mrs. Payne Whitney, led home a field of good ones in the twenty-first running of the Sanford, the race in which the immortal Man O' War suffered his only defeat. First Minstrel, which has been something of a hard luck colt until today, was much the best. He came from far back to win by three lengths from Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Cavalcade, winner of the Hyde Park Stakes. The latter headed Soon Over, a stable mate of the winner, for the place.

The Greentree pair closed at 5 to 1. Over a heavy track, First Minstrel ran the six furlongs in 1:15 to collect the winner's share of the purse, which amounted to $2,675.

Jockey "Long Shot" Meade had a narrow escape from serious injury in the first race in which 20 maiden 2-year-olds performed. Briny Deep, one of the choices, appeared to cross his legs at the far turn and he went down with the boy. Both jockey and horse got off with a mud bath.

YOUNG Georges Breakston, currently in Hollywood for motion picture work, won first as the best child radio performer in the Radio World's Fair of 1931 in a contest staged by the Radio Manufacturers Association of the United States. In connection with the show he broadcast nine programs over nine stations in nine hours. He was nine years old at the time.

A strange pastime on which contestants wager is the slapping game of the Philippines. The two contestants take turns giving each other resounding slaps on the bare thigh. After each slap the referee determines whether a blood blister has been raised. The first man to draw blood on his opponent wins the game—and the stakes.

Strange as it seems, naturalists, who should know, now report that, contrary to popular belief, elephants do not dislike tobacco—some of them seem to like it. Feeding tobacco to elephants has long been classed as a dangerous pastime, but now it appears safe—only don't try it, you might get the wrong elephant.

Blushing is a matter of habit determined, in part of course, by other factors. Nevertheless, among people who usually wear clothes from the neck down blushers blush only from the neck up. Among savages, where the custom is to wear nothing above the waist, they blush to the waist.

Dear Al:

Did Mrs. Bennings' youth throw the hooks into the common enemy (the bookie) today? F-I-V-E W-I-N-N-E-R-S! And I don't mean perhaps! On a day when most of the selectors were touring the grand stand picking up discarded tickets and comparing them with the program numbers, the bashful Bennings was clocking this gang: Stroll Along, $2.96; Ondott, $14.90; Royal Blunder, $7.60; Replevin, $24.42; Ultramarine, $13.52. Even Mike's dream horses were stepping down. I couldn't locate him tonight to find out what he likes for tomorrow. In present form, Mr. Bennings himself, is all you need.

BILL.

First race—Rummond is faced with the chance of graduating from the maiden ranks tomorrow and I can't see anything going amiss. Breaks from the outside, but appears to have the speed necessary to overcome that handicap. Doctor Klein has failed me a number of times. Has been tuned up for this kind of a race. Jack Knife for the show end.

Second race—My Boss is a fine fellow and the horse by that name is a pretty fair sort. Of course, I'm trying to outguess them when I put My Boss in front of Transcall. However, stranger things are happening here every day. The sleeper of the field may be the fast-closing Peedeeque.

Third race—I'll take Sister Zoe. She loves these races for mares and fillies and is in rare form at present. Reverberate and Catherine Fox appear to have the edge on the rest of the field.

Fourth race—Have reason to believe that that brilliant race by Lamporte the other day was no fluke. I am taking this one to lead home the short-price Trey. Speedy Skippy is no slouch in a sprint and gets the call for third money.

Fifth race—Trying to make Don Leon earn a set of brackets. Seems well suited here despite the fact that he carries the top weight. Karl Eitel and One Chance will be ready if the top fellow makes errors.

Sixth race—Equipoise gets in this race at equal weights with most of the field. Reported to be at his best. Any price will be a good one. If there is an upset, keep your eyes open for Indian Runner. Gallant Sir will be hard to keep out of the money.

Seventh race—Laferia has been groomed for a killing. I believe tomorrow is the day. Blue Law is coming into good form. Don Tasker for the third.

Eighth race—Mad Career pops up on occasions of this kind. Figures to lead Fort Dearborn and Lahor to the wire.

FIRE STAR, away fast, but taken under mild restraint to follow the pace, slowly wore down SOCIAL SERVICE and won under strong urging. SOCIAL SERVICE, placed in front under strong urging, saved ground after a quarter and failed to withstand winner, yet held on fairly well. LUNA BRIGHT hesitated as if to bolt or wheel shortly after the start, was in close quarters much of the trip and closed resolutely. AIDA MARIE weakened. BOSTONIAN GAL lost ground. MAYREEN broke poorly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GALLOP ALONG, $7.34, $4.50, $3.26; PRINCE PLATO, $58.72, $23.60; PORTCODINE, $9.32.

GALLOP ALONG raced wide throughout and never a great distance back, bettered his position slowly when under strong hand riding in stretch and was up in closing strides. PRINCE PLATO, a strong factor throughout, held on gamely and wore down PORTCODINE in final strides. Latter reached the lead on inside and, before going a quarter, came away slightly in stretch, but weakened in final eighth. BAG SMASHER closed strong in a fine effort. LEBRUYERE steadied for half a mile, failed to rally when called upon in stretch. TWEENY could not improve her position.

"Give Us Our Money's Worth," Fans in All Sports Now Cry

Golf Players Razzed by Crowds

Links Stars Are Unlike Those in Baseball; Boos Hurt Play.

Diamond Performers, on Other Hand, Spurred to Greater Work.

By Robert Edgren.

"GIVE 'em their money's worth!" is a cry which is having a bad effect on officials. John Henry Lewis was socking Maxie Rosenbloom. He socked him high and he socked him low. Referee Eddie Burns wasn't just sure how low. He thought of the old cry, "Give 'em their money's worth!" Instead of making a decision, he gave Rosenbloom a five-minute rest and ordered him to continue.

There was a time when a referee was supposed to make a firm decision and stick to it. If Rosenbloom was fouled, he certainly deserved to win the fight right then and there. If Lewis' punch was fair, Lewis should have gotten credit for knocking Rosenbloom flat with a stomach punch. The referee, unable to make up his mind, decided to pander to the crowd and "Give 'em their money's worth." The fight went on.

How about the fighters? They didn't get much of a square deal.

Cotton Once Booed.

Even golf galleries have gotten tough trying to get their money's worth. In England, supposedly the home of golf decorum, Henry Cotton was booed for making a bum shot in a pro tournament. Such booing a couple of years ago would have started a riot, and the booers would have left the scene on a stretcher, if the doctor had been able to find the remains. Originally golfers met in tournaments to find out who was the best player. They had no interest whatever in the gallery and would often have preferred to play their matches on some quiet course with no one to watch.

In order to get money for sending teams abroad, and for hiring stenographers, secretaries, officials, and so on, the golf associations began charging entrance fees for spectators.

As long as the spectators had paid nothing they felt that they were only there as tolerated guests and that it was up to them to be orderly and quiet. When the golf associations began charging entrance fees, the fans felt they had a definite right to follow the players —and do what they pleased.

Why Not, They Ask.

Now it has even come to the point where spectators boo a golfer.

Why not? asks the baseball fan. For years ball players have had to do their best amidst hoots, horns, bells and flying pop bottles. A ball player is just yellow if he lets a little thing like that get him down. Baseball, say the fans, is a game requiring a man to hit a moving ball, tossed by or at him with considerable skill by a hired hand picked for his ability. It must require more concentration than a simple game like golf where the ball lies still and all you have to do is to go up and hit it.

Well, ball players are out there getting dough for their razzings. They have been trained on the razz, and glory in it. They like nothing better than to take a Bronx hoot and slap out a homer in defiance. They are hired by a company, or owner, to entertain the fans.

May Prove Costly.

As far as golf pros are concerned, they aren't hired to entertain the gallery; they are playing against their rivals to get a small slice of a prize not big enough to go around. A boo at the wrong moment may cost a pro several hundred dollars in cash and a lot more in reputation. He comes out expecting to have an equal chance with the other boys and has some mug ruin it for him with a shout, move, sneeze, or razz.

Part of the gallery's money's worth in golf consists in seeing players, each with an equal chance, compete for a title. If one of the favorites is heckled by a loud partisan, that detracts from the gallery's money's worth. It makes the play worse, when they want to see the best.

Golf nuts who want to improve their games can read the next two paragraphs and then jump into the nearest deep water.

Says Seymour Dunn, "Creator of Champions:" "The hands do not work together, they work against each other. Immediately prior to and during the moment of the club's impact with the ball the right hand speeds up the clubhead. It can not do this if the heel of the left hand fails to offer a backward resistance against the upper end of the club handle."

And now read Alex Morrison, "the wizard of golf instruction"—"Best results are obtained by forgetting the right hand entirely once it has been placed upon the club. Both hands will work in unison if you think only of the left." Later, he continues: "Whether you are conscious of the cause or not, you will always know that an interruption has occurred in your swing when the moment of impact finds you trying to propel the club at the ball with your right hand."

Playground Meet Is Off Till Wednesday

The Public Playgrounds annual city championship field and track meet, scheduled for Friday at the Central High School Stadium, again has been postponed. Because the ground in the stadium had been made unsuitable for fast competition by the heavy rains, playground officials have now scheduled the meet for Wednesday.

Maryland Shooter Wins Class A Title

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 23 (AP).—In some of the closest contests the Grand American handicap trapshoot tournament has experienced for many years, class championships were settled today with more than 400 marksmen taking part.

Elmer Torge, of Wales Center, N. Y., was acclaimed the class AA champion, but not until he had bested two other crack marksmen, Mark Arie, of Champaign, Ill., and R. M. Jenkins, of Orleans, Ind., in a shoot-off. The three had tied for first place by cracking 199 out of 200 targets.

In an extra 25 for the decision, Torge went straight through without a miss; Arie dropped only one and took second honors; while Jenkins succeeded in cracking only 22, for third. A crowd of 5,000 witnessed the shoot-off.

The class A first honors went to H. C. Krout, of Maryland Line, Md., with his score of 198. Fred Martin, of Detroit, took second place with 195. Third place, however, caused a battle royal when six contestants tied for third place with 194's.

Pennsylvania Youth Loses in British Golf

Carnoustie, Scotland, Aug. 23 (AP). David Nes of the York (Pa.,) Country Club, only American entrant in the boys open golf championship of Great Britain, today was eliminated in his first match, 4 and 2, by R. C. Ross of Fettes College.

Nes drew a bye through the first round and met defeat in the second. He was two down at the turn, lost the tenth through weak putting, was twice bunkered on the next hole and, although he won the twelfth, could get no better than halves on three of the next four and went out of the tournament.

Broaddus Honored For Point Record

Johnny Broaddus, the Ambassador Team's gift to diving, has been awarded the gold plaque presented by the management of Glen Echo Park for individual scoring in meets held in the Crystal Pool this year. Five points were scored for wins, three for second place and one for third. Broaddus accrued 15 points by winning all three of the diving contests held at the pool. These were the only ones he entered.

Caroline Cox, of the Shoreham Team, ran Broaddus a close second with 14 points, scored for two wins, one second, and one third. George Groff, of the Shoreham, scored the third highest number of points with 13.

300 Horses to Compete at Marlboro

Stalls Assigned 60 Owners for 5-Day Meet to Start Tuesday.

MARLBORO, Md., Aug. 23 (Spl.).—There won't be a scaracity of horses during the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association's fall meeting, which starts at 2 p. m. Tuesday, as Superintendent Dick Pending has allotted stalls to more than 60 different owners to date.

Among the latest owners to be granted stalls are George Saportas, J. C. Cremens, J. C. Jones, A. Mazzeo, C. P. Miles, Tom Lynn, G. Taylor, U. S. Wishard, A. Vaughn, E. P. Hashup, J. Yancy Christmas, M. C. Chavis and Joe Booker.

It will be impossible to say before Sunday just how many horses will campaign here, but it's a safe wager that close to 300 will be on the grounds after the horses get in from Cumberland, which is offering its annual fall session this week.

With seven races being run each day next week and the fields being limited to eight starters, Race Secretary J. P. Turner can furnish excellent sport daily, ever. though he has only 300 horses with which to make up his cards. Too many horses work a greater hardship on a racing secretary than not enough; but judging by applications to date there will be just enough horses on hand to make the meeting the best ever offered since the sport of kings was introduced here.

Pari-Mutuel Manager Mort Mahony is bringing a picked crew here. Among his men are scores who serve at the Miami, Pimlico and Bowie tracks. Therefore visitors next week can be assured of 100 per cent service at all times.

Griffith Wants No Midyear Series

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (AP).—Sharp criticism from Clark Griffith, gray-haired president of the Washington Nationals, added to the impression today that American League club owners, as a whole, do not look with favor upon the proposal for inaugurating midseason, interleague competition between the two major baseball circuits next year.

"Nuts! Nobody thinks of that sort of stuff unless he's deaf, dumb and blind," declared Griffith, in Detroit, when questioned as to his attitude toward the interleague plan advocated by William L. Veeck, of the Chicago Cubs, and other magnates. "We are not going in for any hippodrome stuff. The American League is a big league. Our business has held up at least as well as any other. Some of these guys can't take it. That's all. We're going on just the way we are. That's all I've got to say—nuts!"

The only American League magnate so far to support the interleague plan is Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Club.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, is neither for nor against the proposition at the present time.

"I haven't given the matter a single thought," Col. Ruppert said today, "and do not care to comment. I have no suggestion for any changes now."

Although comparatively few officials have committed themselves definitely to the interleague or any other change in schedule-making, a majority apparently are entirely willing to consider Veeck's suggestion.

10-Mile Swim Draws 34 Entries in Canada

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 23 (AP).—A small but select field of 34 will face the starter in the Canadian National Exhibition's 10-mile swim for women on Friday, with red-headed Ruth Tower-Corsan of Toronto the prime favorite.

Every year but one Mrs. Tower-Corsan has finished in the money since the race was established in 1928. She was third to Ethel Hertle and Olive Gotterdam that year; second to Martha Norelius in 1929, and to Margaret Ravior in 1930.

Unplaced in 1931, the Toronto star finished fifth last year as Miss Ravior—now the wife of George Young and retired—scored her third successive victory.

Her leading rivals will be Leah Riley of Keansburg, N. J., Mrs. Evelyn Armstrong of Detroit who was second a year ago, and May Looney of Warren, Ohio.

Mystery Veils Death on River Of Capital Man

Young Electrician's Body Found in Water Shows Marks of Violence.

Mystery continues to shroud the murder of Orlando H. Ross, jr., 21, 1214 I street northwest, whose mutilated body was surrendered by the Potomac River Tuesday night, near Marshall Hall. Three fishermen who dragged the body ashore found a deep gash in Ross' head, and doctors found his lungs free of water, indicating he had been killed before being thrown in the river.

Identifying Marks on Body.

O. H. Ross, sr., secretary of the Electricians' Union of Washington, father of the murdered youth, has not seen the body yet to identify it, but feels sure it is that of his son from the description police gave. The body bore tattoo marks, and a union card was found in the dead man's pocket. Though his family says Ross left home with $10, only $1.26 was found on his person.

Young Ross left Washington Sunday night on the excursion boat City of Washington with a party of friends, none of whom has given any information about his disappearance. Carl J. Horstkamp, 4547 Conduit road northwest, one of the party, drove Ross' car back to Marshall Hall to search for the missing man when his absence was discovered during the return trip.

Charles Police Investigate.

Police in Charles County are investigating the case under the direction of Deputy Sheriff J. L. Sprague, of Indian Head. The body is at the Hunt & Ryan Undertaking Establishment, in Waldorf, Md.

Ross is survived by his parents and a 20-year-old brother, Irwin. He attended Franklin Grade School and Central High School here. He was an electrician.

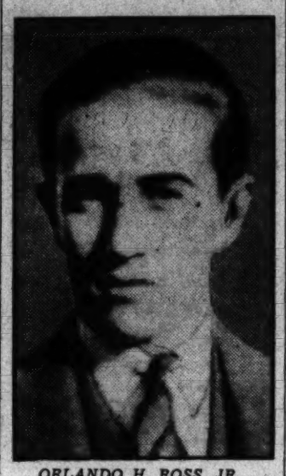
Murder Victim



ORLANDO H. ROSS, JR., 21, 1214 I street northwest, whose body was cast ashore by the Potomac Tuesday night wearing marks indicating murder.

Park Savings Depositors Get R. F. C. Answer

Declares Loans Secured by Collateral Owned by Institution.

Another chapter in the fight being waged by depositors of the defunct Park Savings Bank to have the District Supreme Court oust the present receiver, who was appointed by the Treasury Department, and select a successor receiver of its own choosing, was written yesterday when the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which had been named as one of the defendants, petitioned the court to dismiss the depositors' suit.

The R. F. C. declared in its answer that its loans to the bank were secured by collateral apparently owned by that institution. It had no knowledge, it was shown, that any of the posted collateral was the property of customers of the bank.

William C. Fitts, member of the legal staff of the R. F. C., contended depositors and shareholders continued to do business with the bank after its charter had admittedly expired. They are thus estopped, he claimed, from challenging the corporate existence of the institution. Even though the Park bank was not a corporation at the time of the R. F. C. loans, Fitts declared, the directors had a legal right to deal with its assets as trustees.

A group of depositors started the litigation when they filed a petition asking appointment of a receiver, and discovery and accounting of the bank's assets. They showed the bank's charter had expired, and they argued this legally killed the corporate existence of the bank. The R. F. C. was one of 34 defendants. No action has yet been taken on the various proposals submitted to the court.

Ventilating Fan Blades Injure Capital Worker

Charles H. Beach, 30, of 125 Wolfe street, Alexandria, Va., was injured seriously yesterday when he fell into a ventilating fan at the Congressional Library.

Beach, a sheet metal worker, was repairing the fan when he slipped and fell into the revolving blades. He was taken to Casualty Hospital, where his right leg was amputated. His condition is serious.

Armed Bandit Pair Raids Grocery Till

Two white men, one with a drawn gun, entered a grocery store at 1018 Eighteenth street northwest and held up and robbed the owner, David Bogen, of $35. At the time, Bogen was behind the counter and no customers were in the store. While one man held the gun, the other went behind the counter and scooped bills and silver out of the cash register.

They escaped in a dark sedan which they had parked about a half block away. A police lookout, with descriptions, was broadcast.

Baby Badly Scalded With Boiling Grease

Charles Curtis, 2 years old, of 1221 Holbrook street northwest, was severely scalded yesterday when a pan of boiling grease upset on his face and body. The child was admitted to Casualty Hospital.

The pan slipped from the hands of his mother as she removed it from an oven. The boy was playing on the floor.

Business Man Freed on Bond In Bribe Case

Typewriter Agent Accused of Offering $1,000 to U. S. Official.

William H. Wolowitz, president of the United Typewriter & Adding Machine Co., Inc., was released on $3,000 bond by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage yesterday after arraignment on a charge of offering a bribe to a Federal officer.

Wolowitz was arrested Tuesday night by Federal agents after a tip from W. H. McReynolds, administrative assistant to Henry Morgenthau, jr., governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

The agents allegedly heard Wolowitz repeat an earlier offer to pay McReynolds $1,000 to obtain a proposed typewriter contract.

Wolowitz was said to have made a full confession to Division of Investigation officials.

Due to a special ruling the Farm Credit Administration has heretofore rented its typewriters. According to McReynolds and Federal agents, Wolowitz came to Morgenthau's office last Monday offering to sell 500 typewriters at $35 each. While talking to McReynolds, Wolowitz is alleged to have offered him $1,000 to help "swing the deal." McReynolds notified the Division of Investigation officials who made the plans that resulted in the arrest.

Larger Forest Program Coming, Says Forester

An immensely expanded forest conservation program, which will be of great benefit to the United States, will result from the President's Civilian Conservation Camps, declared C. M. Granger, assistant forester in the National Forest Service, in an address yesterday before the Rotary Club.

Trolley Workers Ready for Outing

Forty prizes will be offered to entrants in the contests at the annual Washington Railway Relief Association outing at Glen Echo Park at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The prizes will be in cash, candy and novelties.

Fourteen athletic and stunt contests, six dancing contests and a nail judging contest have been planned. Among the events will be 50 and 100-yard races for boys and girls, peanut and potato races, balloon bursting contest, apple bobbing contest, sack race, egg race, bottle contest, husband calling contest and a greasy pole contest.

Serving on the outing committee are G. F. Jones, chairman; H. R. Farver, C. M. Sharp, R. L. Bready, P. Nutwall, G. P. Taylor, E. B. Schottes, L. F. Trudewind, Frank Keely, M. Mellington, A. V. Hawkins, Miss L. F. Curtin, Dr. C. A. Weaver, R. S. Brooks, and Mrs. M. B. Blakeney.

Two Found Beside Flowing Gas Jets

Two suicide attempts were reported to police yesterday.

Lois M. Irwin, 40, of 4536 Fourteenth street northwest, was found by her father, James H. Irwin, in the kitchen of her home with the doors closed and the gas stove jets open. She is in a serious condition in Emergency Hospital.

William S. Hill, 32, of 2032 Belmont road northwest, was treated at his home after he was found unconscious beside the open gas jets of a kitchen stove. His condition is not serious.

Windows at Shoreham Broken During Storm

Scores of windows in the Shoreham Hotel were broken and room furnishings drenched when the wind yesterday ripped down awnings and drove the frames through the glass.

Repairmen in all hotels were kept busy throughout the day and night mending damaged ceilings and windows and placing pails in lobbies and halls to catch water seeping through the plaster.

Jury Indicts 22 In Washington "Liquor Ring"

1,200 Offenses Charged and 10 Places Named in Presentments.

Charging 19 overt acts and the commission of some 1,200 offenses, the District grand jury yesterday indicted 22 men on charges of conspiring to violate the prohibition law.

Seven of those named already have been arrested and are under bond. Bench warrants for the arrest of the remaining 15 were issued by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, in the District Supreme Court, and deputy marshals were searching for them last night.

The indictment charges the transportation, sale, and possession of alcohol, gin, and whisky, and the solicitation of customers. Nuisance charges are also alleged.

List of Defendants.

The alleged conspiracy is said to have had its inception in September, 1930, and it continued in operation, the Government charged, up until yesterday. Robert B. Cornish, pictured as a "runner" for one of the conspirators, was the main witness before the grand jury. He is at present serving a five-year term at Lewisburg, Pa., for liquor law violations.

10 Places Listed.

The indictment listed 10 places in the District where alleged violations occurred. They were 1019 Q street, 1532 Tenth street, 1001½ Rhode Island avenue, 1009 Rhode Island avenue, 141-A Bates street, 1418 Eleventh street, 59 Seaton place, rear of 1608 Tenth street, rear of 1533 Tenth street, rear of 1007 O street, all in the Northwest.

The seizure of large quantities of "hard liquor" and the confiscation of some 64 automobiles were reported by Government agents in their search for evidence. They learned, it was said, that liquor was hauled from Southern Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The indictment was the second largest of its kind in the District. The previous high water mark was last year when 36 men and women were named in a rum ring conspiracy.

Rubber Book

Here's hope for book lenders.

Seventy years ago, one Jose Macias, of Washington, gave his bride a book—"La Amour." She in turn lent it to a friend. It didn't return.

Yesterday, Don Shook who plays a saxophone in Pete Macias' Club Michel orchestra went looking for a book. He found an ancient, quaint one at a store on Pennsylvania avenue. He bought it and took it home.

Examining it last night just before he began to play, he found this inscription on the fly leaf—"To my wife, Jose Macias, Washington, 1863."

He turned the volume over to his boss, who in turn turned it over to his father who with little hesitancy declared it to be the one a book borrower failed to return almost a century ago.
